A CRISIS IN TWO UTAH INDUSTRIES.

Two Utah industries are feeling the effects of Democratic free trade. One is the Knight Woolen Mills at Provo and the other the beet sugar industry in Ogden and elsewhere throughout the state.

The first severe blow to the Provo company following the enactment of the Underwood tariff law was the falling off in the demand for Mackinaw woolsens, for which there was formerly a demand amounting to $20,000 to $30,000 a year from the northern states.

THE PALACE CAFE

176 25th St.

I, felt in Provo and it is generally believed that unless the demand for American woolsens picks up exceedingly well the Provo woolen mills will be obliged to shut down entirely or else reduce the force of employees to half of the number now employed at reduced earnings.

While the woolen mills industry is crippled, the beet sugar business is facing ruin. A dispatch from Washington declares all hope of a partial restoration of the duty on raw sugar has been abandoned by the beet sugar interests as a consequence of official declarations made by Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce and labor.

Both of these leaders of the administration forces made these statements after discussing the subject with the President, and both asserted that he would veto any attempt to revise the laws.

"I consider that the press will be doing a public service by letting the public know that there is absolutely no chance for anybody to get through any legislation looking to a change in the sugar tariff.

This is the most serious blow that has been struck at agriculture in Weber county and other parts of the state where the beet industry occupies a very large percentage of all the cultivated land.

ONE OF THE CHAUTAUQUA LECTURES.

Count Alexander M. Lochwitzky, one of the speakers at the local Chautauqua, has a lecture on Russia, his native land, which, if it is not the extreme of exaggeration, calls for an international protest against the Czar and his government.

We are not in a position to contradict Count Lochwitzky, but it does not seem possible that any great number of people, calling themselves civilized, would submit to the treachery, distrust and brutalities described by this Russian.

UTAH POLITICS ARE CLEAN.

Sometimes we are inclined to speak harshly of politics in Utah and to denounce our officials for failing in some particulars to meet our fondest expectations, but when we turn from home affairs to inquire as to the political welfare of other commonwealths, there is a sense of satisfaction in knowing that Utah is a comparatively clean and pure state, politically and otherwise.

AN OLD AND A NEW PRAYER.

The Christian Herald has given to us a new prayer through a contributor who says: "Recently when riding with a gentleman in the seventies, he told me he never went to bed at night without adding to his prayers the prayer familiar to most of us in childhood: 'Now I lay me down to sleep.'"

"Now I wake me from my sleep, Help me, Lord, thy will to keep, Make me noble, good and strong, And protect me from all wrong."

ROY INGEBRETSEN STABBED IN BACK

Roy Ingebretsen, a well-known local painter and paperhanger, was stabbed in the back last night with a paring knife and dangerously wounded.

He came out of the store and, going behind Ingebretsen, stabbed him between the shoulders. He then ran south on the avenue and was followed by Peter Lever, who saw the trouble.

CLEAN TOWN CONTEST NOW ON IN THE STATE OF UTAH

City Sanitary Inspector George Shorten has received a copy of the following letter, which contains suggestions to the authorities of the different cities and towns in the "Clean Town" contest, as to how their work should be conducted in order to meet with success from the Utah Development League.

"The most important thing in connection with the clean town contest is to have everyone interested in it. To do this public meetings should be held. Ask the ministers and bishops of the different churches to set apart a certain day to be devoted to the subject of cleanliness.

"With a sentiment created in favor of the contest and a committee organized, best results will be obtained by setting apart certain days or a certain week to do certain things. Local conditions might have considerable bearing upon which part of the work shall be done first.

"Streets, sidewalks and alleys should be one of the first because in a great many places there are so many weeds. Destroying them at this time means doing away with millions of seeds.

"In some places a sub-committee has been selected to take care of the thirteen different points from which the scoring will be made.

"See that the newspapers are kept posted as to what you are doing. They can be a big help in the work.

"We will try to furnish you with public speakers if you so desire. A committee of two or three including the health officer could help very materially in scoring the different places in your town.

FUSIONISTS ARE TO DIVIDE OFFICERS IN WEBER COUNTY

Democratic and Progressive committees met last night and decided to enter into a fusion campaign this fall and divide the nominations for the respective office on the basis of eight for the progressives and seven for the Democrats.

The Progressives will nominate for the offices of three representatives in the state legislature, county clerk, treasurer, recorder, surveyor and four-year-term commissioner, and the Democrats will name the state senator, one representative, sheriff, assessor, attorney, two-year term commissioner, and Ogden precinct constable—all of whom shall be placed on both tickets.

It was also determined that the two conventions shall be held simultaneously on August 8.
