

THE BARRE DAILY TIMES

Subscriptions: One year, $5; one month, 25 cts; single copy, 1 cent.
 Members of the Publishers' Press.—The latest telegraphic news from all parts of the world are received by the Daily Times up to the hour of going to press.
 Frank E. Langley, Publisher.
 Published Every Weekday Afternoon.
 Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.
 FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1903.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was 2,700
 copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

A Thousand A Day
 more copies of the Times are printed and sold than of any competitor in Barre.
The Daily Times is the only daily in Washington County that publishes its circulation so that all readers and advertisers may know what it is.
 Do you have an advertisement in it?

The Vergennes Enterprise remarks of Charles Rufus Young, the horse thief who died at Rutland Wednesday, that "he is in custody at this writing." Has the Enterprise inside information?

Kentucky Republicans whoop'er up for Roosevelt, and former Governor Bradley says "never was there so much chance of success as now." The Roosevelt fever is getting contagious.

The flurry in Wall street which has been on for several days has led to an examination of conditions in the other commercial centers of the country. It has been found that the wall street trouble does not extend beyond New York and Pittsburgh, and, in fact, the New York Herald finds that the conditions elsewhere are very satisfactory.

The Bellows Falls Times, which has managed to strike a happy medium in the discussion of prohibition and license comes out with another indecisive statement, in which it says, "It is the personal conviction of the publisher of this paper that at the present time conditions do not differ materially from what they did under the prohibitory law." But the Times hits upon one point which is undoubtedly a truism throughout the state as it is a representation of human nature in general. It is, "Those who kick the longest and loudest have no greater ambition to come out into the open than they used to have." There is possibly one exception, and that is Newman Weeks of Rutland.

Some newspapers and people are inclined to poke fun at recent articles in a certain magazine on "How Johnny and Sarah Saved Enough for a Home in 60 Years" and similar subjects. Although there does appear to be a good deal of the ludicrous in some of the contributions, yet there is a noteworthy and laudable purpose back of the idea of printing such personal experiences, and that is, the promotion of frugality and thrift, two qualities which are likely to be forgotten or overlooked by the younger generation. Just how Johnny and Sarah managed to rake enough together to be able to own their own home makes perhaps a homely illustration, but if we mistake not, even such examples lead many young people to make a better use of their spare money than is usually the case.

"It is a comedy as it now stands, but a tragedy if it should succeed" says William J. Bryan of the movement for nominating Grover Cleveland for president. But Bryan need not give himself any uneasiness over the matter, as the prospects of Cleveland's nomination for that office are about as slim as Bryan's himself. Already the Cleveland movement has been switched off onto the Olney track and the veteran of many political battles is eliminated from the reckoning. While Cleveland has considerable strong support there are several things which react against him, and this reaction has been so strong that his warmest supporters have practically given up all idea of his being a possibility in the race for the democratic nomination. Most important of all these causes of a change is undoubtedly Cleveland's inability to command the laboring vote, that is, enough to make him a possibility in a presidential race. A prominent politician in Washington, who is a close student of the situation, says that Cleveland would undoubtedly receive big support from the large business interests of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, but he could not sway the labor vote in those same states, states which are considered indispensable for a majority.

K&E Boys Waists and Blouses

$1.00
 Cheaper Goods are no Economy There are no better made.

When Buying for Your Boy don't let him bear you ask for cheap waists. He may have no knowledge of price, but his quick intuition tells him that you do not set a high value on his appearance. It not only makes him sensitive, but you cannot expect him to feel the pride in his appearance that you want him to have.
 You can't buy a waist or blouse for less than a dollar that will give anywhere near the wear of the K. & E. $1.00 kind. You can pay more, of course, for the finer materials, but you can't get any better workmanship or style if you paid a thousand times the price. You should have a copy of the valuable K. & E. booklet on "A Boy's Dress and His Character." Ask us for one.

Special For Saturday.

Boys $1.00 Shirt Waists and Blouses for only 69 cents each.

These are the celebrated K. & E. garments, and it is only to introduce them that we make this price; and it is only for SATURDAY, JULY 18th, 1903, that the price will be 69 cents.

The monthly pay roll of the Vermont Marble Co., Proctor, for June is a trifle over $100,000, the largest pay roll the company has ever had to meet.

President A. D. Brown of Norwich university, accompanied by Mrs. Brown, Pierce Brown, Mrs. Tyler and Miss Tyler, has gone to Nova Scotia on a vacation trip.

A letter has been received in Burlington from G. P. Auld, who has been seriously sick at Porto Rico, in which he reports that he is much better. The letter was written by Mr. Auld about the time his parents reached Porto Rico.

Mrs. Anson L. Murray died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Leaso, in Waterbury yesterday after suffering a long time with cancer on the jaw. She had been afflicted with that malady for more than a year and for the past six months had been confined to her bed. Mrs. Murray was 70 years of age and formerly lived in Waitsfield, but has resided for some time with her daughter in Waterbury. Aside from Mrs. Leaso she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Alma Kish-bough of New York city. The funeral is to be held on Friday afternoon.

Seth Olmstead, of Hardwick is making another of the violins for which he has a great reputation. Mr. Olmstead is well toward 80 years old now, and his eyesight is much impaired, but though he has to "make haste slowly" his workmanship still shows the deftness of an expert. Mr. Olmstead has made a great many violins in his life time. He made the first one for his own use, because he didn't feel able to buy one. It proved so good an instrument that it found a ready sale. Since then he has sold many. His violins are really very superior in tone to many high priced instruments.

An Open Letter.
 These fashions, dear girl, we are viewing with dread;
 They can't be expected to please
 When you limp in high heels and you carry your head
 At an angle of forty degrees.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Even in Dreams.
 I dreamt I stood beneath a money tree,
 The leaves of which were fifty dollar bills.
 I went about to climb it, when, you see,
 Affame the lightning set it from the hills.
 —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Active Remedy For Microbes.
 [A Paris doctor declares that the cake walk, freely indulged in, will kill the hardest microbes.]
 The walk is not without its charm.
 The polka has its points;
 The barn dance need not cause alarm
 To those who've supple joints.
 The cellar flap with joy is seen
 (Though seldom at a ball),
 But when it comes to hygiene
 The cake walk beats them all.

There was a time in days gone by
 When, if I felt unwell,
 Unto my doctor I would fly.
 In haste my symptoms tell
 And pay the varlet thumping fees—
 It seemed my only chance—
 But now M. D.'s no longer please;
 It's cheaper far to dance.

Should limb or cranium throb and ache,
 I don my lightest shoe,
 And hired menials music make;
 It's what they're paid to do.
 "Down South's" exhilarating strains
 Burst from the gay banjo;
 Quaint ragtime steps dispel my pain
 And urge a healthy glow.

Ye invalids, though old and stout,
 Accept the proffered boon;
 Forget your ailment, step boldly out
 To emulate the coon;
 Attempt the measures I suggest,
 Scorn not what I advise;
 The plan, believe me, is the best;
 This way salvation lies.
 —London Chronicle.
