ABOUT DRUGS

There are two classes of druggists and two kinds of drugs that are sold to the public.

1. The druggist who is altogether on the "make" and who sells cheap and stale drugs at full prices.
2. The druggist who is on the "square" and who sells only pure and guaranteed drugs at no increase in price.

This drug store is on the "square" in its every sale and its every act. There are no cheap drugs in our stock, and no stale ones, and we never substitute.

When you bring a physician's prescription to this store you get exactly what that physician intends you to have—no more and no less.

Can you write a good business letter?—a paragraph or news story for your local paper?—a description of what you may see, feel, hear, or think?—a statement of something especially interesting?—your last will and testament or the wishes of somebody else? All this, and more too, will form the curriculum at Smith Brothers' Shorthand and Business College to be opened next Monday, October 2nd. Write P. O. Box 145.

The Board of supervisors last week made an appropriation for hiring a County Farm Demonstrator, thus showing that they are alive to the best interests of our great county. Just as soon as the proper man can be found he will be on the work. So much good could not be done in any other way by the expenditure of a like sum.—Wise Virginian.

Double Wedding.

Last Wednesday morning the two attractive daughters, Misses Emily and Ida, of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Yeary, who live near the Lee county line, left home with the impression of attending the fair here, but instead of going to the Fair Miss Emily Yeary was met by Mr. Hugh Shuler, and motored to Wise, where they secured a marriage license and were married in the Clerk's office that afternoon, Miss Ida Yeary, the younger, was met by Mr. Robert Skeen and they eloped to Bristol on the Southern Wednesday morning, where they were married at the home of Dr. Redwine that afternoon. Neither of the two happy couples knew of the others' marriage until they returned home Thursday to surprise their many friends here and in the Cove and were met with the surprise of each others' marriage.

Both Mr. Shuler and Mr. Skeen are prosperous young farmers of the Cove, in Lee County, where they will make their future homes.
