WHAT'S the matter with Texas?

THERE'S nothing in a name. Look at Richard Croker.

STAND up for Texas and rebuke the man who talks against it.

QUIT your campaigning and go to work for Sallie and the babies.

THE Panhandle and West Texas will grow next year as they have never grown before.

THE good things slated for Fort Worth in 1893 cannot be counted on the fingers of both hands.

THE Populists seem to be as happy over the national result as if they had an invitation to the feast.

THE Clark meeting at Waco to-day should be seasoned liberally with salt and sparingly with pepper.

WEAVER will not be in fact as large as Harrison in the electoral college, but he will feel much larger.

THE real estate boars have lost it their own way for a season, but the signs are that the day of the bull is approaching.

CORBETT'S father says he is to retire from the ring after one more fight. Napoleon should not stop on the south side of Waterloo.

"Oh he he'd little chillun;
Oh he he'd little chillun;
Oh he he'd little chillun;
There's room for many more."

CLEVELAND is said to be losing his temper on account of the pressure upon him by office seekers. In this emergency, where is Athal?

EVERY man can not be elected to office, but there is no reason in Texas why every industrious man should not build up a solid bank account—and that is better.

"THE Clark and Hogg Democrats have united and all is harmonious once more" is the report which comes from Granbury. Horse sense is abroad in the land.

IF Mrs. Lease should break into the United States senate, courtesy will require the dismissal there, for whistling or vocal purposes of that dapper little melody, "Chippy get your hair cut."

LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL is said to have purchased the Pall Mall Gazette. If Randy doesn't raise the wind as an editor it will be because there is not enough cream in the British atmosphere to build up a respectable breeze.

WITH Campbell in the president's cabinet and McKinley in retirement, as he will be next year, things will be a little more in plumb than they appeared to be when, as chairman of the Minneapolis convention, McKinley looked forward to the presidency in 1896.

THE GAZETTE has not offered any suggestions to Mr. Cleveland about the make-up of his cabinet because it is not disposed to waste wisdom on the desert air, but if the president-elect desires a cabinet warranted sound in every particular, he can find THE GAZETTE'S address in any newspaper directory.

IT is rumored that Justice Field, one of the three Democrats on the United States supreme bench, is to retire in time for President Harrison to name his successor. The rumor is based on the idea that Justice Field is an ass, and without conclusive proof of it the country will refuse to credit an assumption so violent.

STOP IT.

To the Dallas News:

It is not true that Texas has a communist for governor, or that a communist could have commanded the votes of a plurality of the people of Texas.

It is not true that property rights are endangered by present political conditions in Texas.

It is not true that Texas property values are depreciated because of political menace.

It is not true that there is any hazard to investment in Texas which does not exist everywhere else.

The gubernatorial campaign is over. The campaign for capital and for home-seekers is not over.

Stop talking against Texas!

THE VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.

Fuller returns from the state election compel THE GAZETTE to revise its figures given in the election table elsewhere. It is very certain now that the total vote polled, instead of stopping at 380,000, which was agreed upon as the maximum, will reach at last 415,000.

This is ascertained by comparing the number of votes cast in the counties so far reported with the voting of the same counties in 1890. The ratio of increase will fix the ratio for the entire state.

To illustrate: Twenty-five counties are selected, taken from every quarter of the state. These counties are Aransas, Atascosa, Austin, Baylor, Bastrop, Bell, Bexar, Bosque, Bowie, Brown, Caldwell, Camp, Clay, Cooke, Crosby, Eastland, Ellis, Fisher, Galveston, Guadalupe, McLennan, Medina, Milam, Parker and Webb. They voted 66,208 strong in 1890, and 80,905 strong in 1892. The increase is 22 per cent. The total vote of the entire state in 1890 was 343,279. Increasing this by 22 per cent gives about 415,000 as the probable total vote of the state at the late election.

Of this vote Hogg has about 190,000, Clark 120,000, and Nugent 100,000, leaving about 5000 scattering.

When the official count is made and announced, it will be found that this estimate will not be out of the way by more than a few hundred.

PEACE WITH HONOR.

