Mother Spoiled It All. While I was still in school, I attended an evening party at the home of one of my girl friends, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal. When it was time to go, there were two fellows who wanted to take me home. I was very much flattered and accepted them both. One of the boys appealed to me strongly and I imagined myself deeply in love with him. But, as it was getting late, and my folks were worrying about me, my mother set out to meet me. When she saw me with a fellow on each arm, she was scandalized and started to scold, while the boys, very much frightened, ran away.

Bear Dream Not Alarming. To dream you see a bear signifies you have a rich enemy, but not cunning. To be attacked by a bear denotes persecution, which you will overthrow when it seems most hopeless.

SWEET-HEARTS Have we longed for the days of the dewy, filled eyes, The love-light of purity, as fair as the skies Unbroken by cloudlet—the pure rippling stream, A laughingly created by golden sun-beam?

Yes—we have longed for those days once again, As happy we wandered o'er grassland and fen, The moon-light to glisten through wavelets of hair, The old lovers' lane as known everywhere. When by sorrow bereft of all we hold dear, Look o'er to that day—night never known there; Knowing only too well by experience gained, That day is never in child-hood attained.

And then as the clouds ever seem to remain, Let's look to the sun if that peace we'd attain, As we look to the days so full of sunshine, Our sweethearts the purity existent in mind. Let the mind, let us mind—it is found there within, The sweetheart of youth, beckoning hand we would win, Evermore with the angels in garments sublime The whitening purity to be yours and be mine.

CHARELES RAY'S MOTTO

Star a Big Hit in Comedy, "Alarm Clock Andy."

His favorite motto was "he who hesitates is lost." Yet even in his speech he failed to heed its warning for he stuttered so that you could hardly understand him. "He" is Charles Ray in his latest Thomas H. Ince picture, "Alarm Clock Andy," which will be the attraction at the Oak Theatre today.

As Andy Gray, salesman for a motor truck firm, the youthful star it too bashful to get within gunshot of a prospect. He soon discovers that one of the reasons why he isn't "getting by" is because Blinker, the so-called "star salesman" of his outfit, whom he has picked as a shining example for himself, is really a bluffer. So Andy gets busy on his own account and, aided by a pretty girl, puts over a big deal that makes the future look all rosy for him.

She Meant Well.

To say the fitting thing in acknowledgment of a favor is something of a tax on the conversational powers of most people; when the recipient is unfamiliar with the conventional phrases used or gets confused in using them, comical situations occur, as in this instance reported in Harper's Magazine. Two sisters of a deceased cook called to acknowledge the flowers sent by the family. "We came to thank you for those beautiful flowers that you sent for sister," said the elder woman; and then, with a little stutter, she added, "and we hope soon to be able to return the favor."—From the Outlook.

This "Earth" Largely Water.

A trifle more than seven-tenths of the surface of the globe is covered by the waters of the oceans. The total area covered by the latter exceeds the total area of the lands of the world by 83,000,000 square miles. Reckoned in terms of quantity, the oceans contain 824 cubic miles of fluid, or 14 times the bulk of all the lands in the world above sea level.

"THE LONG, LONG TRAIL"

These few verses are dedicated in loving respect to that band of noble women who are keeping green the memories and ideals of another generation. The Cache County Daughters of the Utah Pioneers. The day is warm And the sunlight filters across my chair I am trying to finish some letters Needing my personal care But I find my pen suspended I can't think what I want to say And I push my papers from me I can't work this holiday. I look from my office window Above the city street And through the smoke of the chimneys I see a vision sweet Again I hear My mother's voice Telling that dear old tale The Story of the Pioneers Along the Long, Long Trail. I forgot the cares of business And my eyes grow dim with tears Not in sorrow but in memory Of those far departed years. I have heard the past is dead How untrue, why it can be Brought before us every day In the dreams of memory; And we live the old days over Picking up the broken strands Robbed of bitterness and sharpness By times all healing hand; And I give this hour to memory Toss aside my bills of sale And I'll hear again my mother Tell once more the long, long trail.

O again I see the pastures Where as a boy I roamed And the white washed adobe cottage My own dear childhoods home. I can see the currant bushes And the willows and the swing And my mother there a rocking And sewing as she sings. O the sweetness and the glory That again comes back to me If those golden happy hours Gathered round my mothers knee; When the twilight shadows deepened And the moon came up so pale Gathered there with up turned faces Listened to the Long, Long trail.

