HAD HIS EYES OPENED.

The New York Tribune has been anti-peace league, anti-Wilson, anti-almost everything in its editorial columns except the rankest partisan politics, secured the services of the Hon. George W. Wickersham, formerly Attorney General of the United States, to make a trip to France for the special purpose of contributing articles to the Tribune in opposition to the League and in harmony with that famous paper's policy.

Much was expected of Mr. Wickersham. "But the unexpected has occurred," says the Lynchburg News. Mr. Wickersham has returned a converted man. Says he: "I had no dramatic conversion. There was no single experience, no sudden burst of light which sent me back, like Saul of Tarsus, to preach a different gospel. But on the ground," he says, "face to face with world facts, instead of at home engrossed with historic doctrines, it was impossible not to see that America is already enmeshed in a world situation from which she cannot withdraw."

Further: "We have become responsible for the overthrow of the governments of Germany, Austria, Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria, and for the reorganization of Europe and large parts of Asia and Africa on a basis best qualified to prevent future wars," and "shall America refuse to join this world alliance to protect the peace terms she has dictated and prevent anarchy and war because some lawyers believe it may in some particular conflict with the Monroe doctrine? As a matter of fact, there is no serious infringement in this covenant upon America's traditional policy, and a very slight amendment may leave the whole doctrine intact."

And so, as this paper has tried to point out heretofore, it is impossible for us, thousands of miles away from the battlefields of the ruined and devastated countries, to form an adequate conception of existing conditions and hence, existing needs. Here is a great man, opposed to the League, as he sits in his New York office and reads newspaper articles, who, when he is on the ground, face to face with it all, as a manly, honest American, confesses that seeing the situation in its true light, had been mistaken in his opposition, and now advocates and approves what he had previously opposed. And so, as time wears on opposition to the League gradually turns to approval. Enemies become friends.

A REVOLT AGAINST THE DOCTORS.

The epidemic had swept over the country from the lakes to the gulf, from the mountains to the sea, and killed hundreds of thousands of people of all ages. The doctors and the nurses seemed impotent and helpless in their fight to stay the ravages of the epidemic. The influenza was a new disease. Finally, a remedy was discovered, it was claimed, by the use of which all future attacks of the disease could be prevented. A convention of physicians was called to devise plans and adopt a course of action, which might save the race from future ravages of the disease. There assembled in the city a number of leading and eminent physicians, not only from America, but from Europe—men whose opinions and recommendations commanded the respect of the nations. After careful consideration, discussion and investigation, with all the fact before them, these great men made a report, recommending that if certain rules which they formulated were carefully followed, there would be no recurrence of the epidemic. There went up a great shout of joy all over the land, not only from the homes which had been desolated, and clouded by the disease, but from the people generally. They said: "We don't want another epidemic, heaven knows we don't. The toll is too great, the sorrow too poignant. Anything that will prevent a return of the disease will be hailed with delight."

The eminent physicians promulgated certain rules and courses of conduct to be observed by each family, carefully guarding their statements by such provisions and limitations as would, they hoped, be accepted and approved by the people everywhere. "Surely," they argued, "the people will not be so blind or foolish as to reject and ignore the simple plans and rules proposed in order to conserve the health and happiness of the world at large for all time to come."

But what happened? Listen: There sprung up over night opposition to the plans of the great physicians. In almost every neighborhood, as well as hamlet and city, criticisms and objections began to pour in. There suddenly sprang into existence among the people, a knowledge of medicine, and sanitation unknown and unheard of before. The world woke up to realize that the number of physicians and wise men was legion. Some said that the rules and recommendations interfered with their old customs and habits. Others declined to permit "any set of men to dictate" to them as to how they should live. They were not willing to change a single custom or habit of living for the public good or contribute one iota to the health and happiness of the human race.

What do you think of the people knowing little or nothing of the laws of health, and absolutely nothing of a disease such as the influenza, who will refuse to even try out plans and remedies proposed and believed in by leading experts of the world? Now, the above sketch is, of course purely imaginary, but there is a parallel exactly.

Leading experts of more than a dozen leading nations of the world, have formulated a set of rules and a course of action, the object of which is to prevent forever future wars—to put beyond the power of might to dominate the right, to form a league and a treaty to which all nations shall subscribe which it is claimed will prevent for all times a repetition of the bloody, costly and atrocious war just ended. Behold, up pops a number of men, who say, "we are not in favor of the league of nations. We are unwilling to enter into alliances with foreign nations. We must conserve the Monroe doctrine and the principles enunciated by our fathers in the Constitution." Some of these objectors know as much about what they are talking about and criticizing as the objectors to the recommendations of the doctors know about Metier Medica—nothing.

