A General Lot of Squibs

Politics Superior to Hunger. City Solicitor Bruce of Cleveland once had an opportunity of realizing the supremacy of politics even over hunger.

He was dining one evening at his home when the bell rang. His servant went to the door and returned with the message that a hungry man solicited the wherewithal to curb a ravenous appetite.

Armed with the necessities of life the servant returned to the waiting man and casually mentioned that Mr. Bruce said to give the food to him.

"Who did you say?" asked the man in a tone audible to Mr. Bruce in the dining room.

"I said Mr. Bruce," replied the servant.

"Not Mr. Bruce, the Democrat?"

"I think he is a Democrat," was the servant's answer.

"Well," said the hungry man, throwing down the box, "I don't want this, I wouldn't take anything from a Democrat if I had to starve, and you can tell him so. I am a Republican."—Cleveland Leader.

TAR AND FEATHERS LONG AGO.

Ordered by Richard Coeur de Lion as Punishment for Theft.

We learn from the annals of the historian Hoveden, who was court chaplain to Henry III, that the old custom of tarring and feathering is one that dates back to the time of Richard the Lion Hearted.

He tells us that this renowned king, on setting out for the third crusade, made this enactment among others, for his fleet:

A robber who shall be convicted of theft shall have his head cropped after the fashion of a champion, and his long pits shall be poured thereon, and the feathers of a cushion shall be shaken out on him, so that he may be known, and at the first land at which the ship shall touch he shall be set on shore.

This, then, is one of several customs which has been classed commonly as "American," while in truth, it originated with us, and was imported by them from Europe.—Tit Bits, London.

Experiments With Weak Children.

Interesting experiments are in progress at Berlin and Charlottenburg, Germany, with physically weak children and others for whom fresh air is regarded as a necessity. These experiments are attracting attention and are receiving notice from the English papers.

Favorite Russian Dishes.

Russians are past masters in the art of preserving vegetables and fruits, as, on account of the severe winters, it is necessary for them to lay in great stores.

Traveling Fishes.

"In South America," said the returned traveler, "there is a peculiar species of fish which is provided with a set of embryo limbs on which it is at times able to hop across the fields, and even to climb trees. I believe this is the only instance known of fishes that can travel overland."

Why "Mike" Kelley Laughed.

Baseball cranks will all remember with pleasure the late "Mike" Kelley, the star attraction of the famous Boston, then the champions of the National league. The Bostonians were playing in a western city, and had just returned to their hotel after the game, and the members of the team were separating and going to their rooms, while Kelley headed for the bathroom to take his regular "rub-down."

A few minutes later one of the other players on the team, while passing down the corridor, heard Kelley's well-known laugh inside the bathroom, and stopped at the door and asked Kelley what the joke was.

PEARLS "DIE" WHEN NOT WORN.

Precious Stone Rapidly Loses Luster if Locked Up.

That pearls "die" in obscurity and retain their luster and value when worn frequently is a fact that has always to be borne in mind by the owners of jewels.

The statement that an historical pearl necklace in the Louvre originally worth $20,000 is rapidly depreciating did not in the least surprise the manager of a well-known firm of jewelers.

"Pearls," he said, "must be worn frequently to preserve them. If you take a pearl necklace and lock it away you will find that in the course of years the pearls become dull and lose the sheen that makes them so valuable. Heirlooms which have been carefully treasured will sometimes be found to have deteriorated in this way. They lose their glow and in some instances become almost black. Pearl necklaces never keep so well as when they are constantly on the necks of their owners."

It has been suggested that personal influences have something to do with the matter, but I think it is more likely that the effect is due to light and air. You can wear pearls practically as long as you like, certainly for fifty years, and they would give no indication of change, and you might look pearls up and perhaps in twenty years they would show signs of 'dying.' There are, however, ways of resuscitating pearls, but the fact that they 'die' is quite clear."

A Neighborhood Affair.

"Yes, the trouble began over the chickens. The chickens belonged to Biffers' next door neighbor, and the day one of them disappeared the Biffers had chicken for dinner."

"And the neighbor found it out?"

"Yes, with Biffers' assistance. He's so foolishly soft-hearted that he insisted on carrying over to the neighbor a nice plateful of the chicken and the neighbor wasn't grateful a bit. On the contrary, he got hot and sassed Biffers and Biffers said that the neighbor was no Christian. If he was he would know that it wasn't the gift itself that should be considered but the spirit that prompted it. And the neighbor said that if he knew what a tainted gift was it was that stolen chicken. And Biffers fired up and declared that the chicken wasn't tainted—he guessed he knew what a tainted chicken was. And the next day the neighbor turned the hose on Biffers' throw a dead cat over the fence into his neighbor's yard, and it hit his neighbor—who was looking through a loophole—and the next day when Biffers and the neighbor met in front of O'Hagan's corner grocery they clinched—and now the whole thing is in the courts."—Chicago News

GREAT PREACHER'S FINE TACT.

Henry Ward Beecher Drew Lesson From Humorous Incident.

A very little girl was taken by her parents to a prayer meeting at the South church presided over by Mr. Beecher. In giving out a hymn Mr. Beecher requested every person present who could sing to do so.

The response not having been sufficiently hearty during the first song Mr. Beecher before the second again exhorted all to sing.

"Come, brethren, if you have the grace of God in your hearts, let P come out in your voices. Sing! All together now! Sing!"

The little girl took this as personal appeal and hastily bethought herself of the song dearest to her heart; the cry of a fruit vender who often brought fruit to her home. Accordingly, when the verse began she let forth her voice in a shrill cry of "Straw-berries! Straw-berries! Straw-berries!" The congregation faltered, stopped and laughed, but Mr. Beecher not at all disconcerted, called out, "That's right, little girl. That's right. If you can't praise God in anything but strawberries, then sing strawberries."

Burns' Life Told in Few Words.

"The Right Honorable John," as Minister John Burns is now called by his British friends, wrote a characteristic account of himself for the English "Who's Who." Referring to his education he says: "Battered and at night schools and still learning. Came into the world with a struggle, struggling, now and prospects of continuing it."
