FOUGHT BETWEEN THE FRENCH AND THE MOORS.

Story of the Unequal Combat as Narrated by Yaveck, Who with a Gyppo Got Within the Moorish Camp.

The narrator, Karl Yaveck, and a gypsy woman, Kathol, have been shipwrecked on the west coast of Africa and after wandering in the desert have sought refuge in an uninhabited castle.

On the morning of the sixth day we saw a long winding caravan coming up from the southwest.

Kathol approached a suffering officer and with water and green leaves dressed his wounds.

As I rode on, clinging to the strange beast and rocked by his motions like a boat in the breakers.

UNABLE TO GET ANYTHING OUT OF HIM.

He thrust a knife into his back, cutting and wrenching three of his ribs loose from the backbone, then cut his throat from ear to ear and crushed in his skull over each eye with some blunt instrument, probably the butt end of a pistol.

A PRETTY LEGEND.

STORY OF THE BEAUTIFUL WATER LILY.

Its Origin as Told by the Saracens Indians—Asia, the Bud of the Tribe and Her Vow is the Name of Her Creed.

What's in a name? It all depends. If you call one of the beautiful clear lakes of the Catskills, "Tupper's Lake," as it is now called, there is nothing in its name; but when the Indians lived on its shores and fished upon its waters there was much in its name, for because of its beauty and its many inlets, they called it the "Lake of the Clustered Stars."

On looking behind him, nothing could exceed the admiration of the sheik on beholding DuBois, with his left hand holding Isambard by the beard across a gun until, with his right hand, he had slain Yavho, both of whom were servants of his household.

The chevalier dealt about him so lightly as lightning; three times around his head, made a pass at the breast of the Frenchman; at the same time his charger leaped the gun and fell dead on the ground, the sword of the Frenchman having passed through the entire length of the horse's belly.

Kathol approached a suffering officer and with water and green leaves dressed his wounds.

As I rode on, clinging to the strange beast and rocked by his motions like a boat in the breakers.