It is not surprising, in view of the bitterness of the late contest for governor, that many partisans on either side should not only be willing but anxious to keep up the fight. On one side we hear the defiant threat to keep up an independent Democratic organization until the undoing of the present leadership of the regular organization is accomplished, and on the other the threat to outlaw all the leaders of the late independent movement. To-day the managers of Judge Clark's campaign are to meet at Waco to determine the future policy of their party. It is a critical moment in the political affairs of Texas. A turn in one direction means peace and unity of effort in the upbuilding of Texas. A turn in the other means violent political agitation for years, with uncertain results. If the breach in the party is to be healed within a decade now is the time to heal it. If it extends through another campaign the bridges will be burned down behind both sides. It is evident, however, that the essential step toward the harmonizing of the party must be the abandonment by one faction of the policy of proscription and by the other of the policy of revenge. Fraternity, if it is to exist, must include the leaders as well as the rank and file. Either element would be craven to make peace for the masses and leave the leaders to be slaughtered. Peace means a cessation of the war upon Governor Hogg and an end to the criminations directed at Judge Clark and his counselors. Surely enough has been said on both sides to satiate the anger of the most violent.

Let it be understood here that THE GAZETTE does not speak as a partisan nor as a suppliant. On the day that the rest of the independent movement was ascertained it passed—free of condition or restraint—to an editorial management which believes that no conditions have ever existed or are likely to exist which warrant the desertion of the banner of organized Democracy, and which supported in the late campaign, as it has ever supported, the regular Democratic nominees. It believed the reasons of the seceders from the Houston convention to be specious and their course hazardous to the best interests of the state. All must recognize, however, that there was a disagreement, and that Democrats whose honesty of purpose cannot be questioned were parties to the walk-out. We may question their judgment and we have abundant proof of the faultiness of their discretion, but we cannot condemn their courage, nor is it charitable to assail their design. Approximately, 50,000 Democrats voted for Judge Clark for governor. An army like that is not a trifling matter. Its marshaling on short notice certainly means something, though we confess we are yet in doubt as to the exact interpretation of the movement.

It is better for them, better for those who stood by the old colors and better for Texas that every man of those 50,000 should come back. There are those who say that Texas is to be benefitted by political contest and a reduction of the Democratic majority. They confuse our conditions with those of other states. Perhaps it is better for a state that two forces, each dominated by intelligence and representing equal intelligence and patriotism, should contend for supremacy in the state. But such a condition is not possible here. The opposition to Democracy, leaving Judge Nugent's forces entirely out of the question, represents, in the main, the most ignorant class in the state. It stands for nothing with certainty but good nature and its predilections and principles shift with the breeze. Such is the element which must give numbers to any army that overcomes the Democracy of Texas. The danger of making it the controlling power in the state, or of giving it the balance of power, is too obvious for discussion.

Political contest is well enough, and perhaps we have not had enough of it in the past. The place for it, however, is inside the Democratic primaries. The evils that cannot be remedied there, cannot be remedied anywhere else. When they have spoken every Democrat who is not satisfied should at least lapse to silence until the time comes for them to speak again.

Brethren let us have peace; peace with honor.

RIFLE BALLS.

Dr. W. P. Exum, Third party candidate for governor of North Carolina, was fined $7.50 for using profane language.

Gov. Pattison, of Pennsylvania, will likely succeed Gen. Crawford as president of the board of trustees of the Pennsylvania military academy, Chester.

Rheumatism not only laid Paderewski on his back until his doctors had been able to pile up a big bill but it caused him to cancel $45,000 of engagements.

"It is possible," said Senator Morrill, of Vermont in an interview since the election, "that we—the Republicans—have carried the principle of protection near to the extreme limit."

Caldwell borough, near Montclair, N. J., the birthplace of Mr. Cleveland, which casually gives a Republican majority, gave the ex-president twenty-six majority in a total poll of 200 votes.

The next distinguished visitor whom London expects is the Khan of Khiva. He will soon make a tour of Europe, accompanied by a high Russian official. He has never been west of Moscow hitherto.

Congressman Outhwaite of Ohio will introduce a bill in congress providing for the replacement of mutilated and soiled paper money. He will urge it on the ground that disease is spread by soiled money.

