Important to Members of L. S. Ross Chapter U. D. C.

As the program for February is mostly in form of a discussion, I deem it necessary to insert it in the Morning Eagle so that each member may have an opportunity of preparing some information on the subject to give out at the next meeting. Some musical selections will be added to the program later and the place of meeting will be announced later.

 2. Music—Selected.

3. History of Slavery. Points to be emphasized: Lawful existence of slavery throughout the world when it was introduced into Virginia in 1619—Freedom of Serfs in Russia, 1861; Slavery abolished in the District of Columbia, April, 1862, one year after the war began between the North and South; Slavery was in force in the 13 original colonies when these formed the Union of the States and was protected by the Constitution. Growth of the idea of freedom for all men and its prevalence in the South would here under progressive conditions have prevailed. Slavery was the burning question of the hour for 40 years before it ended in a great war, followed by general emancipation. "Sectional," as it is called, is fostered by wrong teachings to the children of the North that the South was fighting to force slavery on the people of the North and that the South alone was responsible for slavery and all the evils that follow. The truth is, that economic and climatic conditions congregated these people in the South and the people who owned these people under the law had inherited the right under the Constitution, and to immediately turn over all on earth a minority possessed to a majority of voters in a Republic could only be settled by the force of arms—which was done when the South was overthrown by the North, April, 1865.

4. Reading—Paper by Walter L. Fleming, Professor of History, Louisiana University, Baton Rouge. "Jefferson Davis—The Negro and the Negro Problem."

Lengthening of Human Life in This Country One-third.

I wish to submit for publication in the Eagle some facts culled from an article in "American Health," the official organ of the American Health League.

The article is an epitome of Prof. Irving Fisher's report as a member of the National Conservation Commission. Eighteen medical experts aided in the preparation of his report. His conclusion is startling, "that the prevention, even in a moderate degree, of the preventable diseases, would lengthen human life in this country fully one-third and possibly much more."

Mortality rate varies greatly at different times and places. In India the average duration of life is less than twenty-five years, as compared with fifty-two for Sweden. In Europe statistics show that the average duration of human life has increased in three and one half centuries from 20 to 40 years and that it is now increasing faster than ever. During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the average increased nearly eight years, from 1800 to 1850 more than four years, and from 1850 to 1900 more than eight years. During the latter half of the nineteenth century in Prussia, where medical and sanitary science has reached its highest development the average length of human life was lengthened thirteen and one-half years. In this country the average is lengthening fourteen years per century.

Of 150,000 deaths each year from tuberculosis more than three-fourths are unnecessary. More than four-fifths of the deaths and illness from typhoid fever could be avoided, while the sanitary measures which will prevent one death from typhoid will prevent two or three deaths from other diseases.

Pure water, pure milk and pure air, if used throughout the nation, would alone lengthen life by an average of eight years. There are at all times about three million people in the United States seriously ill, of whom 500,000 are consumptives. Most of this illness is preventable. The foregoing figures are based merely on knowledge already gained and tested.

The average duration of human life in this country is now forty-five years—it could easily be extended to sixty years. The financial gain in thus prolonging life would be immense. The gain to morality in obedience to known laws of health would be incalculable. The outlook for a vast improvement in health conditions is encouraging indeed.

Temple's Telegram.

The presentation of the famous farce comedy, "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" by a company of exceptional merit which is announced for tonight at the opera house, promises to be the event of the season, so far as comedies are concerned. The comedy is a brilliant one, the joint work of Frank Wyatt and William Morris, and is brimming over with the most amusing sayings and situations, by reason of which the play easily comes first in the foremost ranks of clean, clever farces of which there are none too many today.

There are forty-six manufacturers of sewing machines in America.

How many can you name? How many did you ever hear of? One name comes to the mind of every woman immediately—The Singer—and there is a very good reason.
 The Singer company makes and sells as many machines in each year as all the other forty-five combined.
