GOLD, GOLD, GOLD!

Our Correspondent is in The New Bonanza Land.

RICH BEYOND MEASURE.

Hundreds of Locations Have Already Been Made and a New Town "Hilldale" is Being Laid Out—Utah County to the Fore With Great Big Strides.

VERNAL, Utah County, Utah, June 22, 1894.—[Correspondence DISPATCH.]—Great excitement prevails here at present. Everything is good. The people think of gold, dream of gold, and from their talk breath gold.

A BONANZA LAND. The excitement is not entirely unwarranted, for the prospectors surely justify the people in feeling hopeful and in believing they have found a bonanza.

HUNDREDS ARE FLOCKING THERE. Men are coming into the country daily and already are the mountains lined with anxious prospectors. Various estimates place the number of men on the ground at from 150 to 300.

A NEW TOWN BEING BUILT. Some of Vernal's influential citizens have already incorporated a townsite and at present one of them, Mr. Ed. F. Harmon, is surveying and platting the ground, and corner lots in Hilldale will be ready for selling by big figures before long reaches you. (That is, the incorporators think so.)

MILES AND MILES OF GOLD ORE. A great number of locations have been made, and are daily being made. It is said that the ledge on which the original locations were made can be traced for miles, and it has been located its entire length, some men having traced it on the Uintah reservation and there posted their notices.

AT FEVER HEAT. The good people of Vernal were rather slow to believe the reports regarding the find, but they now are at a fever heat and every man who can possibly leave the valley, is in the mountains.

HALLIDAY IS INTERVIEWED. Northwest of this city around with his prospecting outfit, I saw Mr. Halliday today. He was one of the original locators and he still feels very much encouraged and says that the expert who was sent out from Salt Lake with him and his companions, Mr. S. S. Rogers, has returned to Salt Lake with good reports of the country and the prospects found. He says he was more than pleased with the showing, and that it was as represented by Mr. Hatch and his associates.

COMING FROM EVERYWHERE. People are coming in from Colorado and Wyoming, and Utah and Salt Lake counties are sending their number. The people indeed feel sanguine as to the ultimate result, and if it continues as at present and the mines are no fake this will indeed be the coming part of the territory.

ROOM FOR FARMERS ALSO. Vast lands and plenty of water await the anxious farmer, and undiscovered mineral wealth is in the surrounding mountains in vast quantities. The people feel that it will not be long before these reservations will be thrown open and when they are, Utah county will not be held up to ridicule.

CASS IS PEGGING AWAY. Cass Hite is still in the mountains and is working hard. He has not yet recorded any claims but parties who have seen him state that he has found some valuable rock and that he at present has but little to say as to his success.

ANOTHER LETTER PROMISED. I will visit the discoveries in a few days and will then give you something more. G. W. CRAIG.

AN AWFUL DEED

President Carnot of France Stabbed to the Heart

BY A DAGO ANARCHIST.

The Murderer Was Caught by Gendarmes and Only Hard Work of the Police Prevented the People From Tearing Him to Pieces—All France is Mourning.

LYONS, France, June 24.—At 9:25 o'clock tonight, President Carnot started for the theatre, where a gala performance was to be given because of his presence in the city.

Carnot's carriage was driven slowly along in front of the palace of commerce, and then turned into Rue de la Republique, still following the facade of the palace. When half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people, who were loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprang upon the steps of the president's landau.

Just at this moment M. Carnot was waving his right hand and saluting with his hat in his left hand in response to the ovation that was being given to him by the crowd. The people close to the carriage saw the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand.

By the glare of the electric lights, they saw the bright blade gleaming in the air as the assassin's arm descended and then President Carnot was seen to fall back into his seat, his face deadly pale.

One of his hands was pressed to his heart, where the steel had entered the body. M. Rivaud, prefect of Lyons, who was seated by President Carnot, immediately struck the assassin a blow full in the face, and knocked him from the step, thus preventing the man from stabbing the president again, which it was his evident intention to do.

