JUSTICE JOHN AS REFORMER. Tries Hard to Make Drunken Husband Bands Toe the Mark.

DIAMOND NOT OF FIRST WATER. Joseph Hartman, who Robbed D. Buchanan & Son, Gets Mixed on Baseball and the Great Dispenser Catches Him Off Base.

When a man gets drunk and curses his wife Justice John thinks he chances are slim for the next world and he tries to reform him in this.

John D. Holloway faced the music yesterday on these charges, and wept when the taxing came. Mrs. Holloway said John would be a very agreeable man if he would stay sober. Justice John offered to turn him loose if she said so.

A SMALL OFFENDER. Thos. Pollard, a ragmuffin negro boy, seven years old, cut Rosa Sidenberg, a small white girl, with a knife in the arm. The boy said his mother was dead, but his father was living. He did not take enthusiastically to the suggestion that he select somebody to whip him.

WILLIE CARY, colored, threw rocks in the street with a sling. He was fined $5. A family consultation was held, but the stake was too high. All hands passed and Willie went to the pen.

JOHN BRADY had drunk until his friends all had that tired feeling, and when John was fined there was no need breaking to get to the sergeant to pay his fine. John concluded he would not be an ornament to the pen, and for the first time in his life he heaved.

DIAMOND ROBBERIES. There were two separate cases of diamond robbery in the Police Court yesterday. Indeed, robbery, like everything else, seems to go by fashion, and two cases at one time is such a rarity that it created a flutter in police circles.

Solomon Young is a Georgia negro and strange to the Richmond officers. Saturday night he offered for sale in a store near the Police station a set ring with a single brilliant. The gentleman to whom it was offered said he knew a negro did not come honestly by a diamond ring of so much value and he followed him until he reached a policeman and the ring was recovered.

Justice John suggested that the reporter make a note of it and that the diamond was not long in claiming such valuable property. Several well-known jewelers were in court and were asked to give an expert opinion as to the value of the ring. They unanimously agreed it was worth $100.

JOSEPH HARTMAN, who stole four diamonds from D. Buchanan & Sons Friday, answered to the charge. He answered well to his description of being of criminal appearance but gave a poor account of himself. He said he came with a baseball club to Norfolk and from there he did not know that Justice John was an authority on baseball and that he made a slip as he himself recognized when the Great Dispenser told him that could not be so as there was no ball game in Norfolk last week.

HARTMAN was held as a suspicious character and put under bonds of $500. The police think they have a well-known professional crook.
