FAKE FIGHT PICTURES.
A crowd of several thousand persons, constituting the audience of the Savoy Theater, in New York, arose yesterday afternoon crying "Fake!" "Sold!" "Stung!" when a picture series of the late fight at Reno was thrown upon the screen.
The management of the theater had advertised the pictures as the first of the fight, but had carefully seen to it that the "moving" had been left out of the advertisement which literally plastered the front of the theater.
The prices first charged were 10, 15 and 25 cents, which were cheerfully paid by the spectators, who thought they were going to see moving pictures and not photographs. The ticket sale was so great, that the management raised the price to 25 cents all around, but the crowds piled so fast that soon only standing room was left.
After the first three or four pictures had been thrown on the screen and the crowd realized that they were not going to see the real moving pictures of the big fight, they started a riot which resulted in the calling out of the reserves and on nearly wrecking the front of the theater. The crowd left their seats with hoots and yells at the management and assembled in front of the theater, where they proceeded to tear down everything that they could lay their hands on.
Then they started for the ticket box, but the fact that the guardian of the money was a very pretty girl, saved the management the loss of the day's receipts. Clamoring for their money, to be given back to them, the crowd was slowly dispersed by the reserves.
CONGREGATION ARRESTED.
Police of two South Side stations in Chicago entered the Holy Nazarene Church of the Apostolic Faith, Dearborn and west Thirtieth streets, during services Sunday night and arrested the entire congregation, composed of more than 100 negro men and women. Among those arrested were a woman bishop and three preachers. All of those arrested were placed in cells at the police stations. Aside from saying that riotous scenes had occurred in the church, the police refused to explain the reason for the attack on the church and the imprisonment of the congregation.
Lieutenant Reed, who headed the police, said the members of the congregation had made a nuisance of themselves through their religious frenzy.
"Their all day and all night meetings," said Lieutenant Reed, "began at 4 o'clock Sunday morning. The shouting, yelling, crying and singing continued hour after hour without abatement."
BONAPARTE'S AMERICAN SWEET-HEART.
Just two and a half years after the death and burial of "Old Mortality" on Christmas Eve, 1863, all Baltimore rang out with the greatest social event that the city of beautiful women had ever witnessed—the marriage of Jerome Bonaparte and Elizabeth Patterson.
The groom was resplendent in a purple satin coat, heavy with costly embroideries and gold lace, whose skirt, lined with white satin, in the latest fashion of the directory book monde, fell over his satin knee-breeches and silk hose, to the very tops of the diamond buckles, that clasped his low-cut shoes. His long, fine hair was powdered snowy white, contrasting well with his dark eyes and rich complexion.
The bride wore a white muslin dress, of diaphanous texture, such as the famous Indian looms have made famous for centuries, which, despite rich embroidery and costly lace, revealed the beauty of arms and neck, and fitted in the extreme of fashion that emphasized the outlines of her faultless limbs and perfect form.
"All the clothes worn by her might have been put in my pocket," wrote a lively correspondent of that letter-writing era. "Her dress was of muslin of an extremely fine texture. Beneath her dress, she wore but one garment."
Congratulations and good wishes were showered upon her, and the necks of the honeymoon were a dream of sweet madness and gratified ambition.—Charles Winslow Hall, "A Shattered Dream," in the National Magazine for August.

WOMAN SHOT HER HUSBAND.

"I shot my husband because I thought he was a burglar, and I would do it again under similar circumstances. Men who stay out late at night should answer promptly when their wives call 'Who's there?' Every woman should know how to handle a gun. My husband insisted on me learning to do so, and I am not sorry that I was taught to be a good marksman."
I am sorry I shot my husband, but I carried out his instructions. I did as he told me, and he is glad that I did."
This is Mrs. J. T. Burns' advice to women. Mrs. Burns shot her husband in the arm at their home in Pittsburg, Pa., Sunday night, mistaking him for a burglar. He is in the hospital, and, unless blood-poisoning sets in, he will be out in three or four days.
DOG RESCUES CHILD.
Around the neck of Dot, a Scotch collie owned by Edward J. Gilligan, the proprietor of the inn at Clason Point, N. Y., there is soon to be placed a silver collar commemorative of the fact that he leaped overboard and saved the life of the three-year-old daughter of his master. Crowds at the inn saw the baby, Edna, tumble overboard from a launch and Dot leap instantly into the water and carry her ashore.
Dot seized the child's dress in his teeth and fetched her ashore almost before anyone realized that she had been in danger. Safe ashore Dot laid his burden down and bared his teeth threateningly when a dozen persons ran to lift the unconscious child. They were compelled to wait until Mr. Gilligan came. Edna was sitting up by then and a physician had come running at Mr. Gilligan's heels. As soon as Edna was safe in her father's arms Dot removed himself to his position on the pier head as if he considered all this fuss and excitement not in the best form.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

As a result of speculations in the stock market, both in the local bucketshops and in the brokerage houses of Chicago, New York and other cities, August Ropke, assistant secretary of the Fidelity Trust Company, the oldest and most substantial trust company in Louisville, Ky., was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of embezzling from the bank, and it is believed that when the experts, who are at work on the books of the institution, make their report that a shortage of nearly $500,000 will be found.
The downfall of Ropke comes as a climax to a spectacular bucketshop operation originating in Louisville, but later extending to many cities and extending over a period from five to eight years. That he was not discovered until the present time is due to the fact that his luck for several years prevented his being found out. About a year ago Ropke's losses increased and piled up against him so that he was forced to visit the strong box of the bank, but luck again pulled him through.
One of his assistants was going over his chief's book and discovered a questionable entry. President Barr was notified, and after making a personal investigation he dismissed Ropke after charging him with embezzlement. Experts from Chicago were brought to Louisville to work on the books. They found many false entries.
