

Saunterings

Jimmy Salisbury and his bride arrived from the coast early in the week, and both have been entertained at numerous informal affairs since reaching here. On Tuesday next, Mrs. Lewis McCornick will give a dinner dance in their honor at the Country Club, and later in the week Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury will leave for an outing in Idaho.

In charm of manner and utter unaffectedness, the beautiful bride, the latest addition to the smart set, is a very charming object lesson for several who might profit by observation.

Tom Shumiacher came to town for twelve hours the other day, and crowded about two weeks into the time. Most everybody wanted to see him but the telephone was about as close as the majority of them got. He made a number of informal calls in this way, but took time enough for a good dinner and a motor ride with a few of his best friends. He'll be back in August with half a car full of New York men, and the invitations are already being issued to fill the other half of the car on a trip from here to California. If you haven't been asked, the thing to do is to wire for your reservations at once, following your wire with a letter of guarantee of good fellowship.

We are pleased to chronicle the seventh arrest of Mr. D. C. Jackling for speeding, six captures having been made in Salt Lake county and one in Utah county. We believe this is the record for gentlemen drivers in this state, but possibly are incorrect and will be glad to publish any contributions which may tend to disprove this theory.

Charley Whitley is back among us after a tour of southern Europe, in which he had half the fun and the natives the other half. Charley is thin and pale, but still tips the beam at a little over a hundred pounds and says that he had the time of his life, but is glad to return to Zion. He isn't any happier to be home than his friends are to have him, and it may be expected that his presence will greatly add to the gaiety of the summer.

Hal Russell, who has been away for nearly a year, and who has enjoyed a most successful season, having completely recovered from all stage fright, is with us again, and it would be awfully nice for the selfish stay-at-homes if they could devise some means to hobble and handcuff him so that he could not get away again. It's very difficult to see him during the day, as he is extremely busy with his option at the Warm Springs, but he's willing to be bored by any old friends who love to listen to him later in the evening.

Heber M. Wells and E. S. Ferry entertained at a plunge party for him on Wednesday, later dining with Mr. and Mrs. Russel (Ada Dwyer).

According to Town Topics, Perry Heath is building a splendid house in S street and Connecticut avenue, where he intends to set up his Lares and Penates and pass the remainder of his life, when he doesn't happen to be indulging in his favorite pastime of globe-trotting. The New York paper says Mr. Heath is a familiar figure in Washington, and began his career as a clerk in one of the government departments. Later he became a newspaper correspondent, and still later served as First Assistant Postmaster General during President McKinley's administration. He is a tall, square man, and is a Hoosier by birth, a fact of which he is excessively proud. During the fifty years of his life he has amassed a large fortune.

Mrs. Heath, who was Miss Ella Conway, of Louisville, will prove a valuable addition to the hostesses of the Capital.

Regarding the statement that Mr. Heath is a tall, square man, there will be a number of Utahns who knew that he was tall, delighted at the other change.

more beautiful than it is this year, and besides there was a perfectly good moon, apparently provided for just such an occasion.

Frank McGurrin happened to lose his watch and fob while golfing on Tuesday, and later they were found by a newspaper man and returned to Miss Dorothy Kinney, who has just returned from a year in Europe. Miss Kinney is the guest of Mrs. J. E. Woodward at the Judge residence.

Here's a new idea and a good one. It was contained in an advertisement which appeared in the Tribune during the week, and there is no question but that the person who wrote it knew what she wanted. The advertisement runs as follows:

Girl about 16 to wash dishes and second girl, in private boarding house, 47 East Fifth South.

The one best dinner of the week was that which took place at the country home of the Charley Walker's Friday evening, when half a dozen cars, filled with the friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Prosser, in whose honor the affair was given, rolled down to Cottonwood to participate in the event. Walker's farm has never been him, Mr. McGurrin was surprised that he got his watch, and doubly inasmuch as it was proven to him that newspaper men sometimes return things. And while we're on the subject, we might remark to him that "a private safe may be rented in the fire and burglar proof vault of the Salt Lake Security & Trust Co., 32 up Main Street, $2.00 per year and upwards."

Miss Dorothy Kinney, who is the guest of Mrs. J. E. Woodward at the Judge home, will remain here several weeks, and later will go to Portland to visit her sister, Mrs. Daugherty, with whom she has been abroad for a year. Miss Anna McCornick entertained at the first of a number of
