GOLD AND SILVER.

Something Pretty and Good Which Everybody Seems to find use for.

The firm of E. J. Swaner & Co. has long since come to the front as one of the leading business houses of the Territory in the manufacture of gold and silver ware, jewelry and the setting of diamonds and other precious stones; in fact one would suppose, at seeing the multiplicity of orders handed to them and completed—from the making of wedding rings to the manufacture of intricate and complicated badges, medals and jewelry of every description—that the very large majority of the work done in that line in this city passes through their hands. We have noticed at various times some of their fine and unexcelled workmanship, and these gems of art and worth are known and admired from the northern to the southern boundaries of the territory. The gentlemen of the firm have grown in public favor purely on the merits of their work, the low margins placed on their articles, and the worth of their guarantee of the sterling value of the goods.

During the past year they have been extending their business by continually replenishing a growing stock of ready-made jewelry, of heavy gold and silver goods, jewelry with precious stones, jet sets, and other kinds needed to make a full stock in that line. Among the reliable houses with which this firm deals can be mentioned: Dorace, Edge & Co., celebrated woven goods; Miller Bros., manufacturers of fine jewelry; Howard, Elgin and Waltham watches; Derby, silver-plated ware; Meriden Britannia Silver-plate Company; Gorham, sterling silver ware; Julius King, optician and spectacle maker.

Of this every one can be assured: If any nuggets, gold quartz, moss agates or petrifications can be fixed into shape worthy of being kept as a life-long treasure, they can do it; if any gold or silver goblets, cups, etc., are wanted for special presentation, they can furnish them in any design or shape, cleverly finished and engraved to the purchaser's satisfaction.

Their word of guarantee can always be relied on, and their patrons know it. They fill orders on short notice, and mail favors receive close attention.

A call at their store, No. 80 Main street, will convince any one of these facts, and also charm the eye of the visitor with the rich display of goods set upon their counters.

Utah and Nevada—Excursion from Stockton to Salt Lake. The Utah and Nevada has made its customary holiday preparations for the benefit of its numerous patrons. On the 4th four trains will be run to Lake Point and the intermediate pleasure places, the trains—as can be seen by reference to the time table elsewhere—being so arranged that they will accommodate all who may desire to go. You can leave early in the morning, about noon, in the afternoon, or in the evening, and returning, the same facilities are offered. At Black Rock, at Garfield Landing, and at Lake Point the most extensive preparations have been made for the reception and accommodation of guests, while each place is vying with the other in the matter of amusements.

For the accommodation of those who may wish to be present in Salt Lake on the Fourth, and witness and participate in the festivities here, Superintendent Ritter has directed that a cheap excursion train be run from the terminus to this city on Sunday, July 3d, leaving at noon, and arriving here at 2.30 p.m. This will benefit the inhabitants of Stockton, Ophir, Dry Canyon, Tropic and Grantsville. Tickets on this train will be good to and including the 6th instant.

No trains from this city will go beyond Lake Point on Monday, July 4th.

THE ASSASSINATION.

Bold and Probably Successful Attempt Upon the Life of President Garfield.

An Insane Foreigner Makes His Name Infamous

And Plunges a Nation into Grief and Sorrow.

Universal Sympathy for the Wounded President.

Washington, 2.—President Garfield was shot twice at the B. & O. R. R. depot, Washington, this morning. No particulars.

Second Dispatch—Dr. Bliss says the President's wound is not a mortal one.

Third Dispatch—General Garfield is dying.

9.30 a.m.—President Garfield was shot at the Baltimore & Potomac depot, this morning. Colonel Corbin has just passed in the President's carriage a physician, on the way to the Baltimore & Potomac depot.

10 a.m.—It is reported that President Garfield is dead, but the excitement is so intense that it is impossible to find out anything definite at present. The man who shot him has been arrested. Full particulars will be sent shortly.

The shooting was done by a slender man, about five feet seven inches in height. He refused to give his name, but it is said, by persons who profess to know him, that his name is Dooty. The prisoner was arrested immediately after the firing by officers in the depot. He was first taken to police headquarters and subsequently remanded to the district jail. The shooting occurred in the ladies' room of the depot, immediately after the President had entered, walking arm in arm with Secretary Blaine, on their way to the limited express train, which was about ready to leave. Secretary Blaine, on hearing the pistol shots, two in number, rushed in the direction from which they came, with a view of arresting the would-be assassin. Before reaching the man, however, the secretary returned to the President, and found him prostrated. Both shots took effect, the first in the right arm and the second just above the right hip and near the kidneys. The physicians have probed for the balls unsuccessfully.

10.20 a.m.—The President is now being conveyed to the Executive Mansion under a strong escort of metropolitan police. Two companies of regulars from the Washington barracks have been ordered out to preserve quiet. Great excitement prevails.

