The New York Sun says it is all nonsense about the talk that Massachusetts will go Democratic this fall.

Because the New York Sun has come out boldly for Hayard, knowing ones say it stings him, and he has gone to meet Holman.

The indications are that the free traders of the Democratic party will be very severely ignored at the Chicago convention.

There is every indication now that the crops this season throughout Texas will be plentiful, and already the effect is apparent in business circles.

In the event the national Democratic convention adopt a revenue reform platform, the Nashville American says Tennessee will vote for Blaine and Logan.

A CANTON (530 bushels) of Texas wheat shipped from Waco by Mr. J. H. Crider was sold at public sale on change in St. Louis on Friday to E. O. Starnard & Co. for $1.21 per bushel.

Handful and his 40 deserters and traitors will be in Chicago in good time for the Democratic circus on July 8, and the horizontal reduction figures will meet with another set back.

The star-eyed Goddess of Reform isn't occupying a very prominent position in the scramble now going on in the Democratic ranks for first position at Chicago. It is to be hoped that Waterston hasn't lost his grip.

The grand jury of New York seems to be getting in its work upon Messrs. Ward, Fish and Koo, and it marks a new era in the favor of justice that men who steal millions are to be treated like the commonest of thieves.

CONGRESSMAN SCHULTZ, in one of his speeches, uttered this vigorous sentiment: "Nine-tenths of my constituents for the past 12 years have been entertained with a tropical fertility of promises, and a Sahara sterility of performance, by the Government engineers."

MR. E. F. YEAGER, editor of the Wabash Enterprise, is a candidate for Legislative honors. The Enterprise is a successful and representative paper, and Mr. Yeager will prove a practical law maker, and the Lounsbury trust will be elected by a handsome majority.

"It may also be put down as a certainty," observes the Brethren Banner, "that the above of Blaine and his record will hardly bring success to the Democrats. We must have a man with an irreproachable record and a platform of principles that will win with the masses."

A MEMBER of the Confederate cabinet is quoted as objecting strongly to Hayard's nomination, and said: "The Republicans can swallow Blaine, and probably might vote for him, but Blaine would vote for the girl of a soldier, as did the rest of us, and he followed his flag. Hayard is in the enemy's country, and that is the difference. It will not do."

THERE is some significance in Mr. Butler's column of so-called letter of acceptance of the Greenback nomination in which the only words showing his acceptance are, "upon this contestation I am with you." Whole families would accept nominations in that manner, and it is quite possible Benjamin had his old self upon the Democratic convention.

The New York Democrats were determined not to take any chances, and completely dodged the tariff question in their platform, while the Louisiana Democrats straddle the question by saying they favor "a tariff for revenue limited to the necessities of the government and consequently ad valorem, and so adjusted in application as to prevent unequal burdens, encourage production and industries at home, and afford just compensation to labor, but not to create and foster monopolies." This plank should be called the great American "what is it."

Ever the most sanguine of Democrats are writing and bustling about the chances of Mr. Hayard as the Democratic nominee, and admit that his

Dover speech puts him in the defensive. Cleveland being simply an accident in politics, is almost unknown, while Flower has only his barrel in recognition of the most obscure of whom could have easily dethroned Mr. Blaine last week, are now undergoing some treatment for infirmity on local or other issues, leaving the Presidency, which, according to the statements of the Democratic papers of a few days ago, was then in their hands, as far off as it will be in November.

The New York Tribune says: "It does not seem timely to discuss the qualifications of Mr. Cleveland very minutely at present. That he was a citizen of no consideration or influence a short time ago, that he made a reasonably good record as Mayor of Buffalo, was by accident elected Governor with a phenomenal majority, and has done some good things in that office, all the world knows. If the Democratic party thinks these sufficient reasons for nominating him to the Presidency of the United States we shall have ample time to discuss the issues this presidential year, and it is appropriate to mark that he takes a prominent position, and because people know and approve his opinions, but because people do not know anything about his opinions on questions of National policy or whether he has any."

In an article on the recent "spat" between Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, and Senator Brown, of Georgia, in the Washington Critic says: "Without passing on the merits of the attack, the Critic feels impelled to say that such gross and unparliamentary language as that used by the two distinguished Senators on the floor of the Senate yesterday does not comport with the stand and dignified body that the United States Senate is supposed to be. It remains to be seen whether and in what manner the American people have for the most dignified body of deliberative men in the world. If the whole matter were expunged from the Record, so that future generations would be deprived of an official account of it and to show to those who come after us that if a Senator did so far forget himself as to deal in such language, his brother Senators did not allow it to go down to posterity."

In reply to the statement that the Panama canal will be opened in 1898, a Parisian correspondent says: "To say that the canal will be opened in 1898 is a piece of pure imagination, to use the mildest word possible in our vocabulary. To-day, after three and a half year's work, only one-thirtieth of the work has been done, and that according to their own showing. They claim to have taken out 4,000,000 cubic meters of earth along the axis of the canal, and admit that 120,000,000 more must be removed. In the three and a half years they have expended on the canal alone, according to their books here, 16,000,000 francs—say 120,000,000 United States gold. To return to the work completed, about one-twentieth of the dredging has been done, and some of it has been done two or three times over. Of the earth works, say one-fourth has been finished, but of this much will have to be done over, as the rains wash it right back again. Roughly, one-thirtieth has been done, or 1,000 cubic meters all told. One of the greatest obstacles to the rapid completion of the canal is the red tides of French officials. The canal is offered to death, for there are nearly 300 officers of various grades."

"The Salvation Army," says the Globe-Democrat, "has done so much to render its very name a reproach among decent people that it is not surprising to find it involved in still further notoriety of an unenviable kind. For a long time the leader of these fanatics was believed to be profiting by the ignorance and gullibility of his followers, and from time to time the publication of facts in reference to the fortune he was currently supposed to be heaping up shed further light on his peculiar methods and the objects he had in view. Now he is said to be negotiating for the purchase of an estate in Wales for the purpose of selling from the business of revitalizing and resting on his laurels. As all moneys of the English association have been invested in his name and all property of the band is in his hands, there is nothing remarkable about his determination. The fanatics who have been swindled will naturally feel somewhat sore over the defection of their leader, but as they belong to a class of people who are always waiting for somebody to come and swindle them, they have the somewhat dubious consolation of knowing that he might as well have their money as anybody."

Electro-Monoprotic Medicines. Are a most potent benefit to the sick people. The wonderful skill of many physicians to recognize a disease shall be unimpaired, but in millions of cases they have failed, using such poison-like, destroyable remedies (7) and declaring great many diseases as incurable. Our remedies don't know such a sickness if taken before the body is in a dying condition. Every sick person should make a trial because it never fails to cure the severest diseases of men, women, children (not infants), plagues, diseases of skin, insanity (not mad), cholera, cholera, scrofula, syphilis, cancer of the bones, etc., etc. Treatment of children exceedingly easy. Remember that these medicines are adopted by the authorities of the Santa Rosa Hospital. There is no risk in taking them. It is the greatest discovery in the medical line since creation of the world. San Antonio reference and testimonials given. Call on J. W. DAVIS, Ph.D., No. 232 E. St. Elect. Gen. Depot for Texas and Gulf States. 17-17.
