At last the skating rink has reached Brownsville, and tonight at the Delicias our people will be given an opportunity to show just how little they know about manipulating wheels on the feet. They may have wheels in their heads and push along through life with little trouble, but with rollers under them there is a difference and it is easier to hit the floor with a dull thud with the feet pointing toward the ceiling, than to preserve your balance and sail gracefully around the room, but you will soon learn, and the pleasure will crowd from the mind all mishaps incident to learning to skate.

This morning a HERALD man interviewed J. S. Bilby, of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Surveying corps, which has been at work some time in the vicinity of Point Isabel, on the nature of the work and its object. Mr. Bilby says the work is known as the 98th meridian triangulation, and the corps had been measuring a base line connecting with an old coast line triangulation made by Maj. Halter some thirty years ago. This 98th meridian is geodetic work to determine the curvature of the earth, and extends from Point Isabel to Canada where the Canadian government takes up the work north, and the Mexican government takes up the work south. The practical use to which this work is put is to determine geographical positions. The stations are so marked that they may be found at any time. These markings are either of stone or concrete, usually the latter. There are surface marks and also subsurface marks for the guidance of the future workers in this line. This work has been completed, and the outfits are to be sold as there is no further use for them.

COTTON SPINNERS HERE.

Are Seeking Information on the Growing and Handling of the Fleecy Staple in America.

The six English spinners who are touring America with the view of thoroughly acquainting themselves with American methods of growing and handling cotton arrived in Brownsville yesterday. The personnel of the party is H. W. McAlister of Oldham, Eng; George Moores of Manchester, W. J. Orr of Rockdale, Henry P. Greg of Manchester, Thomas D. Barlow of Manchester, and G. Leonard Boiden of Manchester. Mr. McAlister is chairman of the party and Mr. Moore is secretary. Accompanying them are: J. R. Maccoll of Providence, R. L., president of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and H. D. Martin, a prominent cotton man of Paris, Tex.

Speaking of the visitors and the object of their trip the San Antonio Express says:

Asked if he did not think it would be wiser from a financial point of view for English spinners to invest in lands in Texas, where it is positively known that cotton can be grown, than to continue the experiments of sinking money in Africa in the endeavor to reclaim lands and adapt them to cotton culture, Mr. McAlister, chairman of the group, said:

"I see only this advantage, that in this country it is certain that cotton can be grown, while in some of the British possessions it is an experiment. But the English are not asleep. Like Americans, they have their eyes open to make money, whether it be planting cotton in Texas or in the British possession. We have been to Washington and have made inquiry about your alien laws, and we are going again. We wish to know if there is any difficulty about us holding the land and upon what conditions we can hold it. This phase we are carefully considering."

The party left at a very early hour this morning on the return trip.
