

A THANKSGIVING DINNER

Is always a little more distinctive than other holiday dinners, whether you are at home, in a party at the club, or with a crowd downtown. And with the date this year—November 26—only ten days or so away, a host of dinners are in the planning. There's this to say of the preparations one downtown cafe is making for its Thanksgiving day crowds—Thursday afternoon and evening, November 26th, at the Louvre will see the jolliest, merriest and largest holiday crowd of that popular restaurant's existence, enjoying a Thanksgiving dinner that will be an innovation in the culinary line, even for the Louvre, and you know by this time what that means.

Christmas, New Year and other holiday features at the popular Rathskeller have always been quaintly and delightfully original, and for the 26th of this month the management has several surprises in store for its patrons. The table reservations already mean a dozen or two fashionable parties for the evening. The music and singing will be just a little better than ever, and we'll tell you about the dinner later. If you tried to enjoy the music, lights and good fellowship of the Louvre election night after neglecting to engage a table in advance, you'll appreciate the announcement that we are ready to reserve your table now for Thanksgiving day. A minute or two at the 'phone right away will assure you an evening of evenings. The 'phones are Bell 5168, Independent 710.
