

Monsignor Cushman Receives Highest Honors From Church

Rev. Father P. M. Cushman, V. G., was invested as a domestic prelate yesterday amid impressive ceremonies in St. Joseph's church. Words of praise were given by the Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, D. D., archbishop of San Francisco.

"A noble man, a faithful priest, an enlightened and patriotic citizen, a loyal friend and a strong soul, kindly and tolerant, we have come to honor this day," were the opening words of Archbishop Hanna.

The church was filled with people, many of whom came from quite a distance to witness the grandeur of the service and greet the church dignitaries who gathered for the occasion.

"What a thing of beauty and of joy it is to a loving heart," the archbishop continued, "to see a young man consecrate himself to any noble purpose, and what a fullness of joy when his consecration is attended by supreme sacrifice and when his purpose is the greatest conceived by man, to achieve the glory of God. Thirty and six years have passed since the day in far off, romantic Ireland, a young man offered his life to Christ for the saving of men, and we come to rejoice with him on a day when he receives reward for service well performed."

These remarks were a portion of the sermon of the service connected with the investiture of Monsignor Cushman, and speaking further in kindly, yet intensely serious vein, Archbishop Hanna brought the congregation into close understanding of the dignity and great responsibility of his calling, "the saving of the souls of men." "Men's souls," he said, "are made in God's image and their salvation is worthy of more than gold, silver or precious stones and the priest who performs his mission has an inheritance far beyond the power of words to describe. To perform his accepted service, he must have charity and love, must be patient, kind and unselfish and must possess a hope that will cheer him on to the querdon of a life well spent.

"As the years roll on, the burden of the priest's responsibility grows greater and likewise his quality of mind and heart must grow to meet the greater burden so that his work may be fulfilled. He must have the qualities of Christ and as a man of dignity in this changing world must stand unchanging."

Many Are Present

Catholics from all parts of the intermountain country, members of the Knights of Columbus, members of virtually every other religious organization in the city, the city commission, including Mayor A. R. Heywood, Chris Flygare and Miles L. Jones, and many other prominent citizens of Ogden and

Salt Lake were in the audience. The clergymen present at the services were:

The Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, D. D., archbishop of San Francisco; the Rt. Rev. Joseph S. Glass, C. M. D. D., bishop of Salt Lake; the Rt. Rev. Thomas Grace, bishop of Sacramento; the Rt. Rev. R. J. Cotter, D. D., South Pasadena, Cal.; the Rev. R. S. Keyzer, administrator of the Boise, Idaho, diocese; the Rev. John S. Laubacher, Oxford, Cal.; Major Edward H. Fitzgerald, chaplain of the war prison barracks at Fort Douglas; Major W. J. Kane, a chaplain at Fort Douglas; the Rev. Thomas Gallagan of Park City; the Rev. Joseph H. Reardon of Long Beach, Cal.; the Rev. John Dunne, S. M.; the Rev. Joseph Schmitt, S. M.; and the Rev. Joseph M. Sullivan, S. M., all of All Hallows college, Salt Lake; Dr. Anzalone of Salt Lake; the Rev. Patrick Mannion, chaplain of the Holy Cross hospital, Salt Lake; the Rev. W. J. Flynn of Salt Lake; the Rev. Timothy O'Brien, chaplain at St. Anne's orphanage, Salt Lake; the Rev. Clement Maloney of Los Angeles; the Rev. George De Stoop of Toledo; the Rev. H. J. M. Weintjes of Salt Lake; the Rev. James O'Grady of Las Vegas, Nev.; the Rev. John Ryan of Eureka; the Rev. James P. Cantwell of San Francisco, secretary to Archbishop Hanna; the Rev. Father Kieley of Grass Valley, Cal.; and the Rev. Michael Sheehan of St. Patrick's church, Salt Lake.

Imposing Sight

Members of the congregation began entering the church an hour before the service began while the visiting dignitaries gathered at the parish house. Members of the Knights of Columbus, 777, acted as ushers in the church and the auditorium well filled before the hour of eleven. The tones of the big pipe organ under the hands of Fr. Philip Banschach, organist of St. Mary's Cathedral of Salt Lake, broke into melody as the procession from the parish house to the church started, and as the procession entered the church the choir sang: "Exce Car Codos." With the opening notes the congregation arose and remained standing until the dignitaries and attendants had assumed their positions within the altar rail. All were in their robes of office making the most imposing sight ever witnessed in Ogden at a religious celebration. The throne was occupied by Archbishop Hanna with Rev. Dunn and Rev. Laubacher acting as deacons and Bishop Grace with Rev. Kieley and Rev. Maloney as chaplains, and Monsignor Cushman, the position of honor.

