Professional Traders Merely Testing Financial Waters, With Eye on Future.

FIRM UNDERTONE SEEMS BASED ON STRONG HOPES

Railroad Earnings Show No Improvement, but Rather Continuous Decline.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The stock market was apathetic today, and the sluggish prices represented nothing more substantial than the testing operations of professional traders.

While the May average thus far shows a noticeable change in fundamental conditions, the present firm undertone of the market evidently is based on the conviction that improvement lies ahead.

The poor showing of present conditions seems not to have much effect in making this opinion.

While securities are withheld from the market, it does not stimulate the demand for new holdings, even with the approach of the semi-annual distributions of probably $200,000,000 in New York and with an untidy surplus of $200,000,000 in the New York market.

The Washington estimates of $60,000,000 for the year ending tomorrow point to the possibility of early withdrawal of government deposits from the National banks.

Bank reserves are not so abundant as in view of the bulk of the bank deposits and the wide margin of unemployment.

There is no apparent interruption of the inflow of currency from the country's active circulation into New York.

Railroad earnings reports show no sign of promised improvement in business.

While the May average thus far shows a noticeable change in fundamental conditions, the present firm undertone of the market evidently is based on the conviction that improvement lies ahead.
