BIG NEWSPAPER HOARD.

Enormous Mass of Files the British Museum Will Store at London.

His majesty's office of works is just beginning at London, England, to raise a house in which tons of newspaper files now at the British museum will eventually be deposited, says the London Chronicle. There is a whole newspaper land in the museum, a land from which a file of almost any modern English paper can be dug out. Space gets more valuable at Bloomsbury, and this building is necessary at London for the storage of "newspapers and other printed matter" rarely required for use.

That is the definition which a parliamentary statute applies to the purposes of the London annex. It also requires that the "newspapers and printed matter so removed" shall be made available on due notice being given at the museum. In other words, the newspapers at London will be brought to London for reference when they are needed. Needless to say the files that are constantly being needed will not go there at all. Under the copyright act copies of newspapers and periodicals, as of books, must be sent to the British museum. The newspaper mountains which this has produced can, in the trite phrase, better be imagined than described. In fact, it could not be described, because much of it is buried away in the basements of the museum. The figures as to the sets of newspapers and fortnightly and monthly publications received there are, however, sufficiently eloquent.

In 1900 the number of such sets contributed by London was 1,223; by provincial England, Wales and the Channel Islands, 1,664; by Scotland, 288, and by Ireland, 222. These figures show a total of 3,400 sets, representing 220,369 single numbers of papers and kindred publications. The number of sets in 1800 was 2,472 and the single numbers of papers 170,838, a striking increase in the ten years. However, there has been a slight drop. For 1901 the sets numbered 3,170 and the single numbers 208,582. Last year the number of sets was 3,222, comprising 190,967 single numbers. When colonial and foreign newspapers are added it will be seen what a harvest flows to the museum. Every twelve months it literally gathers into its now well filled vastness huge loads of printed paper. Yet so carefully kept are the files that they can readily be consulted, even when they are purely local papers.

THE POSTAL INDICTMENTS

Machen and Beavers Among Those Just Indicted by Grand Jury.

MORE SURPRISES PROMISED

It is stated that the investigation will end shortly, indicting a prominent man—Grand Jury Now Hearing the Evidence.

Washington, Sept. 10.—One of the persons who have just been indicted by the grand jury in connection with the postal investigation is George W. Beavers, formerly chief of the division of salaries and allowances. It is understood that the charge is conspiracy. Another of the indictments is against August W. Machen on a new set of facts, involving him with Beavers. The charge is conspiracy.

While the officials refuse to disclose the names of the four remaining persons who were indicted it is said that none of them is or has been connected with the post office department and that one is a man of some prominence. It was stated at the city hall during the day that the climax of the investigation is to come shortly when a person not connected with the department, but equally as well known as the postmaster general himself, undoubtedly will be indicted for complicity in the post office frauds.

The grand jury has begun hearing the evidence in this particular case, and it is stated that when a report is made it will in all probability conclude the investigation in Washington.

Suicide of a Boston Salesman.
Cleveland, O., Sept. 10.—A man supposed to be C. T. Barden, a traveling salesman for the Carter-Bloce Paper company of Boston, jumped into Lake Erie a few miles east of the city and was drowned. The suicide pursued a peculiar method to put an end to his life. He took a car out to a convenient point on Lake Erie and, placing his traveling bags in the middle of the road, ran on to a pier and jumped into the water. A notebook and expense account in the above name were found on the body when recovered.

New York Broker's Sudden Death.
New York, Sept. 10.—Arthur W. Ufer, forty years old, a stockbroker, who has lived at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel ever since it was built, dropped dead at Jack's restaurant on Sixth avenue. Mr. Ufer had been a familiar figure about the Waldorf for a number of years. He was the manager for Mendham Bros., bankers and brokers, in Astor court, adjoining the hotel.

Maneuvers in Saxony.
Halle, Prussia, Sept. 10.—A wild storm of wind and rain at the army maneuvers tore away the balloons and made wireless telegraphy impossible. Emperor William, in command of two Saxon army corps, attacked the opposing Prussian army corps with ferocity, stormed several of the latter's batteries and compelled the Prussians to retire.

