LAW IS CONSTITUTIONAL, BUT LIQUOR CAN BE HELD FOR PERSONAL USE IF PURCHASED BEFORE AUG. 1

Liquor seized by officers of Ogden city at the Union Stockyards on August 17, was ordered returned to the owner yesterday afternoon by Judge A. E. Pratt in an opinion covering 29 pages prepared as judgment in the motion for dismissal of the case brought by the defendant's attorney. The liquor is said to be worth $250 and was purchased prior to August 1, when the prohibitory law went into effect, and held for personal use.

District Attorney S. P. Dobbs moved for a stay of execution of the order to return the liquor to the owner pending his preparation of an appeal to the supreme court. The stay will cover 30 days and was granted by Judge Pratt.

Judge Pratt said in part, as bearing directly on his final judgment: "Does the act apply to the possession of liquors purchased before the act went into effect?"

"Undoubtedly, it does, so far as the right to traffic in liquors is concerned, but if kept and intended for personal use another question is presented. It is observed that up to and including July 31st, 1917, the right to manufacture and sell liquors was recognized, even to the last minute of that day. As there can be no sale without a purchaser, the right to purchase and keep liquors therefore existed. In other words, the right of property in liquors existed, and it was preserved as to dealers and druggists for at least ten days after the law went into effect, and they were encouraged to dispose of, by sale, up to the very last minute of July 31, 1917, as much of their liquors as it was possible for them to sell. Such being the case, especially in view of the fact that nowhere in the act is the drinking of liquors prohibited, except in certain enumerated places, and there is no requirement that persons other than dealers and druggists shall remove their liquors from the state, or destroy them, nor may they sell or give them away and in view of the fact that the various provisions of the act referred to imply that liquors in some circumstances may be lawfully possessed, would it be reasonable to so construe the act as to prohibit in the next second of time any use whatever of the liquors purchased, which the state has said might lawfully be purchased up to and including the last moment of July 31, 1917. Shall it be presumed that the state has said to A, the dealer, 'You may sell within the state to B, the consumer, as much of your liquors as you can up to and including July 31, 1917, and have ten days thereafter in which to dispose of the remainder outside the state, and the state will thereupon confiscate what you sell to B; he shall not have the benefit of what we permit you to sell and him to purchase?' Was the law intended to speak prospectively only, or retrospectively as well as prospectively? If the latter, would it not be an ex post facto law as to liquors purchased prior to August 1, 1917, for personal use, and also contravene the constitutional provision that no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law?"

After reviewing the decisions of other courts, in which the question was involved, Judge Pratt concluded: "Since the act in question, if construed to apply to liquors purchased before the act went into effect and retained for personal use, without intention to sell or otherwise unlawfully dispose of the same, would make mere inaction, or failure to destroy them, a crime, and since the law encouraged and permitted the purchase of liquors up to the very moment that the law went into effect and saved to dealers and druggists their property right for at least a period of ten days thereafter, and does not expressly prohibit the use of liquors as a beverage, except in certain designated places, nor require that persons other than dealers and druggists shall remove their liquors from the state of Utah or destroy them, I am constrained to the opinion that the legislature did not intend to make the possession of liquors, acquired before the law went into effect, and held for personal use thereafter, a crime, and did not intend that such liquors should be subject to seizure and destruction."

Judge Pratt decided that the act is a valid exercise of the police power of the state and not unconstitutional and that intoxicating liquors may not now nor since August 1, be purchased, or brought into the state, whether for personal use or otherwise, except as provided by the act.

WEBER COLLEGE TO HAVE BIG CHOIR

A choir of 100 voices will be organized at the Weber college this year under the direction of Prof. Joseph Ballantyne, leader of the Ogden Tabernacle choir, according to plans outlined at the institution yesterday. Several good voices have been found among the student body and faculty and it is thought that an excellent choral body can be shaped out of the material available.

school, the school band, is receiving attention from Prof. E. W. Nichols, and he announces that the school as in former years, will have a good band this year. Rehearsals for the band are being held at regular periods.

WEBER COUNTY FARMERS ASKED TO BUY LIBERTY BONDS

Eight hundred letters urging the recipients to buy Liberty bonds and spread the news of the bonds through every circle they touch, were mailed today by the Weber county farm bureau to members of the organization in various parts of Weber county. The letters in vivid terms ask the farmers to back up the proposition the government is undertaking in floating the second big loan.

The farmers are requested to buy at least one bond in each family and more if the investment can be spared. Attention is called to the good prices and abundant crops which the county residents have been blessed with this year and they are asked to return a small part of their bounteous profits to the aid of the government.

"There is hardly a farmer in Weber county," said an official of the bureau this morning, "who cannot spare enough money to buy at least one Liberty bond of small denomination. A few might have to make a small sacrifice, but consider the cause they are serving. We urged them to plant extensively this spring and they complied. The biggest crops in the nation's history resulted. They responded to that request. Now we ask them to help the government with a small loan or a large loan and we are certain they will back the proposition."

