first, last and all the time, and it is fortunate that he discovered the frame-up in time. The city is full of gamblers, street walkers of the lowest type, "con" men, "guns," dips, burglars and thugs, and it is time the spring cleaning began.

A NEW RUBBER CONCERN

Clay Evans, who was formerly connected with the Capitol Electric company, and who is one of the most widely known and popular electrical and automobile men of Salt Lake, together with A. H. Daly, about six weeks ago opened a shop at 336 South State street under the name of the India Rubber Manufacturing company, where motorists may go and forget their troubles.

In this establishment anything made of rubber can be repaired, from putting new holes in a rubber sponge to the vulcanizing of tires. The firm handles all makes of treads and specializes particularly in the Goodyear and Quaker output. The car owners of Salt Lake will find here a most complete line of motor accessories and also every brand of motor oil that is now manufactured.

It is well worth the while of those who own anything from a flivver to the highest product of the American manufacturer to visit this establishment, meet the proprietors and see the class of work that is done.

THE PARLOR SOCIALIST

By Anna Strunsky Walling.

How insidious it is!

The exquisite woman standing in the middle of the room receiving her friends.

Her interest in him, for the moment so unfeigned, her sympathy so quick and unreserved—she draws him irresistibly to cross over to where she stands in the nebulous clouds that always, unaware to him, have shrouded her class.

So subtly and unalterably different from him, yet she draws him irresistibly—and suddenly he traverses the world yawning between them.

Something begins to give way—his belief in the people, in their inviolate strength, in their inalienable right to all of life. Something gives way, something begins to sink—his faith, his hope flicker and almost go out. He is not aware of his sudden emptiness. He feels wonderfully at home in the camp of the enemy, wonderfully at ease in the skin-lined den of the despoilers.

The fire in the hearth leaps and casts beautiful lights over the exquisite face of his hostess, over the unparalleled tapestries on the wall. Meaningless, hopeless, purposeless he stays on.

The waiting world recedes.

Empty and cold he remains by the treacherous warmth of the enemy's hearth.—The New Review.

The Jefferson Day Banquet of the Democrats at the Hotel Utah last Saturday night was a most enthusiastic affair. There was vociferous cheering every time President Wilson's name was mentioned and the alleged shortcomings of the Republicans were paraded with scorn. The menu was far more elaborate than usual at Democratic gatherings since the Peerless One established the dollar a plate rule. The large credit for the success of the affair is due to T. F. Thomas as chairman of the banquet committee, who arranged the evening's entertainment. The menu cards were beautiful and were designed and printed following the artistic ideas of Mr. Thomas.

"Made in the United States," remarked Great Britain as it handed Washington a thesis on the law of blockade.—Wall Street Journal.

Henry, look after one look at the well-known fjords of Norway, decided he couldn't compete.—New York Evening Sun.
