

SAUNTERING—BY BARON CHEVRIAL

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. McMillan announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Vivian, to John Vimont Lyle.

The wedding will take place at the McMillan residence on East South Temple street on the evening of June 28th, and a reception will follow.

The ceremony will be performed at nine o'clock in the evening, and a few intimate friends will be invited to both the wedding and reception.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss McMillan and Mr. Lyle will not be a surprise to their friends as they have known of it for some time, but were not aware of the date set for the marriage. There will of course be a large amount of entertaining in their honor during the next fortnight.

Mildred McMillan is one of the most charming and beautiful of the McMillan girls most of whom have gone elsewhere to live following their marriages. Her popularity is limited only by the number of people who know her, and she has a great host of friends here and elsewhere. Endowed with unusual personality, ready wit, irresistible charm, and possessed of various accomplishments, she occupies a position in society and in the community seldom reached by anyone.

Mr. Lyle, who came here from New York, and who is associated with the legal department of the Oregon Short Line, is one of the finest of men and his brilliancy has won him a place in his profession and in the city and state that anyone might be proud of. There is no one more popular in professional, business, club and society circles, and in his comparatively brief residence here he has won a host of friends.

The engagement of Miss McMillan and Mr. Lyle is an ideal match. After a wedding trip of a month's duration they will return to make their home in this city.

The portrait of Mrs. Solon Spiro, which appears elsewhere in these pages, was recently completed by Albert Salzbrenner and in this he has done some of the best of his excellent work. It has been the admiration of all who have seen it. The coloring in the picture is particularly striking. With an indefinite background suited to the subject's coloring and auburn hair, with the gown in black and French blue, it is a most striking portrait, and one which must be seen to be properly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Kiser and their son Phillip arrived during the week and are again at their residence, after a motoring tour of several months through California. It is understood that they have decided to return here to live, which is gratifying to their many friends, who have missed them during their absence. Their home in the past has been the scene of many of the most enjoyable social affairs given here and Mrs. Kiser's acquaintance among the stars of the theatrical profession has often made her affairs unusual in their interest.

Just as the streets are no place for a man with heart disease during the prevalence of the present styles, so certain informal parties being given by a little coterie within the sacred circles is no place for anyone not provided with sport clothes. One married man of middle age was called up the other evening and invited to an affair and was told not to come unless he wore his sport clothes. Being rather of a daring disposition and knowing those who invited him fairly well he arrived at the appointed time in a long ulster, under which he wore his pajamas.

The wedding of Miss Jessie Scribner Home and Dr. Earl Chapman Fairweather was a beautiful affair, taking place at St. Paul's church at high noon on Thursday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Dennis, and was attended by a large number of friends.

Miss Leigh Block and Miss Edna Farnsworth were the bridesmaids. C. C. Campbell and George Sheldon were the ushers, and Dr. H. P. Kirtley best man for Dr. Fairweather. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and a splendid musical program was rendered by Miss Ruth Bellamere. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. E. Block.

After a trip to the northwest they will return to make their home here.

The opening of the Tennis club on Thursday, which began in the afternoon and extended into the evening was one of the smart affairs of the week. The hostesses being Mrs. Fred Cowans, Mrs. Clarence E. Groesbeck, Mrs. Lewis B. McCornick and Mrs. C. W. Whitley.

The guests tead and tennised and dined and danced, the Fitzpatrick orchestra making things pleasant for them until a late hour. Practically all of the club members were present and a few other friends, and the success of the affair presages a gay season at the club.
