I like Mr. Bryan,

He'll do us no harm.

HER AIM.

"Why does Maud bleach her hair? She deceives nobody."
"She isn't trying to. She's merely giving every one an indication of her real character."

NOT ALL LOSS.

Quotations cleverly malapropos or neatly distorted furnish half the wit of the professional humorist. Nevertheless, when such a verbal misstep is spontaneous, there is often real fun in it.

A young man had been out sailing with his sister and a friend of hers. He did not know particularly well the fine points of the art, and on trying to make the landing against a head wind, he exclaimed, after several vain attempts:

"Well, it is better to have luffed and lost than never to have luffed at all!"

HER SYMPATHY.

Little Margaret was enduring a visit from her boisterous cousins from the West. One evening after the children said their prayers, their talk turned on heaven. Henry, Dick and Bob wished to know if they would go there when they died. When an affirmative answer was given, little Margaret exclaimed with heartfelt sympathy:

"Poor Dad."

"I don't see why Goodley should be so unpopular with you all. He never speaks ill of any one."

"No, but he's one of these very smug fellows who can say 'Oh! yes, Jones seemed very happy when I saw him last,' and say it in such a way as to give the impression that Jones was horribly drunk."—Philadelphia Press.

"No, I'm trying to lead a better life."—Town Topics.
