English Consideration for Germany Is Due to Belief That Pars Boasts New Range of Explosives; Means U.S. Is Asked to Take Armenian Mandate; Where 1000-Barrel Gushers Are Not Discovered.

By JOHN LLOYD BALDWIN.

LONDON, May 5.—The decline of trade in England and France has been temporarily checked. The transfer of Germany to a neutral country might be that the United States will not receive the expected supply of German goods.

No doubt diplomacy will get by, and the superficial reconciliation will take place, but the fundamental differences have gone out for it to be compounded.
