The Annual Sale of Thanksgiving Linens

is Now in Progress

The most important underpriced distribution of good linens this city has ever known. A linen sale of unequalled saving opportunities with assortments larger and better than in any previous sale in our history. Replenish your linen now while you have such splendid stocks to select from.

Every woman will admire these beautiful showy durable table linens of exquisite design and finest weaves besides the rich handsome decorative pieces from the tiniest doylie to the large runners and the value of each piece is most exceptional compared to the prices asked.

The will of the late Henry C. Butters, the millionaire mining man, who was so well known in Salt Lake, contained a lot of surprises for those who imagined they were to be remembered. Regarding it a recent issue of the San Francisco Chronicle says:

"Although the members of the family refused to discuss the character of the bequests until after the funeral, it is understood that the entire fortune, with the exception of several minor bequests, has been left to his son, Henry, who is attending school at Phillips Exeter Academy in Massachusetts.

"It is admitted that the cutting off his wife, from whom Butters had been separated, will occasion a contest, and that the document will be fought in the probate courts. Not only is the wife omitted in the will, but her daughters by a former marriage, who had been adopted by Butters, are also passed over in bequeathing the bulk of his millions to his minor son.

"The executors of the will are ex-Judge Charles Slack and Charles Butters, both of whom refused to discuss the nature of the testament in which they are named.

"The separation of Butters from his wife occurred over a year ago. He had previously deeded to her $500,000 worth of property, including their beautiful home, Alta Vista, in the Piedmont hills. At that time it was reported that Butters was in need of money to finance some of his projects subsequent to the fire of 1906, and that Mrs. Butters did not agree with his suggestion that the family property should be used in raising money with which to carry on the enterprises in which he was interested.

"Since that time Butters had never visited the Piedmont home. For a time he lived at the Cosmos club, in San Francisco, and later went to the home of his mother in Berkeley.

"The relatives of the dead capitalist include his mother, his young son, his brother, Charles, and two sisters, Mrs. P. R. Boone of Berkeley and Mrs. S. D. Fields, who lives in Stockbridge, Mass. Mrs. Butters was his second wife.

"Mrs. Butters had been married twice before her union with Butters, having been Mrs. David Edwards and later married to Captain Sanctella of the United States Geodetic Survey. Three children survive from these former marriages—J. Paulding Edwards, who was recently married to Miss Dolly Tarpey, and two daughters, Marguerite and Marie, who were adopted by Butters. Miss Marguerite Butters is engaged to be married to Victor N. Metcalf, son of the Secretary of the Navy.

Charles Butters has had a death mask made of the face of his deceased brother.

WHAT ARE THEY ALL TO ME?

Purple of sunset or rose flush of dawning, white calm of noon or splendor of night,
South winds caressing or north winds tumultuous, the sun at the zenith, the moon's frozen light.
What are they all to me, O my beloved? Only the setting which holds thee in place; Sad were the universe, sad and most lonely, if it knew not and held not thy face.

Music and song and laughter of children, the notes of the bird and the hum of the bee,
The lulling sound of swift, falling waters, the murmuring wash of the summer sea.

What are they all to me, O my beloved? Only each one has imprisoned some tone
From thy voice, to comfort when thou art silent, and always they sing of thee—of thee alone.

"MR. DOOLEY" ON HAPPINESS.

"Well, sir, 'ds a tur-rible problem this here wiv human unhappiness.
If 'Tiddy Rosenfelt finds out th' causes, iv it he'll be th' gr-reatest man since Moses. Some folks say th' on'y way to be happy is to wurruk. Maybe that accounts fr the unhappiness among th' farmers. Perhaps they wud be merryer if some employment cud be found fr thim, preferably in th' open air. Some say 'tis money; they're poor. Some say 'tis simple poverty; they're rich. Hogan says 'tis human society; which accounts fr th' happiness that prevails in all large cities.
Some say selfishness will make ye happy. I've thried it. It didn't cure me. Other people say onselfishness; but that's no more thin to say that ye can on'y be happy be givin' up something that wud make ye happy. Th' nearest ye get to happiness is in want-in' something badly an' thinkin' ye have a chance to get it an' not gettin' it. If ye get it ye'll be unhappy. Whin ye have ivrything in th' wurruid that ye want th' fam'ly will do well to watch ye whin ye pick up a razor."—
