The Untruthful Daisy.

She wandered where the daisies;
Her lips were red, her eyes were blue,
She plucked a daisy from its bed,
And broke each petal as she said:
"He loves me; he loves me not,
He loves me, he loves me not;
He loves me, daisy, tell me so."
The final petal answered, "No."
She laughed, but one small tear drop held
Spread secrets of the heart untold.
"He loves me not?" she tossed her head;
"Why, daisy, you tell lies," she said.

The Farmville Guard will leave Saturday afternoon for Ocean View, where they will spend 10 days in camp. Other companies of the regiment will be there, and our hope is that the outing will prove abundantly profitable and pleasant.

Let every member of the company go who can possibly do so. Farmville must be well represented there. Rev. Mr. Thompson, chaplain of the Guard, will go as guest of the boys. Mr. T. F. Noel will leave today to make ready for the comfort of his comrades.

Killed by Lightning.
During an electric storm on the night of the 11th inst., Mrs. Beverly Hughes was instantly killed in her home near Throck P. O., this county. She had dressed to retire for the night and was standing near the fire-place when the fatal flash came. No one was in the chamber at the time with Mrs. Hughes, but members of the family in an adjoining room heard her fall and hastening to her side found it extinct.

What a dreadful thing it is to wake up in the night suffering from cholera morbus, and yet cases of this kind are very common. The trouble, however, will never become serious if you keep a bottle of PAIN-KILLER at hand, for it is a remedy that never fails to cure cholera, cramps, diarrhoea or dysentery. Avoid substitutes, there is but one PAIN-KILLER, Perry Davis'. Price 25c. and 50c.

It is actually good for sore eyes to look at that splendid crop of hay which has been harvested and housed by Mr. Will Bailey. It is as "sweet as a nut," and almost good enough for folks to eat.

There are 4,000 hills of watermelons on the farm of veteran L. C. Amos this season, green and flourishing, but Generals Ewell and Ashby are in command and that means there are none too many.

During the off season if our merchants would advertise bargains they would clear up for another season. The HERALD rates are reasonable, and it must be the best medium known to this section. Would be glad to quote prices.

It is refreshing to notice the loads of fine hay and oats now being brought into town from our farms. Our farmers ought to break up the baled hay trade. Not to hurt merchants but to help this section of Virginia.

Dr. Harding preached a noble sermon at the Baptist Church last Sunday night, before a large and appreciative audience. It was the third in the summer series of union services. The next meeting will be at the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Mr. Hunter will preach.

Col. Walker's factory, built on the old Bruce site is beginning to assume grand proportions. Foundations for another are being laid on the lot West of the Planters Warehouse. This, too, will be built by Col. Walker, and there is talk of a third one, on the rear of the old hotel lot. Farmville may one day be known as Factory town.

Mr. W. W. Jackson was rather demoralized when we met him soon after the hail had done its damage, but the next morning he had brightened up and rather thought he would make a full crop after all—not of tobacco but of all crops combined, and the tobacco is "coming" too.

It will be a shame if the approaches to our Appomattox bridge are allowed to remain unimproved until the tobacco season opens again. We understand that Cumberland is ready to act when Farmville is ready to do its part. Surely Farmville has more interest in this matter than Cumberland has.

The South Boston News: Rev. S. H. Thompson, who has been on a brief visit to our town, left for his home at Farmville this a. m. He preached an able and eloquent sermon at the Baptist church on last night, and was everywhere cordially greeted by his old friends who were delighted to grasp his hand. But few ministers ever gained a stronger hold upon the people of any community than did Mr. Thompson during pastorate and residence in South Boston some years ago.

County Court Day.

Not much of interest in Court. The following justices qualified: Messrs. T. W. Crawley and T. J. Morrisett. Rosa V. Irving qualified as administrator of E. A. Irving, with E. S. Taylor as surety.

Buckingham Briefs.

NEW STORE, VA., July 15, '01.

Editor Herald:—Farmers are complaining of the poor yield of wheat and the lateness of the corn crop, due largely to freshets.

A petition is in circulation, which has been signed by some of the most influential men of the county, asking that Mr. Wm. P. Ellis become a candidate for the Senate from this district, consisting of Appomattox, Buckingham and Fluvanna counties. Mr. Ellis is one of Buckingham's most popular citizens and one whom all will be proud to honor.

