

HANS SCHMIDT HURLS ROSARY WHEN ANGERED

Self-confessed Murderer of Anna Aumuller Held to the Grand Jury After the Coroner's Inquest.

ACTION OF PRIEST CREATES AN UPROAR

Women Among the Spectators Scramble for Souvenirs; Detectives Force Prisoner Into Seat.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Hans Schmidt, priest and self-confessed murderer of Anna Aumuller, was held today for the grand jury following an inquest held by Coroner Feinberg before a jury of millionaires, with Theodore P. Shonts as foreman. The other jurors were Marcus Loew, B. J. Greenhut, Edwin Marston, G. G. McDuff, M. Regensberg, G. W. Fairchild, Howard Weir, Latham R. Reid and P. A. O'Laughlin.

The verdict rendered was that Anna Aumuller came to her death "on September 2 at 63 Broadway avenue, New York City, from a hemorrhage caused at the hands of Hans Schmidt."

Schmidt, whose unkempt, disheveled appearance amazed the spectators, threw the crowded courtroom into an uproar just before the jury retired by leaping to his feet and hurling a rosary and a handful of coins into the faces of a group of spectators behind him, whom he accused of laughing at him. The beads of the rosary scattered like shot and the crucifix struck a reporter over the eye, inflicting a painful cut.

Scramble for Souvenirs.

The detectives guarding the prisoner sprang upon him and hurled him to his seat, while the score of women in the courtroom scrambled for the beads and coins as souvenirs.

Until the moment of his startling outbreak, Schmidt sat motionless. When he stood up to throw the beads and coins he was shaking with anger and exclaimed:

"What are you laughing at? What are you laughing at?"

Witnesses Are Few.

Only six witnesses were questioned and the actual taking of evidence lasted only fourteen minutes. The discovery of the first fragments of the dismembered torso was described by Mary Bann and Anna Hirt. The chum of the dead girl told how she had identified this section of the torso by a brown spot upon the right breast. Inspector Faurot told of the arrest and confession of Schmidt and how the latter claimed to have disposed of the body after dismembering it. Coroner's Physician King of Hudson county, N. J., who performed the autopsy, testified that death had resulted from hemorrhage.

Shuffles Into Room.

His hair was uncombed and hung down over his forehead. He walked to his chair with a shuffling gait, looking neither left nor right, shook hands with his counsel, exchanged a few whispered words and sat down. He seemed to keep his gaze fixed on Anna Hirt, the chum of the girl he had slain, and on Inspector Faurot, who placed him under arrest.

Dr. King, who testified at the inquest, declared later that he doubted Schmidt's story that he had dropped all the sections of the body from a North river ferry boat.

The physician said that the fact that part of one of the legs was found in the lower bay indicated that the slayer may have dropped some of the severed sections from a Coney Island or Sandy Hook boat. He also declared that if the head should ever be found it can be fitted to the trunk because of the jagged cuts made by the murderer in severing the vertebrae.

NEW TARIFF LAW IS SIGNED BY WILSON

by members of his official family, there was none happier than Joseph R. Wilson, younger brother of the chief executive, who came here from Baltimore tonight to witness the signing. Mrs. Wilson and daughters are still at Cornish, N. H., the summer capital. Besides the officials, a large number of newspaper men crowded into the president's office. There was an informal reception for a few minutes and then the Underwood-Simmons tariff law was carried away to the department of state and deposited in the archives along with other historic pieces of legislation.

Quick Work at End.

The speed with which congress disposed of the last work on the tariff bill and sent the measure to the White house demonstrated the anxiety of house and senate to get through with the burden that had held them in continuous session since April.

Clerks of the senate were at work throughout the morning correcting proof on the engrossed copy of the bill and making sure it contained no errors or misplaced punctuation marks. The bill, accompanied by the conference report as agreed on by the senate last night, came to the house as soon as that body met. For more than an hour the house debated as to what action it should take, some of the parliamentary experts arguing that no further action was necessary, while others insisted the house must recede from its compromise cotton futures tax. Speaker Clark finally upheld the latter contention and the house quickly voted the cotton tax out of the tariff bill.

Sent to White House.

