Now is the time to commence your spring cleaning.

President Taft has called Congress to meet in extra session on April 4th.

The Sixty-first Congress adjourned last Saturday with many important bills on the calendar not disposed of.

Getting up in the world is like getting up on a cold frosty morning out of a warm bed, both require a lot of self-denial and a whole lot more of self-will. Such is the cruel laws of success.

The Sundry Civil bill, which was the last of the great supply bill to pass Congress before its expiration by limitation of law on Saturday carries $7,253,250 for works authorized by former river and harbor acts going as far back as 1899. In several cases these direct appropriations will complete contract authorizations. One feature of the Sundry Civil bill relating to river and harbor contract work is an appropriation of $125,000 which is made immediately available for a survey of the northern and northwestern lakes which include the preparation and printing and the issuing of charts and bulletins and of investigating lake levels with a view to their regulation. This appropriation is the outgrowth of a sentiment that if the Chicago river is improved as contemplated that the levels of some of the northwestern lakes, particularly Lake Michigan, would be considerably lowered. Scientists have fought the idea vigorously, but lake captains and those who have followed the water for a livelihood in the northwestern section of the country insist that if the Chicago river is improved as a part of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf system it will have a very material effect upon lake levels. The passage of the Sundry Civil bill and the river and harbor bill gives upwards of $32,000,000 to the engineer corps of the army for the continued improvement of the rivers, harbors and canals of the country which will be available during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912.

President Taft has issued a proclamation, not as President of the United States, but as President of the Red Cross Society, asking contributions for the relief of the famiae stricken region in China. John D. Rockefeller has contributed $5,000 and there have been many contributions from other sources, and charitable people are also contributing food stuffs and clothing, which will be sent by U. S. transport to Shanghai and thence up the Yangtsekiang river, where millions of Chinese inhabitants are in dire distress.

KING JAMES' BIBLE 300 YEARS OLD.

Publishing of the Authorized Version Will be Celebrated in England.

London, Eng., Mar. 3.—King George has fixed Thursday, March 21, as the date on which he will receive in special audience a deputation in connection with the three hundredth anniversary of the publication of the authorized version of the Bible.

The Rev. A. Taylor, secretary of the Bible Society, said the deputation would represent not only the British and foreign Bible Society, but would be representative of the religious and civic life of the country. The reception of the deputation and presentation of a specially prepared Bible will take place at Buckingham Palace.

"There is a growing interest in the tercentenary celebration," continued the Rev. Mr. Taylor, "and all the religious denominations in this country, as well as in Canada and the United States, are arranging demonstrations."

Following the reception of the deputation by the king, sermons will be preached on the Bible in a large majority of the churches and chapels on Sunday, March 26, and the celebration will culminate in a national gathering at the Royal Albert Hall on Wednesday, March 29.

THE "BACK HOME" MOVEMENT.

In its last analysis the matter of Southern immigration is a work for individuals. A real immigration to the South will never result from great central meetings and their enthusiasms. The purpose of the "Back Home" movement is to put our own people to work—each individual of them. The plan is for every person now in the South to ask someone else to come; for every person to ask, to urge his relative or friend who has gone West or Northwest to return to the South, "back home." If this is done, and if the invitation is made emphatic; if facts are given which are convincing, then for the invited ones, themselves, to pass the invitation to some one who are not Southerners, but who ought to be. This is the second step in the "Back Home" movement. The next, and last, is to give the movement such a scope and make it of such vital "human interest" that the press of the United States must give it publicity as a matter of news, thereby advertising the South and its advantages. The last is already being done, and can be greatly extended.

The plan is simple. Time need not be wasted in theorizing whether it will do any good; whether our friends will actually come "back home," and whether the South is as good or better for them than the West and Northwest. All that is necessary is work—work as individuals or through their commercial organizations or newspapers. A three months subscription given to your local newspaper for some friend in the West will be a practical help, for through it he can see what possibilities are now in the South for him, and, also, it will tell his neighbor about the South. More than that, you can give his name and address to your board of trade which will send him literature, or you can send same to the railroads and we will do it. We will not send him literature exclusively about the Clinchfield either, for we are enough concerned about this matter of getting more people in the South to be spending our money in trying to get all the railroads into the "Back Home" movement. Our motto is "More people in one part of the South means more business in all parts of the South," and we want more business. There are in this country millions of people who need the opportunities here and unused in these States East of the Mississippi and South of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, and we need them. We need all who have gone out from us and many more. Let us, therefore, adopt this simple plan in which all may have a part, in which there is something definite to do.

THE CASE OF THE BURNT BARN.

One of the most perplexing mysteries in the annals of crime in England for a century past was the "Case of the Burnt Barn," which the Great London Detective was called on to solve. This case has been turned into story form, and, with all its thrilling detail, daring adventure and hairbreadth escapes, will be given free with next Sunday's New York World.

The Best Salve in the World. Bucklen's Arnica Salve

The Philadelphia Record disposes of the statement sent out from Washington that the per capita wealth of the country is between $30 and $40. As a matter of fact, the per capita wealth of the country, as shown by the last census, is $1,164.99. There is a great difference between circulation and wealth; a distinction which is not often drawn.—Richmond Times Dispatch.