Miles Orton, proprietor of a circus which exhibited in Chattanooga, Tenn., on election day, bet an elephant against $500 that Harrison would be re-elected. A young Democrat named Divine won the elephant and later the big animal marched in the Democratic procession.

Henry Cabot Lodge is now practically assured of election this winter as Senator Dawes's successor. A canvass of the Republican members of the newly chosen Massachusetts legislature by "The Boston Herald," gives him 151 votes, while Mr. Crapo has only 14, and 26 remain in doubt.

A rumor was current in Cincinnati last week that Gov. McKinley was disgusted with politics, and would resign his office as soon as legislature meets. It was further asserted that he would remove to Pittsburg and take up Mr. Justice Shiras's law business. This latter story is discredited, however, in Pittsburg by a son of the new supreme court judge, and no authority is given for the other gossip.

AN OVERDOSE.
(Globe-Democrat.)

We were ready for the christening and of silliness, but didn't expect a cat-o'-nine-tails.

THE DREADFUL RESULT.
(Kansas City Star.)

The wages of cotton spinners of Rhode Island are to be increased and Henry C. Frick announces that the Carnegie company will erect new steel mills. Are these signs of the "Republican bow wows" predicted by the Mc-Kinleyites?

HARKER, TEXAS GENTLEMEN.
(Whitelaw Reid.)

"Democrats have been calamity howlers without cause or reason. Their example is one which true Republicans ought to be careful to avoid. It is sound political philosophy to accept defeat without pessimistic forebodings of impending disaster to the country."

A MIDDLE MAN.
(Houston Post.)

Governor Hogg has been endorsed by a great majority of the Democrats of Texas and that this majority represents the large middle class of people, able yet to control and withstand the stealthy, insidious grasp of the corporations and to repel the captious, fanatical advance of the communist.

THE FORCE BILL DID IT.
(Senator Teller, Rep.)

"The bill was vicious in principle and bad in detail. Its simple passage through the house cost us the loss of every Republican congressional district in the South save one, and West Virginia and Delaware in this election, and thousands of Republican votes in the doubtful states as it did in the congressional election of 1890. I have no doubt myself that the Force bill has been a greater factor in causing the defeat of the Republican party in the close states than the tariff question."

COUDERT'S VIEW.
(New York Herald.)

The distinguished lawyer, Mr. Frederic R. Coudert, of this city, is a staunch supporter of Mr. Cleveland. He says it would be a great mistake to call an extra session of congress to take precipitate action on the tariff, and gives the Democrats this sensible advice:

"I do not believe in calling an extra session except in time of urgent need. Manufacturers and business men generally have to fear that the tariff law will be altered before they have a chance to meet the change without financial disaster.

EDITOR WATTERSON SARCASTIC.
(Courier-Journal.)

If Mr. Cleveland is to make up his cabinet from those who stood most in his election why shouldn't this above fill the 16th Secretary of state, William McKinley, of Ohio; secretary of the treasury, Andrew Carnegie, of Pennsylvania; secretary of the interior, James G. Blaine, of Maine; secretary of the navy, Whitelaw Reid, of New York; secretary of war, Thomas H. Carter, of Montana; attorney-general, Thomas Brackett Reed, of Maine; postmaster-general, Chauncey Depew, of New York; secretary of agriculture, Charles F. Peck, of New York.

HOW IT WAS WON.
(Chicago Herald.)

According to Chairman Wall the Democratic campaign committee of Wisconsin two years ago, and has been conducted throughout on a purely educational basis. Between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 documents were distributed among the voters of the state, explaining the injustice and fallacy of protection, and speakers were sent from school district to school district on the same principle. The issue has justified the outlay. The farmers of the West had been voting for a few Eastern monopolists long enough, and it was time that some body told them better. Money thus expended could not have been devoted to a more righteous purpose.

A GREAT RAILWAY ENTERPRISE.
(Denver Republican.)

Mr. C. P. Huntington is reported to have said that he would extend the Mexican International road from Durango, its present terminus, to Mazatlan, on the Pacific coast of Mexico. It is also said that the harbor of Mazatlan will be improved by the Mexican government. The completion of these projects may make some very important traffic changes. Mazatlan is one of the best ports on the west coast of Mexico, and it is in a position to secure a large Pacific trade if enterprising men become interested in it. A large part of the business between the west coast of South America and the central and eastern parts of the United States could be made to pass through Mazatlan and over the Mexican International railway. This road crosses the International boundary at El Paso, Tex.