Mr. Hampden B. Nicholas has declared himself a candidate for floater in the House of Delegates for Buckingham and Cumberland counties. He is a man who will do honor to the two counties if elected to represent them.

Miss Hallie Haskins, of Houston, Texas, is paying her annual visit to her mother, Mrs. E. B. Haskins, near Buckingham C. H.

Mrs. Thomas Ellis, of New York, is visiting her mother's family.

Miss Annie Blankenship and brother, of Richmond, are visiting at the home of Mr. E. V. Anderson, of Andersonville.

Messrs. Parrack Forbes and Mahen S. Jones are home from William and Mary College, where they won distinction in all of their studies, the former receiving one of the scholarships.

Messrs. Miller and Edward McCraw are at home for their usual summer vacation.

Mr. Frank Gilliam has returned to Richmond after spending two weeks in Buckingham visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Julia A. Forbes, of Olesko, who has been visiting at Buckingham Springs and also the home of her grandfather, Mr. Louis D. Jones, has returned to her home.

The Tabernacle, near Andersonville, is about completed and the Holiness People will begin protracted service there on the 15th of this month. Large crowds are expected to attend.

Protracted services began at Concord yesterday, conducted by Rev. W. Foster.

Farming Does Pay.

Editor Herald:—Farming does pay. I mean some farming, and I have a case in hand. A friend of mine, friend of Prince Edward, friend of Southside Virginia, bought some years ago in your county a small tract of land for which he paid eight dollars an acre. He has been working it judiciously and well ever since and now has been offered fifty dollars an acre. Successful speculation in Wall street wouldn't beat that and successes in Wall street are about as rare as successes in lottery schemes while what this one land owner has done in Prince Edward all other land owners in Prince Edward may do. I saw a letter recently, written from Minneapolis to a citizen of Prince Edward in which this inquiry was made: "Are the lands in your section advancing?" Send him a copy of the HERALD in which this appears, and add that if he wants the name and address of the land owner to whom I have referred he can get it on application.

The Walthall Bros, near Hampden-Sidney, are among our farmers worthy special mention. I do not know better or more thoughtful workers and an air of prosperity pervades their land and home. When I find such workers in this, "God's Country," I wonder that any young men will go to the cold, the heat, the cyclone, the blizzards, the sudden and trying changes of the "Wild West."

A LAWYER—FARMER.

Less than a year ago Judge Hundley bought of Maj. A. R. Venable, his place known as Edgewood, some mile and a half South-east of Farmville, containing fifty eight acres, and having on it some old and well nigh worthless buildings and no fire wood, for which he paid $2,000 cash. Since then the Judge has bought 15 acres of wood land for which he paid $25 an acre. I visited the place one day last week and found a new and commodious dwelling, old structures generally removed and an air of comfort and cleanliness pervading the entire surroundings. In addition to the new dwelling house, other new and attractive outbuildings have been erected and many old scars have been healed over.

Building year is of course busy-year, and yet the crops on this, to us in Virginia, small farm, are all well worked and growing off grandly. The ten-acre field of corn has been finished and turned over to the tender keeping of sunshine and shower. The 40,000 hills of tobacco clear of grass and spreading themselves. The garden and truck patches show thoughtful attention and the fruit trees are full of promise. Having seen the crops I asked after the labor and learned, to my surprise, that a son, eighteen years of age, and just from the V. M. I. with a cousin of about same size and years were in control of the crop forces. The young gentleman from the institute reached home in his regimentals on Thursday of the week before and on Saturday, clad in working garb, was marching between the furrows, head erect, eyes to the front and waging destructive war against the enemies of crop-life. All honor to the young Virginian fresh from classic shades and dress parade who is not afraid of the sunshine or hard work. The labor problem is being satisfactorily solved on some farms. Judge Hundley is projecting other improvements and I expect in the near future to show strangers another model farm in the neighborhood of Farmville.

I had not passed through the Longwood farm for many years before this trip, and was gratified to find that the ancient and honored landmark was in excellent condition. Mr. Barber came to this section years ago and after extensive travel and close observing in this and other lands, selected it as a place to live in and farming as a profession.

