OVER THE HILLS.
(By Arthur W. Copp.)

There is a place that I know well,
Over the hills, over the hills;
Where age-untouched lovers dwell
'Mid briar-rose and daffodils;
Where flower-scented gardens fill
Their days with peace; where anthems swell
From song-birds' throats in God's "all's well;"
Over the hills, over the hills.

Back to the dim sweet childhood days,
Over the hills, over the hills,
Our wearied souls with yearning gaze
Deep in their freshness, drink their fill
Of memories of rocks, of rills,
Frost-painted woods; till through the haze
Of years there comes all childhood's maze:
Over the hills, over the hills.

From, out the east comes forth the light,
Over the hills, over the hills;
The glory of the day drives night,
And all the world with sunshine fills.
Then come the shades Jehovah wills
To lull our pain, with dreams bedight;
The Star of Bethlehem shone bright,
Over the hills, over the hills.

THE PASSERBY.

I passed you by.
About us thronged the usual busy crowd;
Wagons rattled through the streets
And cars gonged hoarse and loud.
The tide of life was running high—
At nine o'clock I passed you by.

I passed you by.
Again I saw your neat, trim form and dainty feet;
No two stars brighter than your eyes,
No arched lips so sweet.
With fine-spun gold your hair would vie—
At two o'clock I passed you by.

I passed you by.
The world was still as busy as before;
About us rose the ceaseless din,
The day-time's weary roar.
The sun was waning in the sky—
At five o'clock I passed you by.

I passed you by.
Yes, all three times, and looked you in the eyes;
Did not the faintest memory
Within your heart arise?
Came no regret for might have been,
Nor no reproach—no sighs?
Envoi.
I may as well speak truthfully—
'Tis not much use to lie—
I'd never seen you, dear, before,
And so . . . I passed you by!

SMART WEDDINGS.

And every other event where cards, invitations or anything which should be handsomely engraved is used, there is just one place in the intermountain country to have your order properly attended to.

The place is known to smart people as the Held Engraving Company, about half way between the Temple and the corner where the cars stop.

Easy enough to find us, or a written or telephone order will receive the same attention as that given in person. We want you to see our work. Notice your invitation next time you're invited to a smart wedding. If it is smart—we will have engraved the invitation.
