REAL ESTATE SECURITY.

Bill Permitting Nominal Banking Associations to Make Loans.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 5.—The bill permitting nominal banking associations to make loans on real estate as security and limiting the amount of such loans, passed the House to-day by a vote of 131 to 31.

The bankers in the House urged the passage of the bill, while the opponents of the measure insisted that real estate was not a proper security for national banks. They contended that the system had proved a failure wherever tried.

Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, thought the bill was bad legislation, as it would tend to limit the power of the State banks. Any man who has unencumbered real estate can get a loan at a lower rate of interest from banking companies than he can from a bank, he said.

Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, and Mr. Williams, of Mississippi, the minority leader, were enthusiastic in favor of the measure, urging that the bill would aid the farmers very greatly and have a tendency to reduce stock speculation.

Representative Hill, of Connecticut, took the position that the bill had not been asked for by many banks, and expressed the opinion that it was a dangerous precedent to establish.

CHILD LABOR BILL.

Lodge Offers Measure to Prevent Employment of Children.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 5.—Senator Lodge to-day introduced a bill designed to prevent the employment of child labor by prohibiting interstate commerce in any article in the production of which a child under fourteen years of age has been employed, and the prohibition extends to children under sixteen years of age who cannot read and write. The violation of the law is made a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $500 and imprisonment for one year. Speaking of the bill, Senator Lodge said:

"There is great interest in the question in my own State, where we have had for a long time excellent laws on the statute book forbidding the employment of child labor, and in the last three or four years the matter has been very much discussed in Massachusetts, especially by Governor Guild, who has been most earnest in advocating some national regulation."

JAPANESE PLEASED WITH THE MESSAGE

TOKIO, December 5.—The message of President Roosevelt to the American Congress is warmly praised here as worthy of a statesman of his character and the ruler of a great nation, championing civilization and humanity. The opinion prevails that the authorities of Big Francisco, as moral beings, can only yield to the moral weight and the sense of justice advocated in the message.

Walter Reed Memorial.

WASHINGTON, December 5.—President Roosevelt to-day sent to Congress papers relating to the Walter Reed Memorial Association with a recommendation that action be taken toward furthering the plans of the organization. It is suggested that financial aid be given the Association, but the President confines his expression to the earnest hope that Congress will take suitable action.

He says Major Reed's part in the experiments which resulting in teaching us to cope with yellow fever, was such as to render significant his debtor, and this nation should in some proper fashion bear witness to this fact."

PHI BETA KAPPA'S ANNUAL BANQUET

Distinguished Men of Letters and Science Meet and Celebrate at Williamsburg.

GILMAN SPOKE ON EDUCATION

List of Recently-Elected Members and Last Night's Initiates.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

WILLIAMSBURG, VA., December 5.—Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa Society held its annual celebration in the chapel of William and Mary College tonight, taking in members from among the most prominent men in the State, many of them noted in literary circles.

Phi Beta Kappa was the first of the Greek letter fraternities in America, but it is not a secret society, as are the other Greek letter fraternities. It is simply a society of scholars, its members being taken from men who have distinguished themselves in letters or science. On this account the membership is necessarily choice, and is regarded as a great honor.

To Alpha Chapter belong such men as President E. A. Alderman, of the University of Virginia; ex-Governor A. J. Montague, and others of Virginia's most noted men.

Mr. Edward Virginius Valentine, Virginia's noted sculptor, is at present the president of the William and Mary chapter.

The office of president is an honorary one, most of the management of the society falling upon the faculty of the college. All of the executive work falls upon the executive secretary, which office is at present held by Dr. J. L. Hall. Students who have graduated with high honors at the college, and have since done well in their work, are eligible to membership.

A large number of old members of the society, besides several members from other chapters, were present at the celebration. The president being absent, Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, vice-president, presided over the meeting.

The exercises were opened with a short prayer from Rev. Braxton Bryan. Dr. Tyler made a brief address on Phi Beta Kappa, giving a brief outline of its history and its object. Dr. Daniel C. Gilman, late president of Johns Hopkins University, was introduced as the orator of the occasion by the vice-president.

Dr. Gilman's Address.

Dr. Gilman chose as his theme "A Liberal Education," on which subject he spoke for about three-quarters of an hour. He opened his address with a few witticisms; paid a tribute to William and Mary College, and promised the large audience which completely filled the chapel to teach them nothing, but to remind them of many things. He gave a brief outline of the history of education, showing how instrumental were Harvard and William and Mary, the two oldest educational institutions in the country. In introducing it into America, he dwelt on the difficulties of early education, it then being regarded as heresy, and traced its growth through several centuries of painful toil, showing first how colleges and then universities rose into prominence.

"Liberal education," said the speaker, "began when colleges came into prominence." In discussing colleges, the speaker gave one of Harvards' old rules. The use of the mother tongue, he said, was denied to students, and whipping was the punishment for breach of the rule. The speaker dwelt at some length on the early education among Indians, and showed that several pages written in Latin were sent to the Royal Society in London in 1673.

An educated man, said Dr. Gilman, is one who does his own thinking and asks few questions. He here amused the audience with a dialogue between two men speaking of a certain uneducated man. "He is as sharp as a needle, though he has no education," said one. "Yes and as narrow," was the reply. Dr. Gilman showed the immense advantage of the educated man in his work; how he had resources to draw from that would turn his labor into a pleasure.

An educated man, he said, knows by what ties men are bound together, and how the sins of one will affect the others; watches the affairs of the world and keeps abreast of its progress; and knows how to express himself. The hope of our country, he said, lies in highly developed education.

Gilman Receives Degree.

Dr. Gilman concluded his address with a few remarks on the present prosperity of William and Mary, and expressed an earnest hope for its future welfare.

Mr. Armistead C. Gordon delivered in an impressive manner the poem, and was greatly applauded.

Mr. R. Page made a motion that both the poem and Dr. Gilman's address be published and kept among the archives of the society.

After the exercises Dr. J. L. Hall, in a few brief remarks, introduced Dr. Gilman as the receiver of the degree of LL. D. President Tyler, in the name of the board of visitors and the faculty of the college, presented Dr. Gilman with the diploma of LL. D.

The following are the members who were recently elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, and who have accepted the invitation: Judge J. F. Crocker, of Portsmouth; Judge Walter A. Watson, of Nottoway; Professor F. N. M. Pariber, of Roanoke College; Judge D. Gardner Tyler, of this city; Professor W. A. Montgomery, of William and Mary College; Judge L. L. Lewis, of Richmond; Hon. J. D. Eggleston, Jr., of Richmond; Hon. John W. Daniel, of Lynchburg; Rev. C. Braxton Bryan, of Petersburg, several of whom were unable to be present.

The initiates were Judge D. Gardiner Tyler, Judge J. F. Crocker, Hon. J. B. T. Thornton, Rev. C. B. Bryan, Judge T. S. Garnett, Dr. J. S. Wilson, Superintendent J. D. Eggleston, Hon. R. W. Moore, A. R. W. Mackreth, of The Times-Dispatch; Professor J. Lloyd Newcomb, H. J. Davis, James Hurst, Professor W. E. Dickinson, Professor W. A. Montgomery.

After the initiating ceremonies a banquet was served in the library, over which Miss Cora Smith, of Williamsburg, presided.

Crops on the State farm are being harvested and it is found that the yield will be considerably short of last season. The cotton acreage is 1,250, and the corn about the same amount. There are 500 acres in ground peas.