Orange Day at Syracuse Fair.
Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Grangers' day at the state fair, with Major DeLamar going against the track trotting record of Crescens, 2:02½, was the attraction. The railroads brought thousands from all directions. The attendance was estimated at 35,000.

THE LATEST IN DANCES

Most Popular Ones Selected by Dancing Masters.

MAXIM GLIDE EASILY LEARNED.

It is to be the fashionable dance this winter—the Manhattan, a New Polka, and the Trovata are two of the best submitted—Many Other Good Ones Considered.

The Maxim glide is to be the fashionable dance this winter, says a New York special to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. It is the creation of Oskar Duenweg of Terre Haute, Ind. The new dance has to be recognized its simplicity of movement. It was presented to the American Society of Professors of Dancing and was given the sanction of that body. The Maxim glide is so easy, indeed, that upon seeing it executed once the ordinary observer with little knowledge of the graceful art can duplicate it successfully. The dance, as illustrated by its author, Professor Duenweg, begins with a military schottisch position—that is, the man and the girl facing the same direction, the man's arm just touching the girl's waist, while her left hand rests on his shoulder. Her free hand grasps her train, while the man's disengaged left rests on his hip. In the first part of the dance count four to each bar of music; in the second part, only two. The man with left foot balances forward and back, starting in fifth position, while the lady counterparts with right. They take three walking steps forward, then repeat the first step, the man with the right, the lady with the left foot.

In the second part, counting two to each bar of music, they dance the two-step to schottisch time.

Professor Duenweg, after illustrating his dance, said that he based his hopes of success for the Maxim glide on its extreme simplicity.

"People, society people especially," he said, "won't take the trouble to learn new dances if they are at all difficult. This they can get up and dance after seeing it gone through once. The dance is really just a walk and a two-step. I regret to say that society does not wait any more. It won't take the trouble. When waltz music is played they two-step, and when a two-step is on the programme they romp. This makes the invention and selection of new dances no easy matters, for we know that people won't learn dances chosen by the convention if they are difficult to learn."

The Manhattan, the new polka by Professor George Prutting, Jr., of Hartford, begins with the couple in a promenade position. Polka one step forward with left foot, then one step forward with right foot, make a complete turn and polka; then dance the glide polka, ending with three half turns and repeat first movement.

The trovata, the third dance, submitted by T. A. Holland of Springfield, Mass., is danced to polka-mazourka time. Taking a promenade position, the couple varsovienne—three steps and point-forward. Gentleman then varsoviennes back of his partner to the right and then repeats movement to left. The couple then varsoviennes forward together, take a waltz position and complete the dance with a plain mazourka.

Besides these three, the convention has considered the Columbian three-step, by Frederick W. L'Amoureux of Binghamton, N. Y. the way-side pavot, by Helen C. Way of Hartford; the marot waltz, by D. B. Braggins of Indianapolis; follow on a charming dance for children, by Acolph Seaberger of New York, and new German figures by George Prutting, Jr., Walter Curtes of Utica, Henry Kramer of Los Angeles and William Pitt Rivers of Brooklyn.

HAWAII'S TRADE IN FROGS.

Imported to Eat Insects, They Are Now Exported For Money.

Hawaii has commenced exporting frogs to the mainland, says the Honolulu correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean. The industry, which was started at first to rid the islands of pests, has now become a paying one.

Frogs were introduced into Hawaii only a few years ago by the agricultural department to get rid of insect pests which were injurious to vegetation. Later a Hilo man imported six dozen for breeding purposes. From the latter stock the frogs now exported have come. Shipments of 1,000 frogs a month are now being made to San Francisco and will be increased, for the supply does not now equal the demand.

Many of the frogs are also sent to Honolulu for hotel use. They sell for $1 a dozen in Hilo.

Carnegie May Buy Famous Battlefield

London, Sept. 10.—It is said that Andrew Carnegie is negotiating for the purchase of the famous battlefield of Bannockburn, near Stirling, Scotland, in order to save it from falling into the hands of builders. At Bannockburn, June 24, 1314, the Scots, under Bruce, defeated the English, led by King Edward II. The site of the battle is marked by a block of granite called the "Borel stone."
