SENSATIONAL RIDE.

On Front of an Express Train in The Mountains of Colorado.

A thrilling scene is one of the number which will be shown in the Barre opera house tonight when the Lyman H. Howe moving picture exhibition will be given. It shows a sensational ride on the pilot of an express train through the famous Ute Pass on the Colorado Midland Railway.

The train dashes along the edge of great precipices, spans gorges at dizzy heights, rushes through tunnels and twists and turns over a route through which the ingenuity of man has spanned with rails. Although one is not, of course, on the train, one might as well be, for the sensation is there just the same. One is taken with the train over a distance of about twenty miles. The scene is given in the natural colors of the mountain and this adds to its sublime beauty.

When the ride is at an end you wonder at the engineering feats that could build such a railroad.

Mildred Holland.

Mildred Holland as Angela di Savelli in "The Lily and the Prince," a four act romantic drama by Carina Jordan, produced under the direction of Edward C. White, will be the attraction at the Blanchard Opera House, Montpelier, on Saturday evening, Sept. 12. The coming of Miss Holland is in the nature of a theatrical event. She is a great favorite with the theatre goers of Barre and Montpelier and her reputation has been established by hard, meritorious and conscientious work. Miss Holland's business last season was large and gratifying both to Manager Blanchard of the Opera House and Manager Edward C. White, but from all indications last season's record will be broken Saturday evening. It may not be amiss to say that the success of Mildred Holland is pleasing to every one.