10.30 a.m.—The President has been made as comfortable as possible in his chamber at the White House, and all persons are excluded from the grounds surrounding the mansion. Immense crowds surround the grounds. The physicians are now holding a consultation.

The President has been removed to the White House. His pulse is strong and he is conscious. One wound is in his shoulder, the other in his back and the ball has lodged in the abdomen. Not yet extracted. It is not necessarily fatal. The assassin is Charles Guitteau.

The shooting occurred in the presence of some fifty or sixty ladies. There is a rumor that the shooting was done by ex-consul to Marseilles, Gatto, who was removed from the office. The pistol with which the firing was done is a California weapon with an extremely heavy calibre, better known as a "bulldog."

It is utterly impossible to gain access to the White House, police and soldiers being around it, and will not let any one but cabinet officers in. There is communication by telephone which is the only way to reach them.

11.30 a.m.—The condition of the President is very much improved. Immediately after the shooting his pulse went down to 53 and his face was ashen hue. His pulse was recovered to 63, and color is returning somewhat to his face. The general symptoms, moreover, devote very considerable improvement. It is not thought wise to make any further attempts at present to withdraw the bullets. It is difficult to determine until a thorough examination is made how seriously the internal injuries may be. The surface indications, however, give good grounds for the prophecy that the President will rally.

Chas. Guitteau, the would-be assassin, is a foreigner by birth. He has been a very persistent applicant for a consular position. He has haunted the Executive Mansion several weeks, and his disappointment in not getting what he wanted has caused temporary aberration of the mind.

Doctor Lincoln, who has just left the President, denies the report that he said President Garfield will not live two hours. Dr. Lincoln says the wound is very serious, but not necessarily fatal.

1.35—President Garfield's strength is increasing every minute, and he is quite cheerful. Physicians announce that as soon as his pulse reaches seventy, another attempt will be made to probe for the bullets.

The President continues to improve.

THE DETAILS.

At 9.30 o'clock this morning when President Garfield was at the Baltimore and Potomac depot, with his party, waiting to take the train, he was shot twice by a man within two feet of him. The President's friends rushed to him as he fell, and Blaine called for Rockwell. Station Agent Carney arrested the assassin, who said, "I did it. I am a stalwart, and Arthur is now President. Take a letter I have here to Gen. Sherman, and he will tell you all about it." Scott and Carney, got hold of the assassin, and were taking him to the police headquarters. He said voluntarily to them, "I did it and will go to jail for it. I am a stalwart, and Arthur will be president." He had a letter in his hand, and wanted the officers to take it to General Sherman, saying it would be all right. The prisoner made no resistance, saying that he had contemplated the killing of the President, and it was for the good of the country. About 9 o'clock the assassin went to a hack stand, adjoining the station, and engaged a hack from Barton, a colored hackman. He said he wanted to go to the Greenwood Cemetery in a short time, and wanted the hackman to drive very fast when he should get in the hack. He agreed to pay $2 for the hack, on condition that the hackman would drive fast. When stopped the assassin was going to the hack he had engaged, and he insisted that it was important for him to go and deliver the message to Gen. Sherman. When the officers refused to let him go, he begged them to take the letter he had to Gen. Sherman.

Following is a copy of the letter the assassin wanted delivered to General Sherman:

July 2, 1881.

The White House President's tragic death was a sad necessity, but it will unite the republican party and save the republic. Life is a flimsy dream, and it matters little when one goes. A human life is of small value. During the war thousands of brave boys went down without a tear. I presume the President was a Christian and that he will be happier in paradise than here. It will be no worse for Mrs. Garfield, dear soul, to part with her husband this way than by natural death. He is liable to go at any time anyway. I had no ill-will toward the President. His death was a political necessity. I am a lawyer, a theologian and a politician. I am in the interest of the stalwarts. I was with General Grant and the rest of our men in New York during the canvass. I have some papers for the press which I shall leave with Byron Andrews, Inter-Ocean correspondent, and his coadjutors, at 1420 New York Avenue, where all reporters can see them. I am going to the jail.

(Signed) CHAS. GUITTEAU.

Dr. Townsend, health officer, was the first to reach the President. The President was shot from the right, as he left the ladies room of the depot with Secretary Blaine. The ball entered above the third rib, but whether it has taken its course toward the spine has not yet been ascertained. The wound was probed by Dr. Bliss, who reports that he inserted the probe and the course of the ball did not extend toward the spine, still, it is not certain that it did not. It was the unanimous opinion of the physicians that the need of the President was not the probing of the wound, but rest. The extent and danger of the wounds are not yet known, and more can be told when the urine passes, if the kidneys are injured. The assassin is now in jail, and many think he is crazy.

The President was shot twice, one ball entering from the rear to one side, and is believed to have passed through the kidneys. The doctors hold out some hopes of his recovery, but it is plain that they feel but little, if any, hope. One shot went through the arm.

