

SAUNTERINGS

Here's a story of the sea that comes from New York which has not been published in the family journals of the west:

Recently on a liner bound for New York from England, a baby was born down in the steerage when the boat was a few hours out. The passengers on the upper decks heard of it and also were informed that the mother was very poor, so they took up a collection for her amounting to about $500.

When the boat was within a short distance of America, the woman expressed a desire to thank the passengers in person and did so in a few brief remarks which were about as follows: "I want to thank you for myself, for my baby and for my husband, who lives in America, and has not seen me in three years." The thanks were duly accepted. The story is vouched for by a number of first cabin passengers of unimpeachable authority.

A stranded but still haughty "leading lady" was obliged to put up at a dilapidated country hotel. She glanced frowningly about the office, reluctantly signed the register, and took the brass key from the proprietress. "Is there water in my room?" she demanded. "Why, there was," replied the proprietress. "There was, but I had the roof fixed."

Two octogenarian darkies at White Sulphur Springs, having been employed by one hotel management since the Civil war, are now retained as pensioners, though they occasionally do light and pottering jobs about the place. One day not long ago they were languidly raking leaves on the lawn. As a lady passed she heard them quarreling and stopped to listen. "Nigger," stated the older of the pair, "does you know what I wish't? I wish't dat hotel yonder had a thousan' rooms in it and you wuz laid out daid in ev'ry room!"

A beautiful wedding of Wednesday evening was that of Miss Margaret Andrews daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Andrews and Allen Roscoe Elliott, an instructor at the Culver Military Academy. Summer ferns and flowers were used to beautify the edifice and the arrangement of the greens and blossoms was exceedingly attractive. The bride was attended by Mrs. Louis E. Wyatt of Greeley, Colorado, Miss Kate Nelson was bridesmaid, Morris A. Andrews acted as best man for Mr. Elliott and the ushers were Francis Letchfield, Francis Porter, Phil Dewey and Hays Matson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George E. Davies and was followed by a super at the home of the bride, which was attended only by the relatives and a few intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott have gone east and after spending their honeymoon at the Atlantic resorts, will return to Culver to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn V. Adsit, who formerly resided here and in Bingham, arrived from the east early in the week and will remain some time, visiting their numerous friends. It is their plan to again locate in the west, possibly here. During the past few years, they have resided near Montreal. They have been the guests of honor at a number of informal affairs since their arrival.

Miss Frances McChrystal was the honored guest at a beautiful tea given by Mrs. Lewis A. Jeffs and Miss Mary Wall at the Wall residence on Monday. Among those who assisted were Mrs. John H. McChrystal, Mrs. George N. Lawrence, Mrs. Walter N. Pugh, Miss Gladys Richmond, Miss Cassandra Wood and Miss Olive Wall.

On Tuesday, Miss Lydia White entertained at a bridge tea with Miss McChrystal as the motif and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Lee Charles Miller gave an elaborate dinner at the Country club for Miss McChrystal and Mr. McNamee. Covers were laid for twenty in the living room where the table was brilliantly decorated with peonies and miniature electric lights in various colors. A dance followed the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Woolley arrived from the coast during the week and are at home at the Roseway apartments. Mr. and Mrs. Wolley (Miss Alice Lambdin) were married in Seattle recently, but will make their home in this city, where they have a large circle of friends, who are busy welcoming them.

One of the most interesting events of the week was the meeting of the Musical Arts society at the Ladies' Literary club on Monday evening when following a business meeting, an informal reception was held. The society is now a thriving one and it is planned to double the membership before another year passes. An excellent musical program was one of the features of the affair.

The wedding of Miss Edith Kingsbury, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Kingsbury and Myra K. Billings, will take place on Wednesday to be followed by a large reception at the home of the bride.

A very beautiful wedding was that of Miss Frances McChrystal and Leo A. McNamee of Las Vegas, which occurred at St. Mary's cathedral on Thursday morning, the Very Rev. Dennis Kiely, assisted by the Rev. Father J. J. Clifford of Los Angeles, officiating. There was an elaborate musical program under the direction of Miss Nora Gleason and the church was beautifully decorated for the event, which was attended by a large gathering of the friends of the happy pair. The bride was attended by Mrs. Edward C. Parsons as matron of honor and Miss Genevieve McNamee as bridesmaid. Mr. McNamee's best man was Arthur McChrystal and the ushers were Dr. J. J. Gallighan, John Wallace and Norman Kane. A wedding breakfast followed at the Utah attended by the bridal party, the relatives and a few intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. McNamee left for California and after their honeymoon will make their home in Nevada.

