

AFTER PROF. STODDARD

Question Brought Up By the Medical Board.

ATTORNEY GENERAL BISHOP

GIVES AN EXHAUSTIVE OPINION ON THE MATTER.

Holds That the Professor is Amenable to the Law-The Attorney-General Also Passes Upon a Studied School Trustee Election.

The attorney-general yesterday sent out the following important opinion: Office of Attorney-General, Salt Lake City, Utah, July 25, 1896.

To the Honorable Medical Board of Examiners, Salt Lake City, Utah:

Gentlemen-Your favor of the 21st inst. is before me, requesting the aid of the attorney-general in asking to be advised as to whether a person who advertises "to practice, to cure or to give medical aid to persons afflicted with physical ailments by clairvoyant aid or as a medium or by proprietary remedies, who does or does not exact a direct fee," comes within the medical law and can be prosecuted for non-compliance with it.

Section 42, Article 5, Chapter 130 of the laws of Utah of 1896, provides: "On the second Monday in July, 1896, there shall be elected by the registered voters residing in each ward, three school trustees, one who shall serve for the term of three years; one for the term of two years, and one for the term of one year.... The ballots used at such election shall be in the name of the persons and the length of the term voted for." It will be observed that the order of the election of these respective officers has been established by the legislature, in which the two year term is mentioned first, the two year term next and the one year term last. It may be fair to assume that the legislature fixed this order with reference to the importance of the office, and that the two year term is of the greatest importance, and the two year term of greater importance than the one year term.

I think it fair also to assume that in the preparation of the ballots, each of the names of the candidates, three names with the indication opposite each as to the term voted for, that the first name on the said ballots would be for the three year term; the second name for the two year term, and the third name for the one year term, following the same order prescribed in the statute above set out.

If these assumptions be fair, then it follows that in canvassing the voters for the three year term, the voters would always be counted in advance of those for the two year term, and those for the one year term in advance of those for the two year term, and the election for these offices respectively would occur in point of time in the same order; that is to say, the election of trustee for the three year term would occur prior to the two year term, and the two year term would occur prior to the one year term. Following this same order in casting up the result of the election, we would naturally ascertain who was elected for the three year term, then determine who was elected for the two year term, and lastly who was elected for the one year term, and we have as the result the election of J. W. Drollinger for the three year term, Mrs. Ann S. Wilson for the two year term, and Mr. Johnson for the one year term.

The only question remaining is as to whether this order is one that would be sanctioned by the courts in the determination of the question. While the statute is not entirely free from doubt, I am of opinion that in the absence of any express provision of law to the contrary, and being unable to find any adjudication by the court on questions similar to this, that the order in which these offices are mentioned in the statute should be observed in all particular wherein important, in determining who were elected to these respective offices. I have the honor to be, very respectfully yours,

A. C. BISHOP, Attorney General.

WHEEVER MALARIA EXISTS,

The bilious are its central prey. In intermittent and remittent fever, dumb ague and acute chills, the liver is always seriously affected, and the blood contaminated with bile. One of the chief reasons why the malarial fever, or quinine fever, is so difficult to cure, is that it is such a sure defense against chills and fever and every form of malarial disease, is that it goes away with facility to the disease, by reforming the system, and by the use of the quinine pills, the malarial fever is prevented and cured. Moreover, it removes every vestige of dyspepsia, and overcomes constipation, rheumatism, indigestion, the kidneys and bladder, and tranquilizes and strengthens the nervous system.

THE LATE A. H. CANNON

Action Taken by the Chamber of Commerce.

FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON

THE ORDER OF EXERCISES AT THE TABERNACLE.

Addresses to Be Made By President Woodruff and President Smith-Order of the Procession-At the Cemetery-The Body Will Not Lie in State.

The directors of the chamber of commerce met yesterday afternoon and adopted the following tribute to the memory of the late Apostle Abraham H. Cannon, who, as vice-president of this institution, was one of the most tireless workers for its success:

"The members of the board of directors of the Salt Lake chamber of commerce extend to the relatives and friends of the late Abraham H. Cannon their sincere and heartfelt sympathy. The untimely death of Mr. Cannon removes from this community an ideal citizen, who generously and unhesitatingly gave to the promotion of its every interest his best efforts and energy.

"His was a singularly broad and impartial mind; and his life, illustrated by generous deeds, simple methods, just estimates and noble endeavors, stands a practical model for the young men of Utah of this day and generation.

"True to himself and every conviction of his heart, he could not fail to have, what he takes with him to the grave, the esteem and affection of every person whose good fortune it was to be admitted to his acquaintance and friendship.

"A faithful adherent to the religion he professed, he exemplified its teachings in every act of his life. He was inherently good. All of his traits were beneficial, and his life was a constant given greater splendor by his unflinching trust in his Maker, and by his strict obedience to the rules of his faith.

"In his private life he was the embodiment of purity, simplicity and affectionate consideration for those around him.

"In positions of trust he was faithful to a high degree. To the least interest in all matters of public concern he took an intense interest, and by that interest gave to them an impetus which irresistibly led to their success. In all his business transactions he had reached a high degree of excellence which made him honored by every bright intellect in the state.

"As a business man his career was filled with activity and was characterized by commanding ability.

"These and many more were the attributes of Mr. Cannon, and because of them, though dead he will still live in the affections of the people of Utah.

"For many years he was an active member of this chamber and at the time of his death was its first president. To the least interest in all matters of public concern he took an intense interest, and by that interest gave to them an impetus which irresistibly led to their success.