He readily and promptly adopted the best methods of our successful farmers and success crowned his efforts from the beginning. The crops of the present are looking admirably well and the lands greatly improved since I last saw them. I have no where seen richer growth of peas and they of course will be followed by a crop pleasant to look on and profitable to the owner when in market.

I spent a few hours most delightfully on Tuesday at the home of Mr. A. B. Armstrong, and for the first time in my life examined the lands of that immediate section of Cumberland, and was greatly pleased with their lay and looks. Mr. Armstrong's father moved from Pennsylvania some twenty-seven years ago, bought that farm of 530 acres, at $10 an acre, built a handsome dwelling house, commodious and convenient barns and necessary outbuildings and made it one of the most attractive properties in that county. He, too, came to us a stranger but found a warm welcome awaiting him, soon fell into our best farming habits and was a successful and highly respected citizen of the state of his adoption through life. His mantle has fallen on worthy shoulders and the industrial warfare on this place is being waged with old-time vigor and success.

Mr. Armstrong's lieutenants, Wright and Addlene, are young, strong, go-ahead and will this year give good account of themselves. This farm is unusually level for this section, of chocolate color and admirably adapted to the growth of all the crops known to this part of Virginia. There is a splendid body of timber on it and altogether an ideal home.

Mr. Armstrong made no mistake in coming from the one-hundred-dollar-land of Pennsylvania to the ten-dollar-land of Virginia, where he lived in very much more of comfort and where he made much more money on the capital invested.

Mr. Clifford Wright, who works the farm of Mr. B. L. Anderson, tells me that the yield of wheat of this season will surpass that of last year, and also said that for all other crops last summer's drought was friend rather than foe. This farm is also a level one and has one it some most attractive meadows.

I am told that Peter Francisco lived here, and here I saw a row of one-story brick houses once occupied by the farm laborers. Perhaps it will be news to our Northern friends to know that negroes in Virginia lived in brick houses while their owners lived in wooden ones.

Mr. B. E. Lipscomb with his two younger sons is working this season a farm of Mr. John Anderson, located in the county of Cumberland, some four miles northwest of Farmville. It is one of our best farms, and when under the management of the late W. E. Anderson was wonderful producer. The low grounds are rich and would no doubt yield 40 bushels of corn to the acre, but this year there has been too much water. The third planting of corn, however, is looking well, and frost with hands off there will yet be a good crop. Mr. Lipscomb's tobacco of 60,000 hills is looking remarkably well. These earnest workers are expecting 20,000 pounds for market, and my hope is that they will get it. The worms have been acting queerly with this crop. By common consent they selected 6,000 hills of the 60,000 upon which to feast and fatten, and left the rest of the crop unmoistened.

Mr. Lipscomb's garden and truck patches are record breakers. There is no vegetable known to this section which he has not had or will not have in greatest profusion. It is hard to estimate the value of such acres to a farm. Dinners minus vegetables are lonesome affairs, with them, in abundance and well cooked, are fit for the gods.

The great remedy of the day is unquestionably PAIN-KILLER, for the instant relief of all burns, scalds, bruises, etc., and for pains in the stomach and bowels as well as in sudden attacks of cholera morbus. No family should pretend to keep house without it always by them. Avoid substitutes, there is but one PAIN-KILLER, Perry Davis'. Price 25c. and 50c.

Farmers Own The Money.

According to State Treasurer Park more than half the deposits in the State banks of Georgia are owned by farmers. That officer goes on to say that in the southern part of the State the proportion of deposits owned by the agricultural class averages 75 per cent. Treasurer Park makes this statement after visiting the State banks in all parts of Georgia and going through their books and papers with great care. "Twenty years ago and it was hard to find a farmer with a bank deposit, but now they are numerous," Treasurer Park says. "I am satisfied that more than half the deposits in the State banks are owned by farmers and I think it a splendid tribute to their sterling qualities. It is due largely to the lumber and naval stores industry in Southern Georgia and to the increase of manufacturing, which has distributed cash and made a better market for small farm products than formerly being begged, but the result is due more than all to the improved methods and wonderful economies practised by the farmers in recent years. As a class they surpass the french farmers in economy."

The development of the woman farmer is an interesting point brought out by Treasurer Park. In one town in Southwest Georgia there is a woman who has a deposit of $18,000 in bank, which is the proceeds of last year's cotton crop.—Savannah Press.
