

PRATER, VA.

Now I want to say to the people, do not say to yourselves "I will wait and see the outcome" but just jump right in and every family say "I'm going to help Mr. Raines, our editor, push this through and get our news printed at home" I know there are some who we can rely on to do this. As I said before, I am from Clay County N. C., and when away from there, I get the Clay County News, which is published in Clay County every week, and I do not know how we would feel should this paper stop. There is, also, a Cherokee County Paper printed in Andrews N. C., a sister county to Clay, this paper reaches me somehow, through the kindness of some friend. Thanks to my friend for this courtesy. So you see I get all the news from both Counties, of which I am well acquainted. I know some of the readers of the Dickenson County Herald have friends in some foreign country, who would be just like myself and wife, whoop and hurrah to the post office and get the home news, two papers, your home county news and the adjoining county news, which is a hint to the citizens of Buchanan Co. I know you have some friends, who would be glad to get the news of Dickenson Co. Send in their subscription and have the paper sent to them and see what they will tell you on their next visit to see you.

So come on everyone, both Dickenson and Buchanan county, send in your subscription to the Dickenson County Herald and get one of the best papers in print.

Respectfully
James McCarty

Our esteemed friend James McCarty has gone to W. Va. on business.

Everybody in Dickenson and Buchanan and adjoining counties subscribe for the Herald and see what Fred Raines tells us.

Why shouldn't they voice their satisfaction—those thousands and thousands of owners who made the year just passed the greatest in Oldsmobile history?

Attracted to Oldsmobile, perhaps by some one outstanding feature, they discover, as the months and miles roll by, an overflowing measure of all those qualities which contribute to enduring satisfaction.

Oldsmobile gratifies their finer tastes, satisfies their every need. Their expectations are more than realized. Their judgement stands confirmed!
