

This Is OUR Fight

It still seems a little difficult for many of us to realize that that British blood which is being shed so heroically to stem the Hun drive is as precious to this country as it is to Britain herself. We still speak of the British line or the French line and can't seem to get used to thinking of it as OUR line.

We are due for some poignant reminders. An Allied counter-stroke is going to come with as great or even greater force than that of the German drive—at a cost of thousands of lives.

And very soon Americans will be in the thick of it. OUR boys will be mowed down, and our heartstrings will be torn as have those of our gallant allies.

The sooner we grasp this thing in its entirety and throw ourselves into one gigantic united effort the fewer will be the desolated homes that will, in any event, be all too numerous at the close of the war.

The one big thing we can do NOW is to support our soldiers by buying Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps.