WIRELESS TELEPHONE TEST WHICH MYSTIFIES OGDENITES WHO HEAR VOICES OF FRIENDS

A demonstration of a new wireless telephone apparatus was given today on the stage of the Orpheum theater. It is the invention of Prince Lamert, a small, nervous, but very energetic man on the Pantages bill this week. That it is successful, for short distances at least, was shown by the party who witnessed and heard the machine in operation. That there is a mystery about it was also shown by the fact that the inventor refused to reveal the details of the machine in the basement of the theater in a dark room, and that no one was allowed to see it.

The demonstration proved most interesting. To say that it was an unique experience and quite uncanny would be putting it mildly. The receiver, placed in a large vase, with tiny earpieces screwed into the side. This is held to the ear and the sound seems to come from the vessel itself.

The first demonstration was conducted by Roy Lampini, who went into the basement and read an article from a small newspaper. His voice was easily distinguishable. Each person in the audience was permitted to hear a portion of what he said. Then A. W. Hadley, the real estate man, went into the basement and talked into the machine. His voice was heard at once.

Among those to hear the mysterious machine were Mayor A. R. Heywood, LeRoy Leishman, and about twenty others. The total distance covered between the receiver and the transmitter was about fifty feet, with several walls intervening. The battery to operate the machine consisted of eight dry cells. Whether it will work at great distances is a matter yet to be settled. In Salt Lake it was operated from the Pantages theater to the Semloh hotel, a distance of over a block.

Among wireless telephony has been invented and used for great distances, this is an entirely new scheme, according to LeRoy Leishman.

Prince Lampini stated that, although he has been working on it for three years, last week in Salt Lake was the first time he had been able to work it successfully. "Even the most skeptical must agree," he said, "after the demonstration today, that I have discovered something that will certainly revolutionize wireless telephony. Although I was unable to arrange for those hearing the talking to respond, all I have to do is to set up a transmitter at this end of the line. This I cannot do, because I do not care to have people see the transmitting device until I have it patented."

He said he had tested the apparatus under water and that it works as well as it does out of water. If such is the case, it opens up untold opportunities for usefulness in under-sea warfare. The brothers plan to perfect the invention for use between aeroplanes and, in fact, Prince Lampini states that the field for its use is so unlimited he dares not think of it. He stated that there is no possibility of currents being crossed as with wires, nor is there a possibility of conversation being picked up by others. For this reason alone, it is event that if the invention is serviceable for long distances, it will come into immediate use.

SIX VIOLATORS OF DRAFT LAW

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 12.—Indictments charging attempts to violate the selective draft law against Raymond I. CANDIDATES IN SALT LAKE CITY

Salt Lake Tribune: Now comes the first movement that looks like the launching of a boom for a candidate. He is Neesen and J. E. Jennings are to come out for election as commissioners at the request of citizens who appealed to them on the basis of need of efficient service in the city offices.

Both are business men of general acquaintance in the city. Mr. Neesen being associated with the Kimball and Richards Real Estate company and Mr. Jennings with the Jennings-Hanna Warehouse company.

But unless the race takes on speed soon, whoever wins will perform in a walk. The election date is November 6 and the primary election, preceding that by two weeks, will be held on October 23.

Also, the voters are to have an opportunity to select from a goodly number of candidates two city commissioners and a city auditor to take office next January 1. Petitions for position on the ballot of the primary election are multiplying in the files of the city recorder's office. Those of C. M. Hecker, M. R. Stewart and A. H. Crabbe were added to the number yesterday.

Each is a candidate for election to one of the two commissionerships, the terms of which expire at the close of this year.

Petitions Now Filed. Previously filed petitions were those of Stephen B. Newman, at present a commissioner; F. S. Fernstrom, Frank L. Hines and W. Lynch. Commissioner Heber M. Wells will file his petition within the next few days. It is understood, as will also F. R. Newman, while the circulation of a petition for the candidacy of Frank J. Hewlett has been begun.

Petitions have been filed by two candidates for the position of auditor, with rumors of others in course of preparation. They are those of E. A. Bock, present holder of the office, and Frank Swenson. The petition filed by Mr. Bock constitutes a volume containing 1681 signatures of qualified voters. The legal requirement is 100 signatures.

Modest statements of initial campaign expenses are being filed daily by the various candidates. His attention having been called to the fact that his first statement was overdue, A. H. Crabbe made immediate correction of the oversight yesterday by filing with the city recorder yesterday a statement of his expenses, actual and contracted, up to date. The statement shows $2.50 actually paid out and a total of $23.25 in liabilities incurred.

C. M. Hecker and Commissioner Newman also filed initial statements yesterday. Mr. Hecker's campaign expenses so far are shown to have amounted to $26 and those of Commissioner Newman $14.20.
