THE SCOTT PICTURES

The Salt Lake theatre will have as its attraction all next week, twice daily, the actual moving pictures of the late Captain Robert Falcon Scott's Antarctic expedition, with a splendid descriptive lecture on the interesting features by Charles B. Hanford, who has been seen here on numerous occasions in Shakesperian repertoire.

The entertainment is styled "The Undying Record of Captain Scott" and "Animal Life in the Antarctic," and halls from the Coliseum, London, where it was acclaimed one of the greatest travel films ever produced.

The pictures show the routine life of the exploring party and the different forms of animal life encountered on the South Polar continent. There is a pronounced comedy element throughout, and one of the most pathetic tragedies in the realm of history.