She told us of her child hood And our thoughts were in a whirl That our own grown up mother Had been a little girl; She told us of her happiness When there came a baby boy And all the little things of life In that town in Illinois, She told of that fair far city In the curve of a river deep Of stores and churches and houses Of gardens of flower sweet, Its marts of trade so busy Its streets so straight and true, And with in its midst a temple Crowned the city of Nauvoo.

Then came the days of terror When mob rule had its reign And the saints were driven from their homes Never to see them again, They crept away to the river banks With others of their kind But in the hurry of leaving Mothers doll was left behind, Only a little token But the love of her childish heart How many hearts were broken And lives were torn apart. But with their magnificent leader And faith that would never fail They began the first lapse of the journey, Along the long, long trail.

Then came the call to arms! What heartbrake and anguish then The government demanded a Battalion of five hundred men; Did they turn aside from that duty No though it seemed so hard They gave allegiance to their country And put their faith in the Lord. And the women stood beside them Valiant mothers of the race And they sent their men to war With a smile upon their face. Sick and weary and hungry They faltered but did not fail, And five hundred men marched away Down the long, long trail.

And when sorrow overtakes them 'Tis the same the whole life long Down the onward sits, a failure But the pioneer goes on. Thus they gathered wagons, oxen in a prairie schooner train And with only God to guide them Started on across the plains. But their faith gave them fresh courage, Helped them fight their battles through And they set their faces west ward On the long road from Nauvoo. And if their hearts were heavy

They could hear the old west hail The land of milk and honey Beyond the long, long trail,

And when the evening shadows Drew across the setting sun And the head teamster halted And the long days march was done Close beside the running water They would pitch the camp for night In the circle of the wagons Shown the campfires cheery light 'Tis the same the whole world over When ever hearts are young And romance steals along the rays Of life fair rising sun, When youth is youth and stars above Then all the worlds for sale And many a youth pledged his true love Going down the long, long trail.

Can't you see with me in fancy That great trackless desert land And the little line of wagons coming on, Across the sand? Can't you feel the awe and wonder Of the thunder against the sky As they drew aside and waited while The buffalo herd went by God gave them strength to bear their lot

He made them strong and brave, But many a bitter tear was shed Beside a new made grave. But this my friends was a pilgrimage As pure as the quest of the holy grail And the fires of faith were kept a-glow Along the long, long trail.

One by one the miles slipped past them Day by day they plodded on Building bridges, fording rivers From day break to set of sun Stalwart men and clear eyed women Hearts aflame with God own fire Carried on their daily burdens, To the land of hearts desire, How they suffered how they struggled But their spirits did not fail And they came at last rejoicing To the end of the long, long trail.

Hear is a splendid city Where they saw only a desolate plain Here is a world of luxury Where they toiled in sorrow and pain, Here stretch the fertile fields Blossoming fair as a rose Laced by the sparkling streams Fed with eternal snows. In the midst of the rocky mountains They bullded this empire fair A place of clean bright cities, With wide straight thoroughfares All this they left as a heritage To them we say All Hail God bless the pioneers today, Who came the long, long trail.

TOM MIX DUE IN NEW PICTURE "HANDS OFF"

Tom Mix, his trusty "six" his lariat and his famous horse will be the feature attraction at the Lyric Theatre today in "Hands Off" which report says is one of the breeziest action pictures that this William Fox western star has appeared in. It is a story of Texas from a novel by William McLeod Raine and was directed by George E. Marshall.

From the time Mix tosses his hat into the picture while watching a duel between two tarantulas on the Texas sands until the final fadeout, the picture is packed with speedy drama.

Mix takes the part of a roving cow puncher who drops into the fighting frontier town of Tascosa in time to become mixed up in a number of stirring adventures including a gang fight, a bank robbery, an attempted lynching, a murder and a stampede of horses—quite enough to keep even him busy.

Pauline Cudley, though only sixteen years old, is Mix's leading woman, and has a very charming part in Ramona a ranchman's daughter.

Healthy Calling

Of eight English clergymen whose deaths were recorded in one week a short time ago, the ages aggregated 590 years, the oldest being ninety-two and the youngest fifty-seven, writes a correspondent. This high average of just under seventy-four years is either an uncommon record or attests the longevity of the "cloth."

Trees Loaded With Fruit.

Trees loaded with fruit are bent down; the clouds when charged with fresh rain hang down near the earth; even so good men are not uplifted through prosperity. Such is the natural character of the liberal.—Bhartrihari.