IN DOUBT.
(Waco Globe.)

Many of the Democrats who fought with Judge Clark are in doubt where they stand now or what course to decide upon for the future. It is really too early for any man this situated to make up his mind regarding the future, save in a general way. They must know they cannot endorse the politics and methods of Governor Hogg's administration, if the coming two years are to witness a repetition of what we had under Hogg. The Globe's advice is to lade a bit—stand right where you are until you can decide what you ought to and can do, in a political way, during the coming two years. You need not be either optimist or pessimist. You know you have been sore and will continue to be Democrats, and that over and above everything else you want to do the best and all you can for Texas. Hold your ground and do your own thinking. The duties and opportunities of the future will shape themselves in due time.

WILD GUESSING.
(Dallas News.)

It is safe to say that sixty per cent of the negro vote was cast for Hogg. That it was controlled through intimidation and fraud has been charged and has not been successfully denied. The vote of over 1000 in Harrison county, which is more than the total vote of the county two years ago, but only shows that Hogg got the Republican vote, but got many more by means not known to the Australian ballot. It is a notorious fact also that negro votes were bought in Harris and other counties. With these facts and figures staring them in the face, the friends of the governor will be wise to content themselves with the simple consolation that he is a majority candidate elected by the skin of his teeth. On the analysis shown in the foregoing figures at least one-half of Hogg's vote is Republican. The figures are not taken as actually representative of the total vote, but merely as revealing its phases in negro localities. Even from these the Republican support in the Populist support, which in some sections went to him in preference to Clark, the garrow stands not only as a minority officer, but as the representative of a minority faction of his party.

SOME REMARKABLE RIDES.
(Boston Transcript.)

In 1873 Col. Mackenzie rode his command into Mexico after Lipan and Kickapoo Indians, beat them in a sharp fight and returned across the border, making 145 miles in twenty-eight hours. In 1874 he again rode his command into Mexico after horse thieves, making there and back, eighty-five miles in fifteen hours. In 1880 Capt. Wood, with eight men, rode after an orderly sergeant who had decamped with the company fund, 140 miles in three-one hours. Men and horses were taken from the roster, not especially selected. Not a horse was injured. Five men with despatches rode from Fort Harney to Fort Warren, 140 miles, in twenty-two hours, and so little used up were their horses that they went back to Fort Harney in two days. In 1879 Capt. Dodge, with his troop, rode eighty miles in sixteen hours, and Lieut. Wood, with his troop, rode seventy miles in twelve hours; Capt. Peeler, with two troops, rode eighty-five miles in fourteen hours; Col. Henry, with four troops, rode 108 miles in thirty-three hours, being in the saddle twenty-two hours. One horse dropped dead at the end of the march, but there was not a sore backed horse in the regiment, and they started out again after a rest of twenty-four hours. The same command made a night march of fifty miles in ten hours. Our troop horses are simply troop horses, nothing more, and their carry rider, equipments, etc., about 245 pounds weight.

DENISON DAILY DOINGS.

Interesting Items Picked Up in the Gate City by the Gazette Reporter.

Denison, Tex., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Alex Lane, a well known cattle dealer, is here from Missouri on a mule north with eighteen of fine Jack stock.

E. J. Bowen, who a few days ago was arrested on a charge of forgery in this city, has been released from custody, as the grand jury failed to find a true bill against him.

J. G. Yeargain came down to-day from Mcalester, I. T., and reports very early weather. Yesterday a heavy wind storm prevailed there, tearing down several sheds and doing other damage.

Jean Avery, a 14-year-old lad who resides near Bacer's Ferry, was brought to Denison this morning by his mother to receive medical treatment. Yesterday while tearing preparations to go out hunting a 22 Robert rifle was discharged, the ball passing entirely through young Avery's right finger on the left hand. The accident is painful one, but will not necessitate the amputation of the finger.