Instantly cries of "Le president est assassiné!" "Mort l'assassin!" were heard on every side, and the crowd in the vicinity of the carriage swelled to enormous proportions, every member of it seemingly intent upon killing the assassin. He was grasped by a dozen hands and his life was being taken from him there paid the penalty of his crime had it not been for several sergeants de ville, who seized him and attempted to draw him away from his captors. This was found to be impossible, as the infuriated populace was determined to lynch the man. All efforts of the sergeants availed nothing, beyond saving the man from instant death. Blows were aimed at his face and he was raised over the railing of the carriage, who had by this time received reinforcements and many of the blows inflicted fairly.

At length the police succeeded in driving the howling mob back a foot or so from their prisoner, but to get the captive through the crowd was a physical impossibility.

In the meantime the news of the attempted murder had spread with lightning-like rapidity, and mounted guards were sent to the aid of the police, who were struggling to preserve the life of the assassin.

With drawn sabers in their hands, the guards rode down into the crowd, needless of whom the horses trampled upon. The crowd gave way before the horses, and at last the center of the mob was reached. Then a car was formed around the almost exhausted policeman and their captive, and their march to the police station began. Even thus surrounded the prisoner made frantic efforts to reach him. The guards repelled these attacks with the flat sides of their swords, at the same time keeping watchful eyes upon the crowd to prevent the prisoner from being shot. Multitudes were hurled upon the captive, and never before has such a wild indignation against a human being been seen in this city.

The news of the assassination caused a great sensation at the Grand theatre, which was filled to the walls by the elite of Lyons. All were waiting with impatience the arrival of the president, and all were unable to understand the delay. Suddenly a man entered the theatre, crying at the top of his voice, "The president has been assassinated."

The most intense excitement followed. This abrupt announcement. Women screamed and several fainted. Men ran out of the building in order to confirm the news. They found all the streets leading to the palace filled with excited throngs, and were convinced the report of the attempt on the life of the president was true.

Suddenly through the throng sped a landau conveying Adrian Dupuy, a brother of the prime minister, Deputy Chaudey and Prefect Rivaud, the crowd giving way before the carriage as it dashed into the Rue de la Republique, preceded by four mounted gen d'armes. The crowd thinking now of the report of the assassination was untrue, and that the president was in the carriage, shouted: "Vive Carnot, vive la republique!"

M. Chaudey and Rivaud in tremulous voices said: "Don't shout; the president has been the victim of an outrage."

The cheers were instantly turned to curses, and many and loud were the cries for vengeance. The landau proceeded to the theatre. As soon as they were seen, the whole audience arose, and amid profound silence, M. Rivaud said in a voice broken with sobs: "The president has just been assassinated."

This was received with a terrible explosion of fury. The theatre responded with shouts of "a la mort l'assassin," and cries for vengeance upon him.

"In the Rue de la Republique, a miscreant under pretext of presenting a petition, stabbed M. Carnot with a dagger."

M. Rivaud was again interrupted with shouts of "Death to the murderer!

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

revenge! revenge!" Waving his hands for silence, M. Rivaud again spoke, saying: "Do not make my mission more painful. We left M. Carnot in the hands of doctors. You understand that under these conditions our hearts are filled with sorrow, and that the proposed performance in the president's honor cannot take place."

The assassin is an Italian named Cesare Giovanni Sante. Sante is a beardless young man, 20 or 25 years old. When arrested he was attired in a brown suit and wore a peaked cap that matched the suit in color. As he marched under police guard from the Rue de la Republique to the station he held his head down, but his eyes glanced furtively around as though he was seeking an opportunity to escape. To have made such an attempt, however, would have been the height of folly, unless he desired to commit suicide, for there is not the slightest doubt had he got away from the protection of the police, he would have been torn limb from limb by the crowd, whose every action showed they were thirsty for his blood.