In the ceremonies that followed Archbishop Hanna was assisted by Dr.

Cotter, Bishop Glass was assisted by Father Sheehan, with Rev. Lagan as deacon and Rev. Ryan as sub-deacon of the mass, and Father Cantwell, master of ceremonies.

The brief conferring the honor of domestic prelate on Rev. Father Cushman, from Pope Benedict XV was read first in Latin and then in English by Rev. Anzalone, previous to the ceremonies of the investiture, which were performed by Archbishop Hanna. Following the investiture the pontifical high mass was sung by Bishop J. S. Glass, accompanied by the choir of 26 voices and the organ music.

Sermon by Archbishop

The occasional sermon, or sermon following the gospel of the mass, was preached by Archbishop Hanna. Turning to Rev. Father Cushman in closing, he said:

"We are this day filled with a spirit of joy and love and congratulation because of the honor which has been conferred upon you—and through you upon all of us—for the years of noble and loving toil in bringing to the Kingdom of God the precious souls of all with whom you have lived and worked. A feeling of love and gladness permeates our being this day and we sincerely hope as the years roll on, that the glory of your holy calling, your success as a priest of Christ, may ever be enhanced. We pray that your years may be many and that in their fullness you may still be storing wisdom and charity to bring honor to Jesus Christ and salvation to the souls of men. God bless and keep you for us ever in love, ever in God's holy service."

The pronouncement of the benediction by Bishop Glass concluded the ceremonies. The Bishop, in behalf of himself, Monsignor Cushman, and the people of the diocese, then thanked Archbishop Hanna, Bishop Grace and the other visiting dignitaries of the church for honoring the occasion with their presence. He concluded his remarks with a tribute of love and respect to Monsignor Cushman, thanking God for "such a helper, counselor, and wise adviser" and wishing him many years of happiness and good works.

