FUNERAL OF EDITH WELER

The funeral of the late Edith Weller was held yesterday morning at the family residence, No. 676 South Main street.

Among the pieces were a beautiful bouquet from the Utah World's Fair commission, of which Miss Weller was private secretary.

The pall bearers were all members of the Hoyle club and intimate friends of the deceased, Messrs. Edgar Hills, Walter C. Conrad, W. D. Riter, Hugh Douglas, H. J. Young and Louis Wells.

A quartette composed of Miss Hestie Edwards, Miss Nellie Halliday, Mr. H. Whitney and Mr. J. D. Whitney rendered several selections, while Karl Schindler and Miss Bernhard gave exquisite solos.

The World's Fair commission was represented by Governor Wells, Commissioner Nelson A. Emspey, Secretary E. A. McDaniel, Mr. Young and others.

Mr. Owen Woodruff offered prayer, after which Bishop Sperry made a brief address and called upon Hon. W. H. Riter, that gentleman spoke of his long and intimate acquaintance with Miss Weller and the family, and paid a touching tribute to her worth.

Bishop Nelson A. Emspey related his associations with Miss Weller at the World's Fair, her ambition, faithfulness and the nobility of her character.

The principal address was delivered by Elder John Nicholson, whose discourse was full of consolation for the bereaved ones.

Judge Colburn was the last speaker. He represented the friends of the deceased, and spoke as follows, closing with Dr. Holmes' beautiful poem, "Under the Violets," which was written on a card bound with violets, and placed upon the casket.

To the part so more dead faces Come no new ones in their places Everywhere the dead eyes meet us In the evening glows they greet us

When I was told that I might be one of these called upon to say for comfort to the bereaved ones, I thought that if it were true, as some believe, that the spirit lives on in the mortal tenement for a time after it leaves its journey to the stars, it would be pleasant to have a tribute to the dead, in which love and tears have paid to her.

Edith Weller, she passed away and peace that suffering, she passed away and peace have come to bid her good bye, at the portals of the tomb with flowers, remembrance and affection, she passed on to the tender hand of sorrow to her household.

Her hands are cold her face is white Her hair no longer pulses come and go Her eyes are shut to life and light To the white vault, open on snow And lay her where the violets blow

Do not beneath a grove of stone To plead for tears with alien eyes A slender cross of wood alone Shall say that here a maiden lies In peace beneath the peaceful skies

And gray old trees at huge of limb Shall wheel their circling shadows round To make the sunbeams bright and dim That drink the greenness from the ground And drop their dead leaves on the mound

When one thus boughs the squirrels run And through their leaves the robins call, And opening in the autumn sun, The acorns and the chestnuts fall, Doubt not that she will bid them all

For her morning show shall sing To the morn'g from the beam's high, And every minstrel voice of spring Shall thrills beneath the April sky Shall greet her with its earliest cry

When turning round their dial track, Eastward the lengthening shadows pass, Her little mourners clad in black, The crickets, sliding through the grass, Shall pipe for her an evening mass

At last the rootlets of the trees Shall find the prison where she lies, And bear the buried dust they seize In leaves and blossoms to the skies, So may the soul that warmed it rise

CHARLES W. TAYLOR CUTS HIS THROAT AT PROVO.

Deputy Sheriff Burt returned from Provo last evening without the prisoner, who is understood to have been receiving every attention that medical skill could suggest.

FINALE TO HIS ESCAPADES

Also Defendant in a Civil Suit—His Connection with the Comstock Saloon—Skipped Out and Was Captured at Provo—Will Probably Die.

After being twice arrested on criminal charges preferred by his wife and sister from the Provo jail, Charles W. Taylor cut his throat at Provo jail with his razor, waiting the snapping of the slender rod holding his earthly existence.

The story of Taylor's escapades, his waste of his wife's money, his fraudulent and the gruesome if not pathetic climax to his recaptures is replete with unusual incidents.

Charles W. Taylor came to Salt Lake from Colorado early in the summer of 1896, with his young bride, who was possessed of considerable means.

But nothing will efface her memory from our hearts. This memory shall be like the flow of blood, which in the distance are separated from the smoke, and which shine the more brilliant as they recede.

It matters not where sleep her mortal remains, or whether any weep over her grave. Her kind remembrance is in our hearts; there she will sleep in peace; those who will be gathered and checked, and from there will ever be dropping, tears on her memory to keep it green to embalm it within us.

But at last, after a long and painful struggle, she has passed away, and peace have come to bid her good bye, at the portals of the tomb with flowers, remembrance and affection, she passed on to the tender hand of sorrow to her household.

WIFE CAUSES HIS ARREST. Mrs. Taylor consulted with the county attorney and a warrant for the defendant's arrest was issued nearly a week ago.

TAYLOR'S SECOND ARREST. On Thursday Taylor was again arrested on a charge of larceny from the Comstock saloon and Deputy Sheriff Burt proceeded to take him before Justice Stewart for arraignment.

Instead of keeping the appointment and proving that the officer's confidence in him was not misplaced, Taylor disappeared and left no trace behind.

FAILED TO APPEAR. On Thursday Taylor was again arrested on a charge of larceny from the Comstock saloon and Deputy Sheriff Burt proceeded to take him before Justice Stewart for arraignment.

CAPTURED AT PROVO. The tragic occurrence at Provo after Taylor's arrest is thus related by The Herald's special correspondent.

WIFE PRISONER CUT HIS THROAT. Soon after a seething noise was heard in the cell, and the warden, Williams looked through the window.

IN AGONY, BUT TALKS. His first words were: "They forced me to do it. He recalled to me the writing in a recent issue of the Herald, 'For God's sake, give me a six-shooter and let me kill myself.'"

BELIEVES HE WILL DIE. Taylor became so weak that it was decided not to move him. He is falling rapidly and it is believed that he will not live.

CANDIDATES WANTED.

Non-Partisans Searching For a Man For Mayor. During the coming week great activity is expected in political circles, so far as the movement of the 'citizens' is concerned, in looking for candidates.

WHO WILL WEAR TOGA?

A Democrat Preferred, Because It Is Believed the Selection Would Weaken That Party—Mr. Dooly Held as a Reserve, or Last Resort—Members Will Continue the Hunt and May Report at a Meeting This Evening—Political Notes.

During the coming week great activity is expected in political circles, so far as the movement of the 'citizens' is concerned, in looking for candidates. It will be a case of office seeking the man, or woman, in every instance, for he or she, the people are shy in relation to a secret declaration of their business card.

As related in The Herald, Hon. R. N. Baskin and John Clark have been mentioned. The former has announced himself as a Democrat of the first water—a Bryan Democrat, if you please—while the latter is a Republican.

Some time ago the name of Sam J. Kanyon was mentioned. Now Sam would not be a Republican, but he is a Democrat in the practical case, but the fact that he is a Republican and his action in the past has been a matter of record.

But the "committee" is endowed with a "good" idea, and it is believed that it will be a "good" idea, and it is believed that it will be a "good" idea, and it is believed that it will be a "good" idea.