The President talked to a reporter just now. He said he felt pretty strong, considering his wounds, but complained of a tingling sensation in his feet as annoying him more than anything else. The man who shot him wrote his name on a card as "Charles Guitteau, Attorney-at-Law, Chicago."

Washington is wild with excitement, and the whole populace is gathered about the Baltimore and Potomac depot. The man evidently had deliberately planned the assassination with the idea, so far as can now be ascertained, of making Arthur president.

The following official bulletin with regard to the condition of the President, has just been issued:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 12.35 p.m.

The reaction from the shock of the injury has been very gradual. He is suffering some pain, but it is thought best not to disturb him by making any exploration for the ball, until after a consultation at 3 p.m.

The following has been forwarded by cable:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

WASHINGTON, July 3d.

James Russell Lowell, Minister, etc., London.

The President of the United States was shot this morning by an assassin named Charles Guitteau. The weapon was a large sized revolver. The President had just reached the Executive Mansion.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

1 p.m.—An effort just made to probe for the ball was ineffectual.

1.20 p.m.—The President is somewhat restless, but is suffering less pain. Pulse, 112. Some nausea and vomiting have recently occurred. Considerable hemorrhage has taken place from the wound.

(Signed) D. W. BLISS, M. D.

The President's symptoms at this time are more unfavorable. It is thought there is an internal hemorrhage.

2.30 p.m.—The President's symptoms continue to grow more unfavorable.

2.40 p.m.—Dr. Beckwith, an old physician of the President's, says that President Garfield has but few chances of recovery, and that he may not live twelve hours.

The general impression at the Executive Mansion is that the President is sinking.

2.45 p.m.—No official bulletin has been furnished by Dr. Bliss since 1 p.m. The condition of the President has been growing more unfavorable since that time. Internal hemorrhage is taking place, and grave fears are felt as to the result.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

The President had alighted from his carriage, and was passing through the ladies' room to the cars. When about five feet inside of the room the assassin, who was within three feet of him, fired one shot. The President was dazed and made no attempt at self-protection. Blaine had turned towards one door as the President fell. White, who attends the ladies' waiting rooms, rushed to him and raised up his head. Blaine also rushed to the assistance of the President. The assassin passed out towards Captain Parkee, ticket agent, who jumped through the window, and caught the assassin who made no resistance. Officer Carney, a depot policeman, rushed up and took hold of the assassin, and immediately afterward Officer Scott also took hold of him. Parkee let the officers have him and turned his attention to the President. Help came and the President was taken upstairs. He said not a word until he was laid down. He asked that his shoes be taken off, saying he felt pain in his feet. As soon as his shoes were removed he said to Secretary Windom, "Now write and send a telegram to Mrs. Garfield, saying I feel considerably better, and if she feels well enough, tell her to come to Washington immediately." This dispatch was sent and a special train was at once sent to Long Branch for Mrs. Garfield.

3 p.m.—Hon. Samuel Shellabarger, who has just left the bedside of the President, says that there seems to be absolutely no hope of his rallying. His symptoms are growing more and more alarming, and his death is thought to be very near.

Surgeon-General Barnes says there is absolutely no hope of the recovery of the President. He is probably the best man in the country to know a case like this.

The following physicians are in consultation at the Executive Mansion: Drs. Bliss, Ford, Huntington and Woodward, U. S. A.; Townsend, Lincoln, Reyburn, Norris, Purvis, Patterson, Surgeon Barnes and Surgeon-General Wait.

A bulletin of his condition from the Executive Mansion will hereafter be telegraphed every half hour.

THE ASSASSIN.

The district jail in the eastern extremity of the city was visited by a reporter after 11 o'clock, for the purpose of obtaining an interview with Charles Guitteau, the would-be assassin of President Garfield. Officers refused admittance to the building. They stated as a reason therefor that they were acting under instructions received from the attorney-general, the purport of which were that no one should be allowed to see the prisoner. At first, indeed, the officers emphatically denied that the man had been conveyed to the jail, fearing, it appears, that should the fact be made known that he was there, the building would be attacked by a mob. Information had reached them that such a movement was contemplated. A large guard composed of regulars from the barracks, and the metropolitan police force are momentarily expected to arrive at the jail to be in readiness to repel any attack. The statements that the assassin is Guitteau, was verified by the officer in charge, in the jail. The prisoner arrived and was placed in the cell about 10.30 o'clock, just one hour after the shooting occurred. He has a sandy complexion, and is slight, weighing not more than 125 pounds. He wears a moustache and light chin whiskers, and has sunken cheeks and eyes, far apart from each other, give him a sullen, or as an official described it, a loony appearance. The officer in question stated that he has noticed the peculiarity of nearly all murderers, and that their eyes are set far apart, and Guitteau, he said, proves no exception to the
