Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, March, 31.

More Salt Lakers come to Honolulu and more are looked for according to those who have come, the latest arrivals being Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McCornick, The McCaskells, the McCornicks and the Moor N. Falls, formed a sextette of Salt Lakers who were very much in evidence. The McCornicks are to remain here a few weeks visiting with Captain and Mrs. Falls, and are stopping at the Young Hotel.

Mrs. Frank Knox and daughter Frances, who have been here for several weeks, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank I. Sefrit, returned on the same vessel.

Mr. Frank Collins, who brought letters here from Judge Chris B. Diehl and John McChrystal, is enthusiastic over the islands and is being taken over all of them by friends he has met since his arrival. He is talking about Salt Lake's herd of Elks making a trip out here next winter and the more he sees of the Islands, the more he is certain that not only will an Elks' excursion out here be just the proper caper, but that it will be a big success. At any rate Mr. Collins told Secretary Wood of the Promotion Committee to get busy and send all kinds of literature on Hawaii to Salt Lake, so in the near future the University Club, Alta Club, Elks' lodge and the many millionaires of Salt Lake, who don't know what to do with their money, will have Hawaii before them in many forms. One of the stunts proposed while the Elks are here is a session on the brink of the volcano of Kilauea, which is now active. That is, when it is active. It is a boiling lake of liquid lava, weird and beautiful at night—awe in spring, in fact. It was at night that the McCaskells saw the volcano in action. Mr. Headlee will be sent over to Salt Lake in the near future with some of "Moving Picture Expert" Bonline's best films of Hawaii, to show what we have down here.
