LABOR-SAVING ROOSTS.

One Can Walk All Around Them and Reach Almost Any Fowl on the Perch with Ease.

My poultry roosts are made of three six-inch boards. For a 12-foot building they should be ten feet long to admit passage around it. Bore holes in each end for No. 9 fence wire as a support. Fasten wire to rafters and then pass the other end through hole in roost plank, first placing the board at any desirable height from floor to suit the flock.

COMMON SENSE ROOST.

The two outside boards should be notched one by two inches and 12 inches apart. Having notched two boards and placed at height wanted, about seven feet apart, take good roofing lath, one by two inches, about eight feet long, and lay crosswise in notches. This will make a swinging roost, but fowls will soon get used to it and seem to delight in a swing. This roost one can walk all around and reach almost any fowl on the perch. Look for lice where lath cross the boards; kill them with coal oil. Lath should be slightly rounded on top. Such a roost will accommodate 80 fowls if necessary to place as many together and all are on a level.—D. E. Shields, in Farm and Home.

WORKING AMONG BEES.

When One Is Provided with the Necessary Tools It Is Not as Dangerous as Many suppose.

Every farmer who keeps bees should provide himself with a bee veil that fits over the hat and is secured under the suspenders inside the coat or vest. The hands and wrists may be protected by wearing mitts without fingers, says Fannie M. Wood, in the N. E. Homestead. When one does not wear boots the pants may be tucked inside the stocking leg; a nervous man would not care about the bees creeping inside the pants. A good bee smoker is indispensable. Dry rotten wood, that will crush easily in the hands, makes plenty of smoke without much heat and never goes out. Rubber cloths are useful. They are made of coarse linen or burlap, take up water easily, and are large enough to lap two or three in over and over the sides and ends of the top edges of the hive. Wet and wring them out before using; they will lie down smooth and close. When I take the cover off a hive or super, one of these wet cloths is laid on quickly. If any of the bees are next to it they will quickly get from under. It retains the warmth of the bees, can be turned back as much as needed to take out a frame or more without disturbing the rest of the bees. In changing supers it keeps all the bees in their places, out of the way of the operator. If smoked when wet and laid on the top of the hive the scent of the smoke will cause the bees to fill up on honey and they will be submissive. The farm-keeper should have one or more feeders. They are inexpensive and come handy when necessary to feed the bees.

Actual Experience Counts.

The poultry business is as much a trade as anything else, and must be studied and practiced. Would a man expect to go into the carpenter trade without studying it and expect to build a house successfully without first having learned the important principles? Yet a novice will go into the poultry business and expect to succeed by the knowledge he has acquired from others—secondhand. Now, this second-hand knowledge is good, very good, but it must be made available by actual experience, just as the young carpenter must learn by actually working at his business with his hands.—Farmers' Review.

Eggs Wasted by Overfeeding.

The man who feeds three times a day, and gives the hens so much kindness that they will not scratch or work, but sit down and wait for him to come around at the regular hour, simply wastes time, labor and food. What is more, he wastes eggs, for such hens lay but few eggs, because they are in a fat condition. Of course, hens should not be poor in flesh, but there is no need of feeding them more than they actually require. Eggs are costly luxuries when the hens do not lay regularly, and nine-tenths of the failures are due to overfeeding.—The Poultry Keeper.

Poultry House in Summer.

One important matter in summer is that the poultry house in which fowls roost should be well ventilated. The house should also be frequently white-washed and the ground kept free from droppings. The perches should be high—about one or two feet from the ground being sufficient—as in flying either up or down, if put too high, some are sure to injure themselves sooner or later. Use flat, open pans for the water, and not only see that it is fresh at least once a day, but take care that the receptacles are as free from dirt as the water itself.—Farm and Fireside.

Hear, hear.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by Anderson Drug Co., Shorter, Darlington Heights.

Cure for Cholera Infantum—Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—Mrs. CURTIS BAKER, Bookwalter, Ohio. For sale by Anderson Drug Co.; Shorter, Darlington Heights.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat trouble, give it a trial for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. Bear in mind that every bottle is warranted and if it does not prove beneficial the money will be refunded to you. For sale by Anderson Drug Co.; Shorter, Darlington Heights.

Worryin' kills more people than the smallpox.
Cuts and bruises are healed by Chamberlain's Pain Balm in about one-third the time any other treatment would require because of its antiseptic qualities which cause the parts to heal without maturation. For sale by Anderson Drug Co.; Shorter, Darlington Heights.

Put yer faith in the feller that sticks to what he thinks is right, don't make no difference what other folks say.
White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Chamberlain's Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by White & Co.; R. J. Carter, of Prospect, druggist.
