already knows, and every one should know, that fabulous gold values are excellent mediums for advertising, but that medium and lower grades of free milling ore are the backbone of any district.

A BAD CASE.

"Messrs. Hammer & Tongs have the honor to announce that on Thursday next they will sell by auction, in their great rooms in Blank street, the valuable collection of pictures, porcelain, furniture in the Sheraton, Adams and Chippendale styles; arms, Limoges enamel, quaint watches and clocks, formed with consummate taste and at lavish expense by a gentleman who has no further need for them."

I myself arranged with the auctioneers, who, with some amplifications, adopted my catalogue, and a day was chosen when my husband was at last occupied (I believe remuneratively) in court.

Well, the time came. I was so excited that, although sorely tempted to be present, I did not dare to attend the "Rooms" of Messrs. Hammer & Tongs. The evening came and with it my husband. "You've won the case!" I exclaimed, fondly and band, in a frantic state, of exhilaration, admiringly.

"Oh, never mind the case!" he rejoined, impetuously; "it was settled and I got away quite early. Having made the money, I turned in—now don't be angry, darling—for a moment to Hammer & Tongs—most exciting sale of an eminent virtu-pictur, only that his Rembrandt and Reubens oso's curios, and you'll admit that, after all, my judgment was not so bad; for it was an exact replica of my own—thing for thing, and picture for were poor copies, and his George Morland evidently spurious. The whole lot was going for a perfect song, so I—"

"Good heavens!" I ejaculated; "you don't mean to say that you bought your own—" But at this crisis a merciful film came over my eyes, and I swooned away.

My husband is completely cured, and we are gradually now trying to collect modern coins, which we pick up elsewhere than in salesrooms.—St. James' Gazette.
