

Polly and Her Arabian Thoroughbred in "Polly of the Circus"

For the benefit of novelists we have compiled the following invaluable list of stock phrases. No "best seller" is complete without them. We offer them only to such romancers as are regularly enrolled on our paid subscription list.

"But why do I tell you all this?" she murmured.

"General! The lad who wishes to see you says that his name is Lafayette."

He flicked his last louis on the red—and won!

June, with its roses, has come again.

And so, they two, hand in hand, passed together into the scented and mysterious night.

The doctor looked down at the white face on the pillow. His eyes were grave; his lips were set.

"Remember, Chalkley! I am at home to no one."

In that brief moment his entire life passed in review before him.

But when, at last, the lights of the village came into view.

The hand of time had dealt lightly with that gentle face.

"It is enough for me, dear, that you are what you are; that you are simply you," she faltered.

He could be there in an hour. There might yet be time.

"Helen! You have been mad to-night."

She breathed more freely. One danger had at least been passed.

He turned in dismay and beheld before him a majestic figure robed in red. He gazed into a pair of searching eyes—they were the eyes of Cardinal Richelieu.—The Bookman.

Dr. P'hem—You needn't worry about your wife. She has a remarkable constitution! Henpex—Say, doc, you ought to see her by-laws, rules, and regulations!—Life.

"I understand that manager is paying fabulous salaries to his leading singers." "Not fabulous," replied the cynical press agent, "fictitious."—Washington Star.

"The duchess speaks kindly of America." That's nice of her." "All the more so, I think, since she was born and raised in Milwaukee."—Kansas City Star.

There was a young lady named Banker,