George Jackson, who it was alleged killed Will Smith in Denison last February, had the trial in Sherman yesterday. The jury were out but a few hours when they rendered a verdict of acquittal. Jackson was then discharged. He is now in this city where he has a saloon.

R. L. Blanton, a miner of Castgate, I. T., was here to-day and says that the daily output of the coal mines there is now greater than ever before. A large force of men are kept busy at work, owing to the cold weather orders are coming in fast. Mr. Blanton had his right eye injured a few days since and came down to receive treatment from Dr. Cowan.

Deputy Sheriff C. C. Bowman, of Mitchell county, passed through Denison to-day en route home. He had been to Mobeetie, I. T., where he arrested Abe Garland, colored, who is wanted for stealing cattle there years ago. Garland, on his arrest and full knowledge of the charges against him, waived examination and was remanded to jail. He was an old resident of the county until a few days ago, when a letter was received from him to his wife, which resulted in his arrest.

Colonel T. J. Goree, of the Texas, will seek the nomination of Governor Hogg for attorney general of Texas before the next democratic convention. If the coming two years are to witness a repetition of what we had under Hogg, the Globe's advice is to lade a bit—stand right where you are until you can decide what you ought to and can do, in a political way, during the coming two years. You need not be either optimist or pessimist. You know you have been sore and will continue to be Democrats, and that over and above everything else you want to do the best and all you can for Texas. FIRE AT DOLD CITY.

Dold City, Tex., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—The residence of G. W. Farr burned last evening. All household articles were saved from the fire, but were badly damaged by the careless, excited helpers. Loss $2,0. No insurance.

AN ORDINANCE TO ABOLISH THE RESERVATION.

For Sending An Obscene Letter Through the Mail—A Novel Plan to Select a Postmaster—Other News Notes.

Waco, Tex., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Charley Janskey was arrested last night and placed in the county jail, charged with sending an obscene letter through the mails. Jim Strubail was the recipient of the letter, and upon its receipt placed it in the hands of United States Commissioner J. H. Hicks, with the result above stated. In default of $200 bond he went to jail, but will have a preliminary hearing to-morrow.

As to who will be postmaster at this place under the Cleveland administration, continues to be a mater of great interest, and daily new aspirants for the office are springing up. A novel plan to decide the matter is being discussed and will probably be adopted. It is this: Let all the candidates for the office meet and select election officers, set a day for the election and let the people of the city decide by vote who they prefer for postmaster, the candidates to share equally the cost. This method would be just to all, and the man securing the office would be the choice of the patrons of the office.

The city council met in regular session last night. The report of City Physician Caldwell showed twenty-eight deaths for the month of October, and thirty-two births. The mayor was authorized to advertise for bids for the construction of a garbage furnace of seventy-five cubic yards capacity.

The most important matter, however, that came before the council was the ordinance abolishing the reservation. The reservation is composed of three or four blocks on the river, set aside for the scarlet women, and to which place they were confined by law, thus preventing them from spreading over the city. It is well policed and as orderly as such places can be kept. Those who oppose the reservation say they object to the city licensing them and becoming partners in their crime. The abolishing the reservation came up for its third reading last night and was passed by one vote. It is understood, however, that Mayor McCulloch will veto the ordinance before the next council meeting.

Since the election talk of a new bridge is being revived, and in conversation with a gentleman who is in a position to know, this correspondent yesterday learned that it is the intention of the Texas Central to cross the Brazos river and come into the city proper. It is now suggested that the county, the city the street car companies, and the Texas Central railway all unite and build a bridge large enough to accommodate all. The gentleman stated that the Central railroad would cross the river, and thought they would favorably consider a proposition of this kind.

Mr. James M. LITTLE GIRL BURNED.

Decatur, Tex., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Ocella, the 5-year old daughter of W. H. Warren of this city, was badly burned this morning while playing near a fire in the yard.

It seems that some of the family had built a small fire in the yard and the little girl was playing near it, when her clothing took fire and before assistance could be rendered, she was badly injured. Her mother and brother got to her as early as possible and succeeded in stomping the flames, but not until after the fire had done its work. The child's mother was pretty badly burned in her effort to save her child.

The child is resting easy now and hopes are entertained that the burns will not be so serious as was at first anticipated.
