ADELINE GENEÉ.

Prepare for the inevitable epidemic of dancers. Every stage girl who can dance, or who thinks she can, will begin practicing new stunts forthwith, and every irresponsible manager of a show in which dancing is a feature or in which a dance may be introduced with any semblance of consistency, will line up with the new craze which has just struck New York.

Genee is the sensation of the day!

The conservative New York Times has this to say of her:

"Cold type is about the poorest medium in the world to do justice to Adeline Genee. A poet might be inspired by her dancing; the harassed essayist of the dreaded first editions is overcome by the difficulties of the task. One might hurry together all the adjectives possible, still much would remain unsaid. And that, too, any reader with a dictionary, a book of synonyms, and a choice of words might more leisurely and with equal facility do for himself.

"A painter with a palette exceptionally rich might convey some sense of the rich, sensuous loveliness of her movements. A sculptor might give some adequate line with which this vibrant little body creates forms of beauty as she dances. But in the work of poet, the painter, and the sculptor there would still be that something lacking which the living presence gives, the ever changing and exquisitely moving eloquence of motion. But what qualifying adjectives ought one to use to describe a ball of thistledown dancing to the breeze? That is Adeline Genee."

The writers on the other daily papers have not been as frank to admit their inability to do justice to the "ball of thistledown." Obviously, they have all tried to weave a garland of beautiful phrases to place at the sylphish feet of this extraordinary girl, like one London reviewer who wrote:

"If I could dance a criticism of Genee I might do her justice. But unfortunately one cannot dance a criticism. And, after all, there is no need of criticism. Qualifying adjectives might serve."

From out of this will come the assault of the dancers. They will swarm around the employment agencies and the offices of musical comedy managers, all claiming to do the Genee pirouette just as well as the original. Some managers will "fall for them," but not the reputable ones.

All the principal American cities will see Genee as fast as she can get around to them, as Klaw & Erlanger, who are responsible for her present appearance in this country, have just signed a five year's contract with her.

THE HELD WAY.

When anyone locally receives a card or invitation upon which the engraving is exceptionally fine, they never ask who did it, they know.

We have been doing engraving for smart society people for so long and so well that nearly everybody knows that there is only one place in the city where fine engraving is done.

It is at the Held Engraving company, the Tiffany's of the west, where the people who know get their cards, invitations and talles and favors for weddings, teas, receptions, dinners, dances, at homes and every other form of social entertainment.

We wish to call your attention to our picture sale. The reduction we have made on the magnificent pictures in our elegant stock are so great that you can get the newest and best creations of modern artists at prices that are little short of ridiculous.