Sante, who speaks French badly, when questioned by Prefect Lepin at the police station in Rue Molere said he had lived at Gette, department of Peral, for the past six months and had only come to Lyons today. He gave his age as 22. His replies were given coolly, but without any sign of bravado.

He refused, however, to answer many of the questions put to him regarding his motive for stabbing the president, declaring that on the subject he would speak only before a tribunal. When he was searched by the police, a book was found in one of his pockets in which it was written that he had been a village in the province of Milan, Italy.

M. Carnot's last speech was delivered at the banquet given in his honor. He dwelt upon the success of the exhibition and said the same heart beats in all French breasts when it is known in the honor, security of rights of the country are at stake. This same union of all Frenchmen formed a guarantee of the march towards progress and justice to which it belonged to France to give an example to the world.

THE DEATH BED.

Shortly after midnight, the archbishop of Lyons was summoned to the bed-side of the dying president to administer to him the last rites of the church. He was in a room but a short time when he retired to an adjoining room. He remained until 12:30 o'clock and he was again summoned to the president's room, where he administered the sacrament. M. Carnot remained conscious to the last. He realized that his life was rapidly ebbing away and twice he said: "Je m'en vais. (I am going away)."

Dr. Poncet leaned over the bed and said to him: "Your hands are here, monsieur le president." M. Carnot replied: "I am grateful for your presence, and a minute later he gasped for breath, there was a convulsive shuddering of his body and the president of France was dead.

The lives of all Italians in the city is in danger. The populace is enraged and it is difficult to prevent a bloody riot.

THERE is a crowd of ten or a dozen tramps at the depot headed west. They are "wealers" returning. They report that there are hundreds more coming this way between here and Grand Junction. The railroad boys report the same thing.

THOMAS LEONARD was fined $5.00 today by Justice Wood for driving cows on the sidewalk on H street below First. E. D. Boren swore to the complaint and Mr. Leonard pleaded guilty.

MR. HOPKINS, telegraph operator at the R. G. W. depot, this city, was made a happy man on Friday morning last. His wife presented him with an eight pound boy.

SHERIFF BROWN and Deputy Hall went up to Thistle this morning in response to a telegram informing them that the store of D. F. Smith of that place had been broken into and burglarized some time during last night.

Are Men Getting More Vain? A local philosopher, who makes a practice of observing other people's manners and commenting upon their habits, states that nearly every man now carries a pocket mirror. According to him, this habit has grown immensely of late, and nearly every man can be observed at frequent intervals pulling a glass out of his pocket and looking at the set of his necktie or the appearance of his whiskers.—Philadelphia Call.

THE ANNUAL FEAST.

Superintendent Gillies of the Lake View North Sabbath School Treats His Pupils to a Strawberry Festival.

VINEYARD, Utah, June 23.—[Correspondence DISPATCH.]—As has been his custom for years at strawberry season, Superintendent John Gillies of the Lake View north Sabbath school has again feasted his pupils on the products of his strawberry bed. Yesterday he called the Sunday school children together and treated them right royally to a feast such as would inspire the heart of even a democrat to write of the beauties of home production.

The Lake View north Sabbath school can well be reported to be in a flourishing condition, which was evidenced by the large number of pupils who attended the strawberry festival given by our worthy superintendent. It was also apparent that all present on this particular occasion were well prepared to execute their part of the program, which was arranged by a host of fair waiters, and which consisted of the following questions:

Have another plate, please? Yes'm.

Take another piece of cake? Yes thanks.

Not only were these questions answered promptly by the smallest pupils, but all from the age of one to seventy-one were able to answer each question propounded.

Many thanks are due Superintendent Gillies for the kind and considerate treatment our children receive at his hands annually at strawberry time. Mr. Gillies raises strawberries of the very best quality, the richest flavor, the largest size. Such were the berries eaten at the festival yesterday. C. C.