Miss Margaret Walker was the hostess at a bridge luncheon given at her home on Wednesday, when Miss Alice O'Brien of St. Paul was the complimented guest. It was an al fresco affair, the pergola at the residence being used with the bridge and luncheon tables in the open. Thirty guests were present.

Miss Marjorie Howard and Miss Virginia Eccles, her guest, were entertained by Miss Sybil Walker at the Country club on Wednesday at a luncheon given in their honor, with covers laid for twenty-four.

HAPPENINGS AND WHEREABOUTS

An artistic event of the week was a luncheon given by Mrs. Georgina Webber at the Country club for twenty-two friends, on Wednesday.

The marriage of Miss Grace Wallace and P. T. Peterson occurred on Wednesday evening at the Phillips Congregational church, the Rev. P. A. Simpkin officiating.

Mrs. Arthur Brown entertained at a bridge party followed by a tea at her home on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Ryan entertained at a dinner Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Lottie

Brain and Eggertsen Cluff, who were married on Thursday.

With Mrs. Herman A. Prosser of New York as the motif, Mrs. Benner X. Smith gave a beautiful luncheon at her home on Tuesday.

One of the largest luncheons given at the Country club in the early season was that at which Mrs. J. E. Galigher was the hostess on Tuesday. Covers were laid for sixty.

In honor of Miss Edith Kingsbury, Mrs. J. E. Cutler will entertain this evening. Mrs. H. C. Edwards gave an informal affair for her bridge club on Tuesday at her home in Cottonwood.

Mrs. F. C. Schramm left for San Francisco on Wednesday and will spend the summer in the northwest.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Salisbury will leave shortly for their ranch in Idaho.

Mrs. W. A. Ruttan gave an informal tea at her home on Thursday.

Miss Alice O'Brien arrived on Monday and is the guest of Miss Norinne Thompson, who will give a dinner dance at the Country club for her this evening.

Mrs. Fred U. Leonard is visiting in Milford, Utah.

The Spirit of Liberty Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, celebrated Flag day at the Country club on Monday at an informal reception and luncheon.

The recital to be given by Alberto Jonas in the Hotel Utah ballroom today, will be the center of interest for those musically inclined.

Mrs. Harry P. Clark and Miss Margaret Clark are at "Treasure Island" in Emigration canyon, where they will remain for the summer.

Miss Naomi Hoffman, who recently returned from Washington, was the hostess at a costumed dancing party for sixty of her friends on Monday evening.

A REAL SOCIETY EVENT

In Blue and White and All That Stuff, Pride of New Sweden Takes Bride and Many Momentos.

From a southern Idaho paper we reprint the following excerpts which should serve as hints to those who are thinking of putting over a real wedding during the summer. Evidently this was a awful swell affair and the description will be read with envy by those in the smart set who must content themselves with the commonplace in this barren waste. The account reads:

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fullenwider, on Thursday noon, June 3rd, occurred one of the prettiest home weddings the writer has witnessed, when their charming daughter, Agnes Fay Fullenwider was given in marriage to Mr. Arthur W. Lundblade, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lundblade, both families being residents of New Sweden.

At the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Mae Dixon, the bridal party entered the room, led by Rev. Jewell, followed by Mr. Roy Dixon, who acted as best man, then followed the groom, bride and bride's sister, Miss Anna Fullenwider, who was bridesmaid, and took their places in the front of the parlor under an arch of blue and white crepe paper festoon, where they were pronounced man and wife.

After the ceremony good wishes and congratulations were given newly wedded pair by relatives and friends, Rev. Jewell introducing the bride as Mrs. Lundblade.

The guests were then ushered to the dining room where a sumptuous toothsome, seven-course dinner was served.

Music and sociability reigned supreme throughout the whole happy day. Ice cream and cake was served in the evening as guests were about to leave.

A novelty of the wedding were the colors, blue
