The no license element won a victory in Exeter, N. H., Tuesday and celebrated by ringing bells and burning red fire. Burning red fire does less damage than painting a town red.

Unlike the residents of the "New Vermont," the earth thirsts and cannot quench that thirst. It is extremely unfortunate that the wet spell for the one cannot be utilized for the other.

The division of New Hampshire Tuesday on the question of license or no license was in the main the cities and large towns against the rural communities, which was natural and no doubt as it should be.

Most of the nearby New Hampshire towns along the Connecticut river went wet at Tuesday's special election, so the Rutland Herald need not be alarmed about St. Johnsbury's source of supply.—St. Johnsbury Republican.

There was not the least bit of fear that you wouldn't get the stuff.

The proposal of placing a rugged boulder from the Vermont hills over the grave of the late Dr. James Conland of Brattleboro is well suggested, and it is also a happy idea that the opportunity is offered to everyone to assist in paying a slight tribute to the sterling character of this man.

If the scheme for a public hospital for Barre is put under way it will be well to follow the example of several other cities and towns of the state and have a hospital Sunday. That means that the Sunday services at all the churches of the city will be given over to the hospital and all contributions of the day will be for the benefit of that public institution. The churches of the cities where the plan has been tried have cooperated in the movement and the results have been quite satisfactory.

A resourceful woman in Beldens, a little town in Addison county, has settled the tramp question as far as her house is concerned. A big, burly knight of the road called at her house recently and demanded food. Being refused the man showed fight, whereupon the Beldens woman whipped out a 42 calibre revolver from the folds of her dress. The last seen of the tramp he was making hurried tracks to cover his cowardly body. And it is ten to one that the gun wasn't loaded either.

During the past ten years the wealth of the state of Maine has increased $100,000,000. The most of this increase is due to the building up of manufactories and the utilization of the vast forests, while the "summer colony" has added considerable to that result. Maine is a favored state in several respects. It has immense forests, some mineral resources, a sea coast and lastly, all the things that go to make an attractive allurement for the sportsmen. With such conditions the increase of the state's wealth was to be expected.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

The state convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters will be held in St. Albans June 9.

The twenty-first annual encampment of the Vermont division Sons of Veterans will be held with C. S. Clark Camp, No. 8, Stowe, June 15, 17 and 18.

It is understood among the Boston and New York alumni of Norwich University, Northfield, that Allan D. Brown, president of Norwich University, will resign his position at the coming commencement. President Brown is in poor health and cannot give the office the attention that it demands.

A large sawmill in Timonah owned by John W. Blanchard and Albert W. Billado of St. Albans, was destroyed by fire Tuesday evening. The loss is $2,500. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin. This mill was recently completed to take the place of the one on the same site burned by an incendiary last fall.

Henry Talbert, who was arrested at St. Albans Monday charged with intoxication, and who is now serving his time in jail, is wanted in Hardwick on the charge of grand larceny. It appears that Talbert was in Hardwick Sunday and while there stole $50. Part of the money has been recovered by Sheriff Kelly. Talbert will be taken to the Caledonia county jail as soon as his term at St. Albans is finished.

John J. Roberts, superintendent of Nelson Bros. slate quarry at West Pawlet, met a horrible death Tuesday. He was reloading powder and had gone into the powder house with a keg under each arm when he stepped on a dynamite cap. It exploded as did all the dynamite in the building. The powder house and contents were blown up. Mr. Roberts was carried some distance. He was badly mangled and torn and his clothing was set on fire. He lived some time after being taken home and conversed with his family about the accident. A son was badly burned while pulling the burning clothes from his father.

State Auditor Horace F. Graham is waiting for some one to bring mandamus proceedings against him in connection with a bill allowed by the court of claims. Several claims have been allowed by that court, but Mr. Graham is in doubt as to his authority to give orders on the state treasurer under the act of the last legislature which created the court and so far has not drawn any orders for their payment. A question has arisen as to the constitutionality of the law and Mr. Graham proposes to pay no money under it until the supreme court has passed judgment on it. It is likely that a test case will be made soon and the matter adjudicated.

Top Notch.
 "But," persisted the St. Louis woman who had the shopping habit, "the firm declares in its advertisement that it only asks a fair price for its goods."
 "Exactly," replied her husband, "by which it means a 'world's fair' price."

The Difference.
 She—Why, a bachelor is an object of public derision!
 He—Yes; and a married man gets his at home.—Puck.

In Dandelion Time.
 The skies have caught a deeper blue,
 The birds a sweeter song;
 The willows around themselves snow
 In tender greens along
 The winding brooks. The sheltered nooks
 Are bursting all ablaze
 With stars untold of gleaming gold
 In dandelion days.

No song more limpid or more sweet
 Than yonder bird's; no sheen
 Like that of grass beneath my feet
 Than emeralds more green.
 No softer breeze e'er stirred the trees
 Than this, that gently sways
 The budding beech beyond my reach
 In dandelion days.

The song re-echoes in the heart,
 The breezes stir the blood;
 Within the brain fresh fancies start
 And wake a nobler mood.
 Viewed through the clear, pure atmosphere,
 Life takes a loftier phase
 And seems possessed of keener zest
 In dandelion days.

A magic spell rests on the year,
 And time has stayed its flight,
 For long lost springides reappear
 In pages of delight.
 A child once more, I wonder o'er
 The meadow's starry maze,
 And life forgets its sharp regrets
 In dandelion days.
 —Julia E. Goodwin in Springfield Republican.

Letter To A. P. Abbott,
 Barre, Vt.

Dear Sir: It's an old saying: "The best advertisement is a pleased customer." It happens to us continually in this way: A man buys Devos for his house—he has painted it once in three years for a dog's age, and thinks he knows what he wants—buys 30 gallons and has 10 left. He says right off that 20 Devos is as much as 30 of anything else. He likes that; it comes quick; it is a surprise; and he tells of it. The best advertisement is a pleased customer. Three years roll round. There isn't a sign that his house needs paint, he don't paint it. Next year he don't paint it. This comes slow; it is a surprise; but he has got used to it. Still the best advertisement is a pleased customer. Yours truly,
 F. W. Devos & Co.,
 New York.
