

ers giving instruction in voice, piano, violin and other instruments, is remarkable for a city of this size.

It was Beethoven who said. "The wise traveler knows that while roads differ, we shall all eventually arrive at one destination." There is a direct application of this idea to the musical education given here by the various teachers, with their apparent contradiction of methods. All good teachers are striving to the same end; namely, that their pupils shall learn to know and love music and the very best of music, so though many are the methods and many the pathways each teacher aims to reach the proper result. What the coming year will mean for the development of music in Salt Lake one does not care to prophecy, but judging from the accomplishments of the past year the outlook is bright. The past was good; let us hope and work for the future.

THEIR SOULS AND BODIES.

paused and the look of tensity faded from her face. She sat down upon the arm of his chair and laid her arm about his neck and her cheek against his hair. "Besides," she said, with the liquid tenderness that tosses up pearls and rubles on every Eastern speech of love, "don't you know that the power that called her from her couch in the night calls me to your arms every hour? Had I been as others I had made myself another toy of yours—paved another step on your downward path. But God made me great so that I might be your wife, your Duchess, your savior. He laid beauty in my bosom, love in my heart and the wisdom of ages in my spirit, that you might be saved."

"Are you going to forgive me last night then?" asked the man.

"Do you doubt?"

"And are you going to forgive her?"

The Hindu woman looked sadly out upon the rising sun.

"How has she sinned?" she asked. "Is she not, like myself, striving single-handed with Fate for the man she loves?"—Town Topics.

ST. MARK'S HOSPITAL.

Among the best equipped and most modern hospitals in the West is St. Mark's, the official hospital of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, the Rio Grande Western, the Western Pacific, the various mill and smelter companies of Bingham and Garfield, Utah, and of the Utah Fuel company, as well as being the official hospital of both Salt Lake county and Salt Lake City, Utah.

The Right Rev. F. S. Spalding is president of the institution, and Miss Fanny D. Lees, superintendent. T. S. Pendergrass is business manager. The hospital occupies one of the finest buildings in the inter-mountain states and its staff numbers several of the most prominent physicians and surgeons of Salt Lake.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

We wish to correct an erroneous impression to the effect that our charge for reservation of seats at the Louvre and New Louvre on New Year's eve will be for the chairs alone and not applied on the amount of the check. In some way unknown to us this rumor has been circulated, and we wish to state emphatically to our friends and patrons that the charge of $5.00 a seat for reservations will be credited on the checks to that amount for any food or drinks that will be ordered on that occasion.
