FEARS FOR THE ANCHORIA. Wild Rumors that Her Boilers were in Bad Condition. New York, Oct. 9.—A morning paper, which is not noted for its reliability, published the following: "LONDON, Oct. 9.—Your dispatch directing me to telegraph to a reliable agent at Glasgow in reference to the condition of the missing steamer Anchoria's boilers before she started on her present voyage, and to investigate the report that her engineers and firemen had left her just before her time of sailing, on account of the bad condition of her boilers, was received this evening. I at once telegraphed as directed, and received the following: "GLASGOW, Oct. 8.—MIDNIGHT.—The New York rumor in reference to the condition of the Anchoria's engineers and firemen is stated by the Anchor line officials to be incorrect. It probably arises, they say, from the fact of a few stokers (firemen) leaving her just before sailing, necessitating the hurried hiring of substitutes. Their reasons for leaving were not stated, and I may say that the admission of even so much foundation for the story has startled all who have learned of it. It is learned, however, by a searching inquiry that the steamer's boilers were not in good condition during the last voyage to this port. Her owners still express confidence in the vessel's safety. I may add to this that up to this time no news has been heard of her. Public interest in her safety is intense all through England and Scotland.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The steamer Anchoria has not yet been heard from, and the number of callers at the office of the company is daily increasing. The officials still hold to their original theory that the vessel has broken her shaft and that the canvass which she carried is not sufficient for her to keep her course. She was in good condition when she left Scotland, they say, or she could not have been allowed to sail, as by the English law government survey has to be made of every ship before she leaves the dock on every occasion.

THE NEW YORK MAIL AND EXPRESS says: Another dreary day has passed for those who have relatives and friends on the overdue steamer Anchoria. That vessel has failed to put in an appearance and no news of her arrival at another port or of her having been sighted at sea has been received. Even the more conservative steamship men of the Maritime exchange, who always hope for the best, are now forced to believe that the ship has been lost, or that another ocean horror has to be added to the list. The agents of the vessel, Messrs. Henderson Bros., still continue to affirm that they are not in the least alarmed. In reality, however, they are greatly worried, as is evident from the many private conferences held daily.

WHAT EXPERIENCED CAPTAINS SAY. Glasgow, Oct. 9.—The anxiety concerning the overdue steamer Anchoria, is increasing in Scotland owing to the fact that several well-known Glasgow gentlemen are among the passengers. Experienced Atlantic captains believe the steamer's delay is caused by some disarrangement of her gear; that she is proceeding slowly under sail, and it is understood that a premium of 10 guineas for insurance on the steamer has been taken.

HEBREW CELEBRATION—A Serious Shooting. CLEBURNE, TEX., Oct. 9.—All the business houses of the Hebrews of this city were closed to-day on account of its being Yom Kippur or Atonement day. A shooting scrape took place yesterday near the residence of J. W. Smith about five miles east of Cleburne, the participants being J. Wesley Smith and his son-in-law, J. A. Hughes. Mr. Smith is said to have fired on his son-in-law, J. A. Hughes, three times, inflicting a flesh wound in the arm. The cause of the shooting is said to be mistreatment by Hughes of his wife, who is the daughter of Mr. Smith, and also insulting remarks made by Hughes to his mother-in-law. Mr. Smith came to town and gave himself up, and made bond.

SENTENCED. The Wisconsin State Organizer of the Knights of Labor Denounces the Proposed Execution.

PARSONS WINDS UP THE COMMUNIST SPEECH-MAKING WITH A FIVE HOURS' HARANGUE. Judge Gary Gives Some Sound Advice to the Misguided Followers and Then Passes Sentence. SENTIMENTS OF A PROMINENT KNIGHT OF LABOR. MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 9.—At a largely attended meeting last night Robert Schilling, state organizer of the Knights of Labor, denounced the proposed execution of the Chicago anarchists as an outrage as infamous as the hanging of John Brown. He said he did not believe in anarchism, but sympathized with the socialists. The sentiment was received with uproarious applause from those present, among whom were many Knights of Labor.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH. CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 9.—The Arbitrator Zeltinger yesterday, after saying it was to be expected that Judge Gary would refuse the motion for a new trial, says: "The first act of the play ended August 20, when a jury consisting of capitalistic hirelings declared the defendants guilty. The second act came to an end yesterday, when the puppet in the judge's chair refused the just demands of the defense and set the day of execution. How many acts are to come? How are they to end? We had surrendered ourselves willingly to get a fair trial, knowing how the other defendants, knowing how the other innocent, in relating how we met Capt. Black in front of the court room and ascended the stairs with him, Parsons placed his hand affectionately on Capt. Black's shoulder and spoke in a more gentle voice. He concluded holding up his head proudly: "Even now, I have nothing to regret." He had spoken continuously five hours and forty minutes, and he sank into his seat exhausted.

Judge Gary was about to pronounce sentence when Capt. Black desired that a motion in arrest of judgment should be entered. Mr. Grinnell having assured that no technical matter should interfere with the defendants' rights. The court responded by granting the motion, and the solemn duty devolving upon him, and he spoke as follows to the defendants: I am quite well aware that what you have said, although addressed to me, has been said to the world. Yet nothing has been said which weakens the force of the proof upon which the verdict is based. You are all men of intelligence, and know that if the verdict stands it must be executed. The reasons why it will stand have already been sufficiently stated in deciding the motion for a new trial. I am sorry beyond any power of expression for your unhappy condition and for the terrible events that have brought it about. I shall address to you neither reproach, nor exhortation. What I shall say shall be in plain English, and a few words from me to the people of the state of Illinois, who have granted the authority to decide the guilt of the violations of their laws, and spoken upon an occasion so solemn and awful as this, may come to the knowledge of and be heard by the ignorant, deluded, and misguided men who have listened to your counsels and followed your advice. It is not the least among the hardships of peaceable, frugal and laborious poor to endure tyranny of the mob, who, with lawless force dictate to them under the penalty of peril to limb and life, whom, where and upon what they please, they may earn a livelihood for themselves and their families. Their government, that is worthy of the name, will strenuously endeavor to secure to all within its jurisdiction freedom to all lawful vocations, and safety for their property and their persons while obeying the law, and their law is common sense. It holds each man responsible for the natural and probable consequences of his own acts. It holds that if he advises murder he is himself guilty of the murder that is committed pursuant to his advice, and it must bind together for forcible resistance to law and advise murder as a means of making such resistance effectual, whether such advice be to use force to murder another, or to a numerous class to murder men of another class, all who are so bound together are guilty of any murder that is committed in pursuance of such advice. The judge closed his remarks by sentencing seven of the anarchists to be hanged on December 31, and the eighth to confinement in the penitentiary for fifteen years.
