HAVE YOU EVER?

Does your lot in life content you? Are they coming as you like?

Are you satisfied with just a daily wage? When your barber shop is idle or your hands are on a strike,

Have you ever thought of writing for the stage?

Perhaps you are a plumber and it's rather dull in summer;

Some congenial task your leisure might engage.

While you're waiting for an order to repair a broken pipe,

Have you ever thought of writing for the stage?

Or perchance you are a tinsmith, or a janitor mayhap,

Or a writer for a daily printed page,

Whatever be your station or your daily occupation,

Have you ever thought of writing for the stage?

Improve each idle minute. There is fame and fortune in it.

You may be the goorgemochan of your age.

Nearly everybody tries it, so we venture to advise it,

Have you ever thought of writing for the stage?

I HAVE LIVED.

By Ninette M. Lowater.

I have lived—ah, yes, I have lived! Whatever the note I hear

Of human joy or human woe, in my heart t' echo rings clear;

My path has led over roughest hills and through the flowery leas,

And sometimes tempests have swept the way, and sometimes the summer breeze.

I have loved and I have hated, I have sinned and I have prayed,

And oft have sought with bitter tears the path from which I strayed.

I know the woe that makes the world look gray and worn and oid,

I know the bliss that lights the sky with amethyst and gold;

And yet, O life, I cannot read the riddle that thou art,

Or whether given for good or ill—for both are in my heart.

—New York Sun.

Julia—Going to Marie's dance? Bertha—I shall be out of town that night. Julia—I wasn't invited either.—Cornell Widow.

"What! Spend $100 on a bathing suit?" "Now, hubby; th's isn't a bathing suit. This is a beach costume."—Washington Herald.

She—I heard you singing this morning. He—Oh! I sing a little to kill time. She—You had a good weapon.—Kansas City Journal.

First Chauffeur—Do you find out who you have run over? Second Chauffeur—Of course, I always read the papers!—New York Sun.

"Your new butler seems rather awkward." "For a butler, yes. But if he's a detective, I think he does very well."—Washington Herald.

Summer isn't over by several weeks.

But the dainty gowns that were purchased early in the season have been worn long enough to cause them to look a little the worse for wear.

Wouldn't it be a good plan to let us help you freshen up your wardrobe during the dog days?