The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are a league and a treaty, adopted by each State as agreements by which they are governed. Each State is still independent. The League of nations is only a world-wide Constitution and declaration setting out rules of action by which, if lived up to, the world, the nations, small and great, may live in peace, without fear of outside interference. How could the States of this United States live in peace without conservative laws by which each State is prohibited from trespassing upon the rights of other States? All the League and Treaty of Nations proposes is, that no one nation shall oppress another nation, nor permit it to be done by any other nation. And, strange as it may appear, the League of Nations is meeting with opposition in advance, by men, too, in many instances, who know nothing of its provisions. It is a well known fact that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States met with violent opposition at first. But it lives. The objectors, honest they were, no doubt are forgotten. So will it be with the Treaty of Peace and the League of Nations.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

The Republicans of this Senatorial district meet in convention April 5th at Richlands for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent the district in the next session of the Senate of Virginia. The district is composed of the counties of Tazewell, Russell, Buchanan and Dickenson. For a number of years the Republicans have elected their candidate with or without opposition, and the presumption is they will do so this year, unless strong opposition develops from some source unforeseen and at this time scarcely expected. This is not saying, or intended to be understood as saying that the Democrats will not have or should not have a candidate. At the present writing there is no Democratic aspirant for Senatorial honors within the view of our limited circle. Presuming, therefore, for the purpose of this article, that this Senatorial district will be represented by a Republican candidate, his platform becomes of general interest to us all.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

The Richlands convention will be the first Republican convention of much note to be held since the war, in the Ninth district, so far as regarded new, and their platform and declaration of principles will sound a keynote perhaps for other conventions to be held. The usual resolutions, of course, will be presented by a properly constituted committee, which will proceed to build a platform for the candidate to stand upon, and set forth articles of faith for which he will be supposed to contend. Will these resolutions be broad, liberal and patriotic, or narrow, partisan and dispiriting? The Republican party has such an opportunity as it hasn't had before—couldn't have had before the great war, to take high ground and enunciate a set of principles which will place it far and above the plane of partisan politics. Will they see the opportunity and use it? Or, will they "chew the old rag," through the old straw, resolute and declaim against "disfranchisement," the "iniquitous elections laws," the extravagance of the State government, pension and school books, and the "rotteness of the Democratic party" generally?

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW.

As everybody knows this has been the sum and substance of many former platforms adopted by the party in this section. And, as everybody knows, also, such tactics have gotten the party nowhere.

The party is no stronger in the State now than it was ten years ago. To denounce "the rascals" may elicit applause from a few, but wins few if any votes. It is to be hoped, therefore, that our brethren at Richlands will turn over a new leaf, and adopt and declare for new articles of faith and practice, in harmony with new and changed conditions under which we find ourselves since the great war, and not ally itself with the enemies of peace and organized government, now fomenting in many parts of our great country.

Furthermore, should there be no Democratic candidate for the Senate, it becomes at once apparent that the Democrats of the district are interested in the man and his platform as their representative in the Senate of Virginia. To send a man to Richmond on a partisan, peanut political platform is to make of the office a dead letter in Richmond and the representative a figurehead in the general assembly.

The Clinch Valley News is not presuming to dictate or even advise its Republican friends as to what they shall or shall not do. They will do as they choose. We do believe, however, that there are as loyal, patriotic men in the Republican party as in our own, and that what we have tried and ventured to say in this article that the majority of public sentiment and desire is represented, and finally, we express the hope that the ranting, reactionary, peanut politicians may not be in control at Richlands tomorrow, and that the Clinch Valley News may be able to "point with pride" to both the candidate and the platform and not be debarred from giving both its hearty support if it chooses to do so.

ELLYSON'S DEATH A LOSS TO THE STATE.

The death of Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson was a loss to the entire State. For half a century he had been a prominent figure in the public life of his State. He had held some office of trust, from Lieutenant Governor on down—Senator, Mayor of Richmond, trustee of schools and of colleges, prominent in the Confederate camps and a number of other positions of trust and usefulness. It was no surprise that flags should float at half mast, great crowds assemble and honors should have been heaped upon when he went out.

It was as a churchman that Mr. Ellyson performed his most efficient and enduring service. He was prominent in the work of the historic Second Baptist Church of Richmond, as was his father before him. For forty years, or thereabouts, he was secretary of the Education Board of the General Baptist Association of Virginia. In this capacity he enabled hundreds of young men to obtain a college education who could not otherwise have done so. The Education Board was established for the purpose of aiding young men preparing for the Baptist ministry to go thru college and seminary. It was through the untiring efforts of this devoted man that hundreds of the leading pulpits of this State and many in other States were filled yearly by strong preachers. And today, all over Virginia and the South can be found monuments—living monuments to Mr. Ellyson's life-long devotion to the work of the Education Board of Virginia. Every minister whom he helped in his making, and every one led into a better life through these ministers are trophies—stars in his dazzling crown of rejoicing. Hence, to repeat, it was as a consecrated servant of the Master that James Taylor Ellyson performed his most efficient and enduring service.

From Three Years' Suffering. Says Cardui Made Her Well.

Texas City, Tex.—In an interesting statement, Mrs. G. H. Schill, of this town, says: "For three years I suffered untold agony with my head. I was unable to do any of my work. I just wanted to sleep all the time, for that was the only ease I could get, when I was asleep, I became a nervous wreck just from the awful suffering with my head. I was so nervous that the least noise would make me jump out of my bed. I had no energy, and was unable to do anything. My son, a young boy, had to do all my household duties. I was not able to do anything until I took Cardui. I took three bottles in all, and it surely cured me of those awful headaches. That has been three years ago, and I know the cure is permanent, for I have never had any headache since taking Cardui."

"It is true that I have objections to some of the provisions of the Constitution of the League, but—" The World-Herald declines to follow him further, and why should we or any one? LIFT OFF CORNS!
Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers
Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!
A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.
Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.
