

Two London cabbies were glaring at each other. "Aw, wot's the matter with you?" demanded one. "Nothin' in the matter with me, you bloomin' idiot." "You gave me a narsty look," persisted the first. "Me? Why you certainly 'ave a narsty look, but I didn't give it to you, so 'elp me!"

A youth in Trenton, whose devotion to the young woman of his choice has encountered many obstacles during his long courtship, recently sought her out with this apparently encouraging statement: "I think it's all right now, Alice. I managed to get access to your father the other day, and while he wouldn't exactly give his consent, I rather imagine I've made some headway. He borrowed forty dollars of me. Surely he can't stand me off much longer after that!" The young woman sighed. "Yes, I've heard about it," she said, "and I think you've made an awful mess of it. Father mentioned the forty dollars and remarked that I'd better give you up—you were
