

ing our present term.

Fourth—I would advise the appointment of a committee on ways and means to look into the enlargement of the income of our Congregation, as much money will be needed in the near future. Also the same committee should look after our Shomas and see if he can get along with the present salary we are paying him. The same committee should also try and get more members into our Congregation if necessary, to try and bring all Jews together so we will have more funds to work on.

Fifth—It shall be my object to be your presiding officer, and rule always according to our By-Laws to the best of my knowledge, and to the satisfaction of all the members.

Sixth—The following gentlemen will be appointed on the following committees: Finance committee, S. J. Westheimer, Max Roberts and Philip Blumenthal.

Cemetery committee, S. J. Westheimer, Dave Aronstein and B. Burnette.

School committee, Philip Blumenthal, A. M. Levy and L. Seline.

Building and Seats, M. Schlatzug, B. Burnette and A. M. Levy.

Hoping that this will meet with your approval, as it comes from the bottom of my heart, I am,

Yours sincerely,

ABE GORDON.

DALLAS HAS NEW RABBI.

Rabbi H. S. Holding, of Southampton, England, has been elected rabbi of the Shaareth-Israel Synagogue, in Dallas, Texas, vice Rabbi S. Marglis, who resigned some weeks ago. Rabbi Holding arrived in Dallas last week and began his new duties immediately. The new rabbi is said to be well equipped to take charge of the Dallas synagogue, he having served ten years as teacher and Hazan in one of the largest synagogues in Southampton, and previous to that served a three-year term under Chief Rabbi Adler of London.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CONGREGATION BETH ISRAEL.

The annual meeting of Congregation Beth Isreal took place Sunday afternoon at the Temple. H. J. Dannenbaum presided. J. Allmont, secretary, submitted a lengthy report. Chairmen of other committees also reported. Mr. Meyer Wagner of the Sunday school committee introduced a resolution to have the classes meet on the Sabbath instead of Sunday as heretofore, thereby allowing the children Sunday for absolute freedom. The resolution carried. Rabbi Henry Barnstein was re-elected for a term of three years at an increased salary. Mr. Henry J. Dannenbaum, president of the congregation, then read his message. It is an interesting document and the recommendations suggested were adopted and referred to the board of directors. The following officers were elected: H. J. Dannenbaum, president; Sidney Meyers, vice president; J. Allmont, secretary; Chas. D. Wolf, treasurer; J. M. Sam, Emil Lipper, Chas. Blum, M. C. Wagner and Sol Schoenmann, trustees. After adjournment a reception was held by the Ladies of the Congregation.