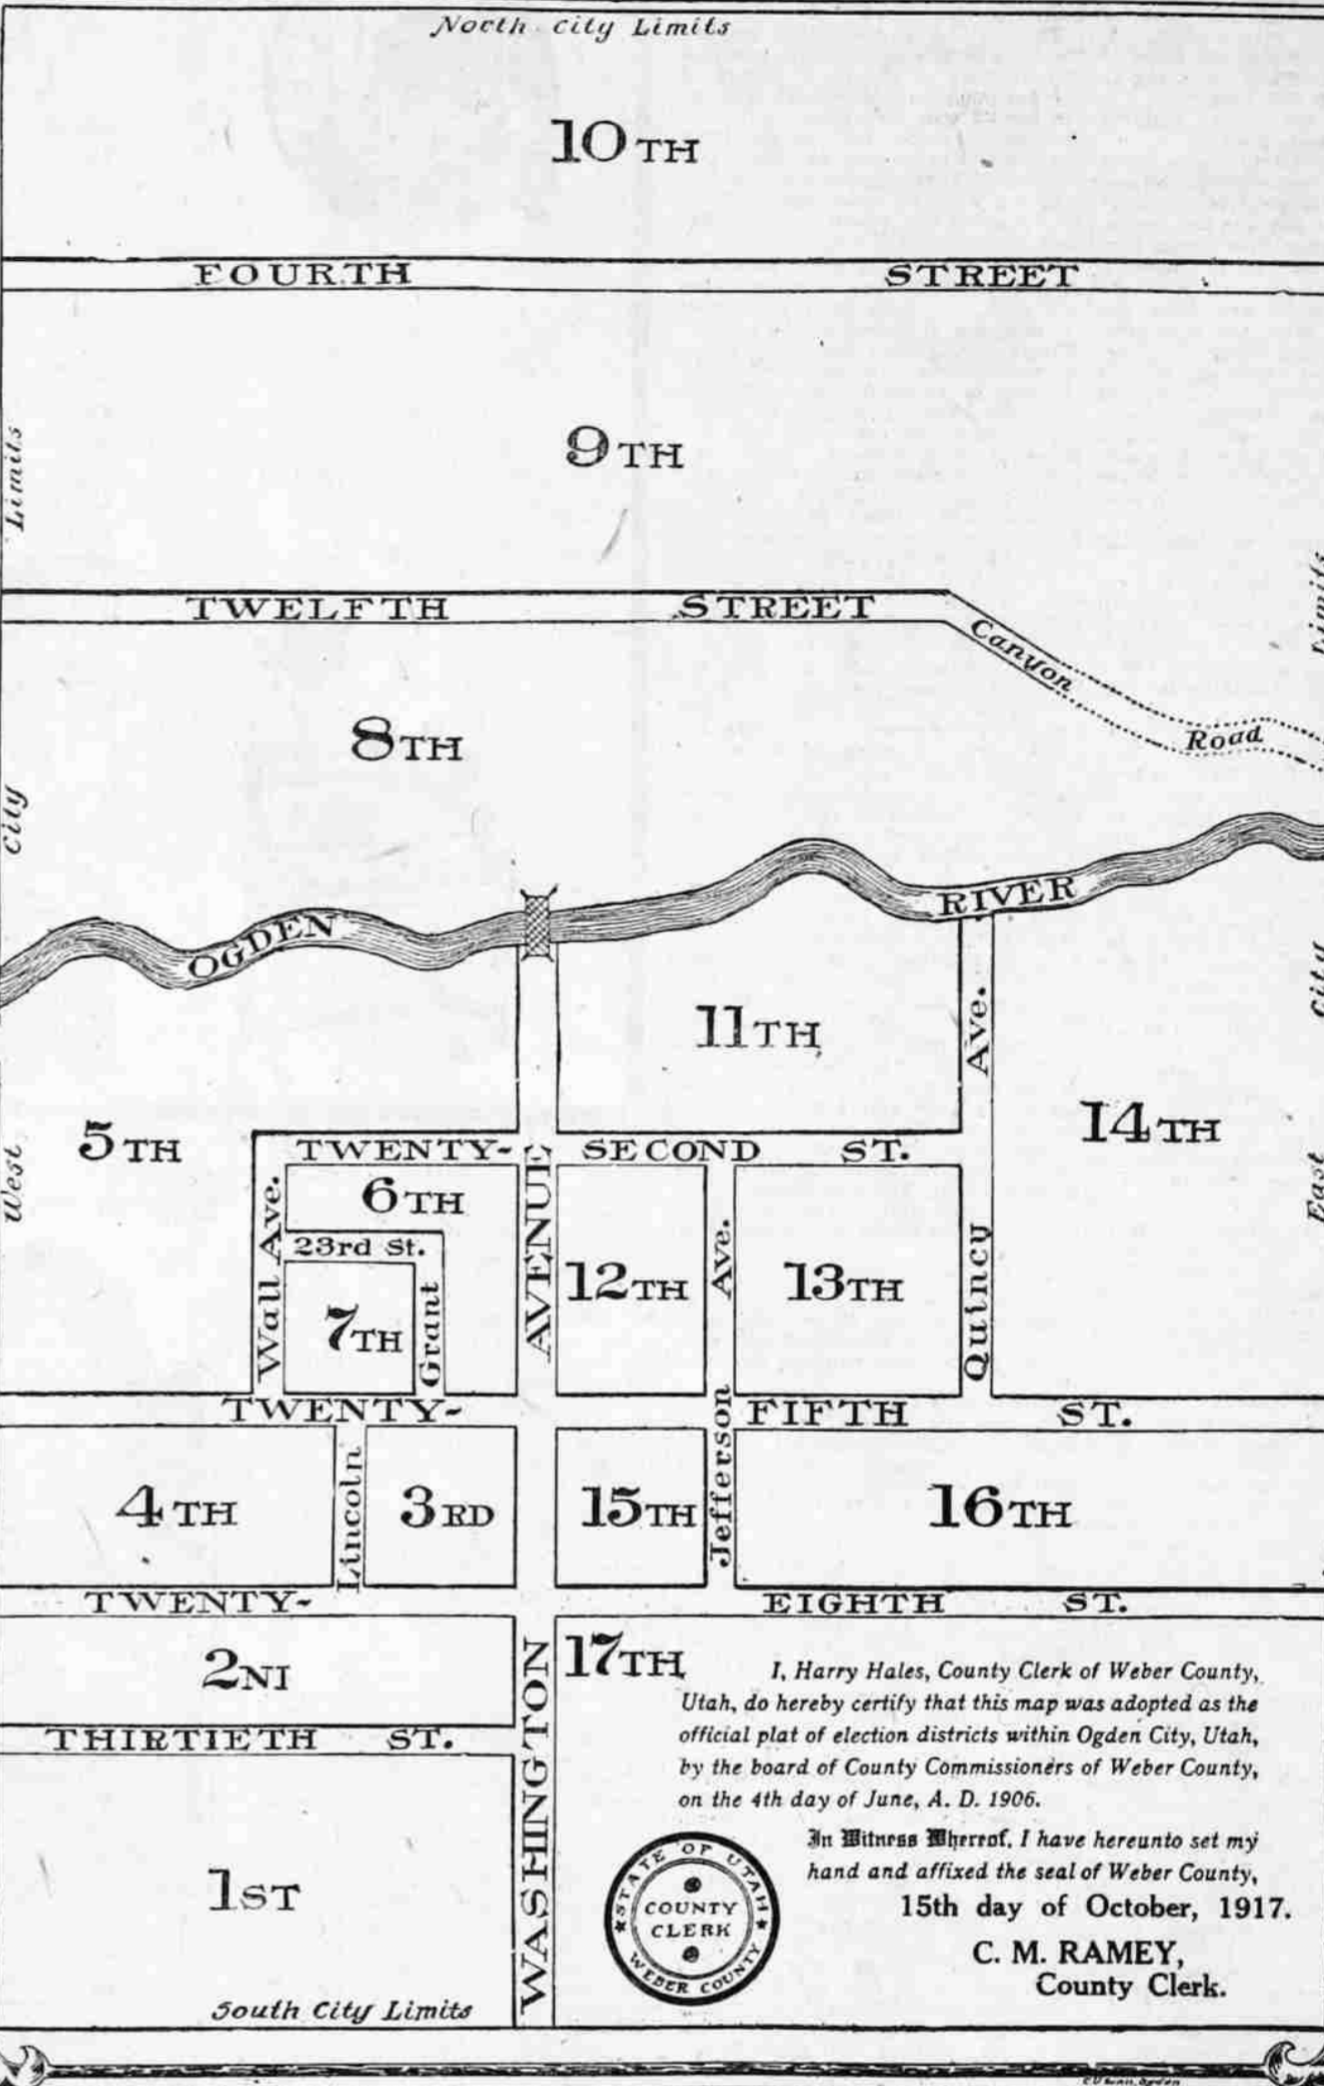

Excellent Choir

The music, as a part of the impressive ceremonies furnished by the choir and soloists under the direction of Miss May Conroy, included "Mass in F" by Schaecker, the offertory quartet, "Ave Maria" by Rampis, the benediction, "O Salutaris" and the "Tantum Ergo." The soloists in the mass were Mrs. F. H. Smythe, Mrs. Raymond Morrissey, Mrs. F. Smith, Mrs. Jack Fisher, Miss Bessie Ahern and Messrs. Albert Spillman, Jack Fisher and A. Junk. The quartet was sung by Miss Frances Smith and Mrs. Bodel and Messrs. Junk and Spillman; the benediction by Mrs. J. P. Dinneen and the "Tantum Ergo" by the choir.

After the service the twenty-seven visiting clergymen were guests of Monsignor Cushman at a dinner in the parish house. A banquet at the Sacred Heart Academy was given early in the evening and the eventful day was closed with the following program of entertainment given in the Academy assembly room:

MAY APPEAL CASE OF STATE AGAINST LIQUOR

District Attorney S. P. Dobbs has written Attorney General Dan B. Shields concerning the advisability of appealing the case of the state of Utah against the liquor found at the Ogden Sales company's office.

The district court ruled that liquor bought prior to August 1, is not subject to seizure and destruction unless it is proven that the liquor was kept for other than private use. All the facts in the case were sent to the attorney general and on his advice the matter will either be appealed or allowed to rest on the decision rendered by Judge Pratt in the local district court.

The case is the one brought about by the seizure of a quantity of liquor from the attic of the office of the Ogden Sales company some time ago. No one ever came forward to claim the liquor, so the court appointed an attorney to defend the liquor.

Mrs. Marion N. Horwitz, widow of a widely known Philadelphia attorney, has been nominated for mayor of Moore Haven, Fla.
