Old Captain Ketcham, who recently died at Amityville, L. I., was much respected and beloved by the summer residents, who used to sail with him on the bay and catch blue fish. There was always a refreshing flavor of the sea in his talk.

One day, when a party of city men were sailing with him, the conversation turned to the difficulty of getting good, fresh milk in Amityville, and they appealed to the captain to know why.

"Well, said Captain Joshua, "it's been that way as long as I can remember. My wife made me buy a cow once. I bought her from Elbert Haff upon the north turnpike and gave him $40 for her. Elbert said she'd give 20 quarts of milk a day, and I guess she did, but you could see bottom in six fathoms."—The Youth's Companion.

Some time ago a business man had occasion to see a theatrical manager, and on being admitted to the stage just at the conclusion of the play, he noticed that the leading lady seemed to be in a state of wild excitement. "Your beautiful star seems to be somewhat disturbed," said the business man. "What seems to be the trouble?" "She is disturbed," answered the manager; "she got only nine bouquets over the footlights tonight." "Gee whiz!" was the amazed rejoinder of the other. "Weren't nine enough?" "No," was the calm response of the manager. "She paid for ten."—Argonaut.