The last vote was reached at 1:23. At 2:15 the speaker had affixed his name to the completed bill and within ten minutes Chief Clerk Jerry South had carried it to the senate and it had been signed by Vice President Marshall. Clerks of the senate then took charge of the bill and conveyed it to the White house. The rest of both houses was in session until midnight was apparent. Scores of members of senate and house had left the city yesterday and there was less than a dozen present in the house when final action was taken on the bill. Only extraordinary efforts of senate leaders kept the senate in town to enable that body to work today on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. Many members left Washington tonight, although both houses of congress will remain constructively in session.

Both Sides Agree.

The final steps taken by the house today to complete the tariff bill did not involve the ratification of the bill. Republicans and Democrats concurred in the action of receding from the cotton futures tax, agreeing that no questions of parliamentary procedure should be left open to future attack in the courts. It is generally understood that the executive will endeavor to pass as soon as the new congress convenes for the regular session in December, if not before that time, to take up cotton futures legislation and to regulate cotton exchange trading and to lay a heavy tax on that branch of cotton trading, which members of the house and senate characterize as "gambling."

First Trade Arrangement.

Germany will be the first nation to take advantage of that section of the new tariff act which provides for the negotiation of reciprocity arrangements embodying mutual concessions in customs duties. The German embassy in Washington has already notified the state department in anticipation of the signing of the bill by the president tonight. The charge of the German embassy, acting in the absence of Ambassador Bernstorff, has been in communication with the state department and it is expected that a rough draft of such an arrangement as is referred to in that section soon will be ready for consideration. As the chief executive of the conference has no longer contains the retaliatory provisions inserted in the senate, and is now nothing more than an authorization through senators to negotiate trade agreements with foreign nations wherein mutual concessions are made looking toward freer trade relations and further national expansion of trade and commerce.

IMPORTERS READY FOR REDUCED RATES

By International News Service. WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—In bond and in ships lying outside various United States ports with cargoes ready to take advantage of the reduced rates of the Underwood-Simmons tariff law, the treasury department estimates there are goods and merchandise valued at $100,000,000. Three-fourths of this enormous sum will enter through the port of New York, the remainder being scattered among the ports of Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and more southern points.

From the moment the law becomes effective, all merchandise will be subject to assessment under the rates of the new Democratic tariff. As a matter of fact, however, these rates will not be collected. The government always takes the advantage to make sure that its revenues are properly collected, and no chances of loss under the new bill will be taken.

Not until the collectors throughout the country are thoroughly posted with regard to the new law and the detailed regulations of the department have been received by collectors in the remotest portions of the country will importers receive the immediate and direct benefit of reduced rates.

Collectors have been instructed to continue assessing the duties under existing law, withholding final liquidation until a later period to be fixed by the department. Through this plan the government will protect itself, and the importers' money will be tied up until such time as the department may order rebates to be made.

ANOTHER LIFE LOST IN DEATH VALLEY

Aged Man's Dead Burro Is Found Tethered; Searching for the Body.

Special to The Tribune. GOLDFIELD, Nev., Oct. 3.—Search is being made in Death valley to the southeast of Rhyolite for a man presumably named Joplin, who left Carbonate, on the east side of Death valley, a week ago. Three days ago his dead burro with its pack was found tethered to sagebrush, and it virtually is certain that Joplin perished, after having become dehydrated by the heat.

The man went to Carbonate for the purpose of securing work. Falling in his quest at E. S. Chafey's camp, he decided to start north, saying he had known the desert for thirty years. He had lived in southern California, Utah and Colorado. His relatives are unknown.

Will Take Time.

Even then, it is claimed, the new law will be enforced only in a general manner. It may be weeks before the changes in all their details and intricacies have been worked out and the new customs duties can be assessed from day to day as invoices from abroad arrive with the imports.

Meanwhile, as has been stated, all importers must liquidate their duties on the basis of the Payne-Aldrich law until the government believes it has its new system in perfect working order.

When the new tariff bill was under consideration in the senate a proposition was advanced to amend the bill so that it should take effect at a date ahead of time and held in bond at the rates of the Payne-Aldrich law. This was not agreed to, for the reason that the large importers in New York and other Atlantic ports notified the committee that if this were done the goods would be removed from bond, shipped back to Europe and reshipped after the law went into effect. The committee learned that the importers could do this and that would save money, so they abandoned the idea of collecting the higher rates of existing law on goods now in bond.
